¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 800m to the east and 800m to the west has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building located at [REDACTED] Derby Street, Highgate Hill on 12 January 2011.

In particular you have claimed for damage to your pontoon.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8 to 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains the specific insured events that your Policy covers.

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your pontoon was not caused by an insured event. Specifically, we are not satisfied that an impact by an object covered by your Policy, for example by a watercraft, has caused the damage you have claimed for. Further, the loss of your pontoon from it being washed away is also not covered by your Policy. We regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Turley Street Fairfield QLD 4103 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brisbane River that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane river, which is located approximately 150 metres to the north of your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, Mount Ommaney Creek approximately 75m to the south east of your property has received floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow and floodwaters to subsequently travel overland and inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 500m to the north west of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. [REDACTED] Ramada Place
FIG TREE POCKET QLD 4069

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Ramada Place, Fig Tree Pocket on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Geography:

We understand that Cubberla Creek (a tributary of the Brisbane River) runs through the parklands adjacent to your property and converges with the Brisbane River approximately 400m north east of your property.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au.

Their report indicates that inundation in the general vicinity of your home was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River at the time (12 and 13 January 2011) your property was affected. The report also indicates that no rainfall of note fell in the Brisbane Local Government Area after 9.00 am on 12 January 2011. We comment on your property specifically over the page.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater. This mapping depicts the passage of water behind and to the south of your home.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by overland flood.

Specifically, Cubberla Creek and the Brisbane River rose and overflowed to inundate the low lying areas of Fig Tree Pocket including the parklands immediately behind and to the south of your property. The overland floodwaters continued to rise to inundate your property on 12 January 2011 rising to its peak on the evening of 12 January.

We do acknowledge the presence of drains near your property, however, based on the mapping and photography available to us we are not satisfied that any inundation of your home, substantive or otherwise, occurred as a result of water escaping from any drain/s.

We have additionally considered your allegation that rainwater was a significant contributor to the damage to your house. We confirm that we are not satisfied any stormwater runoff inundation occurred on grounds that the rainfall data available to us and the time of inundation is entirely inconsistent with stormwater runoff inundation. Further, we are satisfied that any stormwater runoff into the parklands was either prevented from entering the watercourses as they were already full or overflowing or mixed with overland floodwaters from the rising watercourses before the main body of overland floodwater arrived to inundate your property. We confirm that water inundation of this nature, if it occurred, is not covered under the flood exclusion of your policy.

We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain and/or stormwater runoff.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim has not been accepted.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

You are entitled to have this decision reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to the lower level of your home, and the contents located there, was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage to this lower level was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 300 metres to the south of your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that this damage to your lower level building and contents is not covered on this occasion.

However, we can advise that the water damage to your curtains, carpet and walls located in the upper level of your property has now been accepted as under the insured event of storm and rainwater. We confirm that you have provided us with the following receipts and estimate:

Carpet Call invoice	$1,200.00
Curtain Wonderland invoice	$839.35
Your payment to the painter	$200.00

We therefore propose to cash settle your claim on the following basis:

cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Whilst we do not believe that water escaping from nearby drains caused or contributed to the damage you have claimed for, we advise that if any minor amounts of water did escape they would have done so at the time the overland floodwater moved north to south along Ashfield Street. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

We apologise to you for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at Unit [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Horizon Drive Westlake QLD 4074 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brisbane River that affected the property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or
- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 500m to the north of your property rose and overflowed, causing Westlake and the Brisbane River to become one body of water which continued to rise and overflow. Floodwaters subsequently travelled overland to inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011. Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. We confirm that under Australian insurance law, an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 1km to the east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing Sandy Creek which branches off the Brisbane River to also rise and overflow. The resulting floodwaters have travelled overland to inundate your property. Dear Mr ██████████

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: ██████████

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at ██████████ Doonas Road, Grandchester, 4340 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brown Creek on or around 12 January 2011. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

Specifically, Brown Creek, which runs through your property and on which a dam of significant capacity has been constructed on your property, has received significant amounts of water from the south, from the catchment which drains into it, causing both Brown Creek and the dam on your property to rise and break their banks. These floodwaters eventually rose high enough to travel overland and inundate your laundry and granny flat on or around the evening of 11 January 2011.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Please accept our apology for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Dear Mr Nathan [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Blackall Street Basin Pocket 4305 on 13 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Bremer River at the time on or around 12 January 2011 your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Whilst we do not believe that any drain escape water inundated your property we confirm that if an insignificant amount of such water was present at the time of the flooding event, it would have promptly mixed with overland floodwater prior to entering your property.

Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood of this type, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

We apologise to you for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] McNabb Street, Caboolture on or around 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for your cooperation in this regard.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 150 m to the north west of Lagoon Creek.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest rain station to your property is located at Morayfield - Mark Street. Rainfall data from the days leading up to and including 11 January 2011 indicates that there was heavy rainfall in your area which caused Oakey Creek to break its banks and overflow into Lagoon Creek, which in turn broke its banks and overflowed into nearby properties.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of Lagoon Creek, which is located approximately 150 m to the south east of your property, on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] Lancelot St Tennyson QLD 4105 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Oxley Creek that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

We acknowledge that an insignificant amount of floodwater may have escaped nearby drains around your property however we are satisfied that any drain escape water would have promptly mixed with overland floodwater rising over Lancelot Street and surrounding streets.

Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood of this type, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] Tekapo Street Westlake 4074 on 13 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Mt Ommaney Creek at the time on or around 12 January 2011 your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Specifically, Mt Ommaney Creek approximately 500m east of your property has received floodwaters from the Brisbane River causing it to rise and overflow and floodwaters to inundate the low lying parts of the McLeod Country Golf Club immediately behind your property. As the Brisbane River and Mt Ommaney Creek continued to rise, floodwaters continued to travel overland and subsequently inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011.

We accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Please accept our apology for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents located at [REDACTED] Verney Road East, Graceville, QLD 4075 on or around 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage on 25 January 2011. We thank you for your cooperation in this regard.

We also thank you for allowing a further onsite assessment to be conducted on 12 April 2011.

Hydrology Report:

Following the Queensland floods of December 2010 and January 2011 the Insurance Council of Australia (ICA) appointed a panel consisting of three expert hydrologists¹ to assess and report on flooding across the state. A two-volume report (which is accessible on the ICA website (www.insurancecouncil.com.au) deals with the Brisbane area.

Their report indicates that the ultimate inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River at the time (Wednesday, 12 January 2011) your property was affected.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 400 m to the south west of the Brisbane River.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was ultimately inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Your Policy (on pages 17, 19 and 21) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" (on page 22):

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, viewing publically available aerial mapping and reviewing the documents you have provided, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by water initially escaping from the stormwater drain to the rear of your property and then later by overland floodwater from the Brisbane River.

We are satisfied that the damage to the following items was not caused by overland floodwater from the Brisbane River:

1. washing machine, book shelf, clothes and 2-3 sleeping bags located in the laundry;
2. golf clubs, 2 bookshelves, wall unit, desk, guitar amp, older style stereo and tools located in the storeroom;
3. computer desk, single bed, shelf unit, office chair and stool located in your daughter's bedroom;
4. 200L Mitsubishi fridge, wardrobe, foam mattress and timber drawer filing cabinet located in the downstairs foyer; and
5. miscellaneous items in the garage.

Rather, the damage to the items above was caused by water escaping from the stormwater drain to the rear of your property. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover this portion of your claim.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to the following items was caused by excluded floodwater:

1. furniture located in the middle messanine level of the house;
2. the electric Yamaha full keyboard piano and children's clothes located in the spare bedroom; and
3. the contents kept on the balcony.

Specifically, the Brisbane River which is located 400 m to the north east of your property has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property to the peak height. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim is not accepted.

Please note that our claims department will be in contact with you shortly to discuss the settlement of your claim and specifically, the frozen food component of your claim.

We apologise to you for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 800m to the east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland inundate your property via an unnamed watercourse 250m to the north east of your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, we accept that some initial damage to your property was caused by water escaping drains near your property, followed by a later event where a higher level of Brisbane River floodwater entered your home.

As such, we are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents located up to and including a maximum depth of ninety centimetres (90cm) above the ground floor level of the raised section of your house was not caused by overland floodwaters.

On this basis we are pleased to inform you that water damage to the 90cm level will be covered under your Policy.

We will be in contact with you shortly to proceed with the necessary assessment of damage and loss to the above level.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to the remainder of your property (the higher portions of your home/contents) was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 150m north east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

Lyndora Close
Riverhills QLD 4074

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at Lyndora Cl Riverhills 4074 on the 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brisbane River affected the property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, floodwater inundation from the overflow from the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 200m from the property, on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents at [REDACTED] Verney Road East, Graceville on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that your property was ultimately inundated by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River at the time your property was affected. cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages-9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, we accept that some initial damage to your property was caused by water escaping drains near your property, followed by a later event where a higher level of Brisbane River floodwater entered your home.

As such, we are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents located up to and including a maximum depth of one hundred and twenty centimetres (120cm) above the ground floor level of the raised section of your house was not caused by overland floodwaters.

On this basis we are pleased to inform you that water damage to the 120cm level will be covered under your Policy.

We will be in contact with you shortly to proceed with the necessary assessment of damage and loss to the above level.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to the remainder of your property (the higher portions of your home/contents) was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 150m north east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

Please accept our apology for the delay in providing you with this decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. "You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Dear Mr & Mrs ██████████

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: ██████████

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at ██████████ Penong Street Westlake Qld 4074 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the initial inundation was caused by stormwater runoff and/or water escaping nearby drains on 11 January 2011 and later by water escaping and overflowing from Westlake which received floodwaters from the Brisbane River and runoff from surrounding areas. This caused flood waters to rise and overflow and subsequently inundate your property to a depth of approximately 2.2m above ground level on 12 January 2011.

This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, we are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood after an initial lower inundation by stormwater runoff and/or water escaping nearby drains.

Specifically, we accept that your property was inundated up to a maximum depth of seven centimetres (7cm) above the ground floor level by stormwater runoff and/or water escaping nearby drains on 11 January 2011. This inundation was preceded by later inundation by Westlake which received floodwaters from the Brisbane River and runoff from surrounding areas, causing it to rise and overflow and subsequently inundate your property to a depth of approximately 2.2m above ground level on 12 January 2011.

As your policy covers loss or damage caused by stormwater runoff and water escaping drains but not for loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered in full on this occasion.

Your policy will only respond to the damage caused by the initial inundation of stormwater runoff and/or water escaping drains, subject to the relevant terms of your policy.

We apologise to you for the delay in providing you with our decision and we will contact you shortly in relation to the accepted portion of your claim.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Riversleigh Road Bellbowrie 4070 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Kangaroo Gully on or around 12 January. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, floodwater inundation from the overflow of Kangaroo Gully, which is located approximately 500m south east of your property, on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Miss

Your AAMI contents insurance claim:

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at HAIG Road Milton QLD 4064 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brisbane River that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

It also states:

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, floodwaters from the Brisbane River that flowed up a channel approximately 200m to the south of your property overflowed from the channel, causing the floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Moore's Pocket Rd, Tivoli 4305 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Bremer River affected the property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, the Bremer River adjacent to your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around the evening of 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5

working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Oxley Creek, which is located approximately 50 metres north of your property, on or about 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear Mr [REDACTED],

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Waratah Ave Graceville 4075 on 13th of January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brisbane River at the time your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 300m to the north east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building located at [REDACTED] Rosecliffe Street Highgate Hill 4101 on the 12th of January, 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River on or around the 12th of January 2011. Our decision on your insurance claim:

Dear Dr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents located at [REDACTED] Brisbane Street, St Lucia on 11 - 13 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage. We thank you for allowing this to happen. We additionally appointed a hydrological engineer to provide a written report as to the cause of your home's inundation.

Hydrology Reports:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

The WRM hydrology investigation specific to your home indicates that an initial level of its internal inundation was caused by water escaping stormwater drains. Higher levels of floodwaters from the Brisbane River subsequently inundated your home on 11 - 13 January, 2011. Please find enclosed a complete copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or
- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, viewing publically available aerial mapping and reviewing the documents you have provided, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by an initial inundation of water escaping stormwater drains, followed by overland flood to a far higher inundation level.

We are satisfied that the damage to your contents in your home located at up to and including 30 cms above it ground floor level was not caused by overland flood. Rather, the damage was caused by water escaping drains near your property. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover this portion of your claim.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to your contents located higher than 30 cms above the ground floor level of your home was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River which is located some 400 m from your property has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obliged to accept a claim for damage caused by a mixture of drain water (covered water) and excluded overland flood water.

We apologise for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. "You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, floodwater inundation from the overflow from the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 250m from your property, on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Specifically, Oxley Creek approximately 400m south east of your property received significant volumes of floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow. These floodwaters have subsequently travelled overland, including via the watercourse immediately east of your property (itself a tributary of Oxley Creek), to inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011.

Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your property may have come from water escaping from drains in Haldane Street at the time of the main flood event. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Please accept our apology for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of Bundamba Creek which is located a short distance to the east of your property, on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] Neata Street Corinda QLD 4075 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Oxley Creek that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, Oxley Creek which connects to the Brisbane River and runs around your property approximately 200m to the north, 400m to the east and 150m to the south, has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from the stormwater drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obliged to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Sandon Street, Graceville on 12 – 13 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed two Assessors to attend your property to inspect the damage. We additionally appointed a hydrological engineer to conduct an investigation into the cause of the inundation of your property and provide a report. We thank you for allowing these assessments to take place.

Hydrology Reports:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

The WRM hydrology investigation specific to your home indicates that its inundation of its ground floor level was caused by floodwaters from the Brisbane River on 12 - 13 January, 2011. Please find enclosed a complete copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home level was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 300 - 400 metres from your property on 12 - 13 January 2011.

Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of the ground level of your home may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. We accept the hydrological engineer's advice, in that the main street drain at the front of your property is located below the level of your home's ground floor.

We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damaged caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

We apologise for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. "Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, we accept that some initial damage to your property was caused by stormwater runoff, followed by a later event where Brisbane River floodwater entered your home.

As such, we are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents located up to and including a maximum depth of twenty centimetres (20cm) above the ground floor level of your home was not caused by overland floodwaters.

On this basis we are pleased to inform you that water damage to the 20cm level will be covered under your Policy.

We will be in contact with you shortly to proceed with the necessary assessment of damage and loss to the above level.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to the remainder of your property (the higher portions of your home/contents) was caused by flood. Specifically, the unnamed tributary of the Brisbane River (a small creek) which runs through Booker Place Park south east of your property has received floodwaters from the Brisbane River causing it to rise and overflow and inundate the low lying areas of the parklands. As the floodwaters have continued to rise and travel overland they subsequently inundated your property on or around 12 January 2011.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

Please accept our apology for the delay in providing you with this decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Bremer River, which is located approximately 500 metres north of your property, on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Lawson Street, Oxley Qld 4075 on 13 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Oxley Creek at the time your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, Oxley Creek approximately 200m to the east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 13 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Donatello Street, Fig Tree Pocket QLD on or around 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for your cooperation in this regard.

We also thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 150 m to the west of the Brisbane River.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was ultimately inundated by Brisbane River floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, viewing publically available aerial mapping and reviewing the documents you have provided, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by a combination of water escaping stormwater drains and overland flood.

We are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents located up to and including 1.9 m above ground level was not caused by overland flood. Rather, the damage was caused by water escaping the stormwater drains near your property. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover this portion of your claim.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to your building and contents located higher than 1.9 m above ground level was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River which is located 150 m to the east of your property has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, Stable Swamp Creek approximately 100m to the south west of your property which connects to Oxley Creek, a tributary to the Brisbane River, has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Woogaroo Creek (consequent overflow of the Brisbane River), which is located approximately 200 metres to the north of your property on or around 11 January 2011. Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Bayford Street Oxley 4075 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Oxley Creek on or around 12 January 2011. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of Oxley Creek, which is located a short distance to the east of your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal

Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear Mr ██████████

Claim Number ██████████

Thank you for contacting AAMI on 13 January 2011 about the damage to your property located at ████████ Moores Pocket Rd QLD 4305.

As you know we organised an assessor attend your property to assess the damage and we thank you for this

EXTERNAL ASSESSMENT REPORT:

An assessor arranged by AAMI attended your property to report on the damage. We include the relevant parts of the assessment report;

A report from a Builder or Engineer would be required to determine the cause of the cracking the brick work.

The cracking to the interior brick veneer appears to be pre-existing.

CENSEO ENGINEERS REPORT:

Upon recommendations for the assessor we engaged an engineer to attend your property to report on the cause of damage. We include the relevant parts of the report.

In summary it is our opinion that the cracks the front northern elevation and western side elevation where minor 1mm cracking that presented with previous attempts of repair by way of filling with mortar. These previous mortar repairs were obvious in their miss matched colour but have increased in width due to the flooding event.

The cracking is caused by the soil movement and that the foundation slab movement will be ongoing as the soils under the slab go through wet and dry cycles. We believe that the substantial amounts of water flowing into the property have exacerbated the foundation movement.

YOUR INSURANCE POLICY:

Page 14 of your AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy states:

You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

An unreasonable failure to properly maintain or repair your building, Soil movement or settlement.

OUR DECISION ON YOUR CLAIM FOR CRACKING IN THE BRICKWORK:

After review of the assessment report and claim information, AAMI has established that the damage to your property has been occurring over a period of time. AAMI has established that you were aware of this condition. Further, AAMI are satisfied that the cracking is caused by soil movement

AAMI have based these conclusions on the assessment photos, report and engineers report.

YOUR RIGHT TO HAVE THE DECISION REVIEWED:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by an AAMI Customer Ombudsman, who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The AAMI Customer Ombudsman is independent of this department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Boundary Street Moores Pocket QLD 4305 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Bremer River that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. For the Ipswich region this report is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011' and is made up of Volume 1 "An Overview" and Volume 3, 'Flooding in Ipswich City LGA'.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Bremer River, which is located approximately 100 metres to the east of your property on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Amazon Place Jindalee 4074 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River on or around 11 January 2011. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 50 m from the rear of the courtyard of your property on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Kym Court
HODGSON VALE QLD 4352

Dear Mrs & Mr [REDACTED]

Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your home building and home contents at [REDACTED] Kym Ct Hodgson Vale 4352 on 10 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Assessment Report:

Cunningham Lindsey attended to your property on 4 March 2011 to assess the damage to your brick paved driveway. They have reported that due to the excess of rainwater run-off the soil underneath has eroded and when vehicles have driven along the driveway the pavers have sunk. We attach a copy of the report for your records.

Your Insurance Policy:

The Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on pages 8 and 12) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on pages 16 and 18) under the heading "What we cover – insured events", provides you are covered for damage or loss to your home building and your home contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

The PDS for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on page 14) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on page 22) also states in the section. "What we do not cover – general exclusions":

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

- Erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel;

- Soil movement or settlement,
- The washing away or movement of the surface of any path or driveway which has a surface consisting of a loose material such as gravel, stone or dirt or
- Subsidence or landslide unless caused by the insured event of earthquake."

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home contents stored within the shed was caused by an inundation of rainwater runoff. We have therefore been able to accept this part of your claim and these items have already been either replaced or cash settled less the $500 excess that applies.

Based on the information we have obtained, we believe that the damage to the brick paved driveway has been caused by the washing away of soil, earth or gravel from under the bricks allowing them to move. Further damage has then occurred to the driveway when vehicles have driven over it causing the pavers to sink.

As your policies do not cover loss or damage caused by the erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel, we regret to inform you that that portion of your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeals Service is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. "You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, your property is on the banks of the Brisbane River which has risen, overflowed and inundated your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Mabel St, Oxley 4075 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Oxley Creek at the time your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading,

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

We have additionally reviewed the following concerns you've raised during this claim:

- When our assessor attended your property, you advised him that you had called our office on 10 January 2011 and a staff member informed you that flood would be covered by your AAMI policy. We have investigated your policy records and can find no evidence of such a communication.

On 16 February 2011 you informed us that, in your view, the damage to your property was the result of water runoff, and not the Oxley Creek overflowing. We confirm that there was no significant rainfall in the area of your property in the hours leading up to its inundation. Accordingly, we are satisfied that any rainfall at that time would not have been sufficient to result in the water inundation you have claimed for. We confirm our view that the overflow of Oxley Creek, caused principally by the backflow of the flooded Brisbane River, caused the inundation of your home

KENMORE QLD 4069

Dear Mr and Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located [REDACTED] Kilkivan Avenue Kenmore on 10th January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Mogill Creek at 6pm on the 11th January 2011 your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

We apologise to you for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Mr ██████████

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: ██████████

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your property located at ████████ Baden Jones Way, North Booval.

In particular you have claimed for water damage that occurred on or around 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation on or around 11 January 2011 was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Bundamba Creek at the time (11 January 2011) your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Further (at pages 28 to 31) under the heading, "What we cover – additional benefits" your policy states:

"Damage to electric motors

We will pay the full cost of damage caused by electric current to an electric motor if the motor is less than 10 years old, and:

the motor is in a domestic appliance which forms part of your contents.

We will not pay if the damage is covered by a new product guarantee or warranty.

Spoiled frozen food

We will pay for spoilage of frozen food caused by:

accidental breakdown of your freezer where your freezer is less than 10 years old, or failure of public electricity supply to your home other than because of industrial action.

The most that we will pay for this benefit is $400. No excess is payable."

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Fridge and freezer

The available evidence suggests that the damage to your fridge and freezer could have been the result of a power surge. There is no policy coverage for power surge as an insured event however, if there was damage to the electric motors of the fridge and freezer then you may be entitled to cover for the replacement costs of these motors.

Your client manager will contact you shortly to discuss this aspect of your claim further.

Frozen food spoilage

We are satisfied that the most likely cause of your frozen food spoilage was the failure of public electricity supply to your home. As this event is covered under your policy we are pleased to inform you that this portion of your claim is accepted up to $400.

Remainder of contents

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to the remainder of your contents was caused by flood. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim is not covered.

We apologise for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear [REDACTED]

Your clients' AAMI home insurance claim no. [REDACTED]

Thank you for your letter dated 6 May 2011 and the authorities you have provided from our policyholders, [REDACTED]

As you are aware, our policyholders lodged a building and contents claim for water inundation of their home located at [REDACTED] Jolimont Street, Sherwood, Brisbane. This damage occurred on or about 12-13 January 2011 when water rose to a height of at least 1.5 metres within their home.

AAMI confirms that it has now reviewed all relevant information and assessment documentation and provides its decision on this claim by way of this letter.

We also respond to your request for information and documentation later in this letter.

AAMI confirms that a property assessor attended your client's property on 1 February 2011 to inspect the claimed damage. We thank your clients for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your clients' home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River on or about 12-13 January 2011. This corresponds with the time your clients' property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download an electronic copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

Your Clients' AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your clients' AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as the Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that your clients are covered for damage or loss to their building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Their Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that they are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your clients' Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your clients' insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your clients' building and contents was caused by flood.

Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 250 metres west of their property on or around 12-13 January 2011. This flood water has travelled across ordinarily dry land at Sherwood Forest Park, combined with existing water within the watercourses at Sherwood Forest Park, and risen across Jolimont Street to inundate your clients' property.

As your clients' policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that their claim has not been accepted.

Your clients' right to have this decision reviewed:

If your clients are not satisfied with our decision, they are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you/them (as appropriate) within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your clients' participation in this review process does not affect or compromise their entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should your clients wish to exercise this right, they can write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If your clients are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service they may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

Your request for information relied upon by AAMI in making its decision:

We refer you to the publically available hydrology report (both Brisbane volumes relating to the Brisbane Local Government Area) and the publically available aerial mapping which depicts the overland flood flow in the vicinity of your clients' property. AAMI relies on the information in the hydrology report to establish the rainfall and Brisbane River peak flood timing, and additionally relies on the aerial mapping to establish the inundation by flood water of your clients' home.

In accordance with your request, we include in our correspondence:

- (1) A complete copy of our assessor's report (Cunningham & Lindsay Australia)
- (2) An emailed list of damaged contents from your clients, and
- (3) Screen prints recorded from our discussions/transactions on this claim.

In relation your request for a proposal transcript, we confirm that AAMI does not record its new insurance sale conversations (your clients purchased their original period of cover in March 2004). Rather AAMI sales staff follow training requirements which are compliant with the relevant provisions of the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (including sections 35 and 69), the ASIC Act 2001 and the Corporations Act 2001. We confirm that these training materials are commercial in confidence and we are not prepared to release them outside of AAMI.

However, we confirm that in March 2004 AAMI's sales staff expressly disclaimed the general flood exclusion when selling home and/or contents insurance over the phone (this was a legal requirement at that time). Words to the effect of "Your policy also includes $10 million legal liability cover but does not provide any cover for FLOOD." were expressly stated to the person purchasing the policy.

Your clients were also posted a copy of each of their building and contents Product Disclosure Statements (PDSs). This occurred:

- following initial sale, both PDSs provided (both effective from 25 March 2004);
- a revised building PDS provided (effective from renewal on 25 March 2007); and
- a revised contents PDS provided (effective from renewal on 25 March 2008).

We confirm that the relevant flood exclusion was stated within each PDS and has remained unchanged in form since 2004 (beyond page number changes in the revised versions), meaning your clients were provided with a legally compliant PDS for both building and contents on two separate occasions since incepting their AAMI policy cover.

We trust the above information assists in your review of AAMI's decision.

Yours sincerely,

Peter Unwin

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

Mould, wet or dry rot, rising damp or dampness,"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your home and contents was caused by two separate events.

Specifically, the damage to your garage, shed and outdoor undercover area was caused by stormwater runoff whereas the damage to your house is as a result of mould, wet or dry rot, rising damp or dampness.

As your policy covers loss or damage caused by stormwater runoff but not for loss or damage caused by mould, wet or dry rot, rising damp or dampness, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered in full on this occasion. Your policy will only respond to the damage caused by stormwater runoff, subject to the relevant terms of your policy. We will arrange for someone to contact you in relation to the accepted portion of your claim.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Strong Avenue Graceville QLD 4075 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by floodwaters escaping and overflowing from Oxley Creek that affected your property. This being approximately 450m south east of your property, which received significant volumes of floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow and floodwaters to subsequently travel overland and inundate your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood.

Specifically, Oxley Creek approximately 450m south east of your property received significant volumes of floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow and floodwaters to subsequently travel overland and inundate your property on or around 12

January 2011. Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI building insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents located at [REDACTED] Dale Street, Burpengary, QLD on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, Burpengary Creek approximately 100m to the north of your property has risen and overflowed, causing inundation of your home and shed on or around 11 January 2011. As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Woogaroo Creek on or around 12 January 2011. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. For the Ipswich region this report is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011' and is made up of Volume 1 "An Overview" and Volume 3, 'Flooding in Ipswich City LGA'.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

We refer you to the definition of flood in your Policy which provides that flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes or overflows from the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, as is the case with the unnamed tributary of Woogaroo Creek.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] South Queensborough Parade Karalee QLD 4306 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Bremer River that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Bremer River, which is located approximately 150 metres to the south of your property on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Schmidt Road, Fernvale on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed two property assessors to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We also appointed a hydrologist, Mr Carl Wallis, to attend your property and provide an opinion as to the cause of the water damage.

Hydrology reports:

We have obtained a hydrology area report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River at the time your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 130 pages). You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

We have also reviewed the hydrology report provided by Mr Carl Wallis. He attended your property, spoke with you and reviewed relevant topographical and river flow data. He has concluded that Brisbane River floodwater, travelling across land from the north-west of your home has caused its internal inundation.

A copy of Mr Wallis' full report is enclosed with this letter.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant mapping, we accept that the water damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, we accept that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 1,600 metres to the north-west of your property. This inundation occurred on the evening of 11 January and across the morning of 12 January 2011.

This sequence of events, and the flow of the water, is confirmed by Mr Wallis, in his report. We refer you to Figures 1 and 2 and his conclusion.

We acknowledge that an insignificant amount of rainwater runoff and water from a nearby open grass drain may have been present around your site in the hours leading up to the Brisbane River floodwaters' arrival, however we are satisfied that those waters would have promptly mixed with the overland floodwater before or at the time your home was inundated.

We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and rainwater and/or water escaping from a drain.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim for water damage has not been accepted.

Please accept our apology for the time taken to provide you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Goodna Creek which is located approximately 150m from your property, on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Moores Pocket Road Tivoli 4305 on 10 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Bremer River at the time on or around the evening of 11 January 2011 your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. For the Ipswich region this report is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011' and is made up of Volume 1 "An Overview" and Volume 3, 'Flooding in Ipswich City LGA'.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, the Bremer River adjacent to your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around the evening of 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI building insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your fence and air conditioner located at [REDACTED] Kilkenny Drive, Burpengary, QLD on or around 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for your cooperation in this regard.

Geography

We understand that your property is situated approximately 100m to the west of Burpengary Creek.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8, 12 and 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your home building occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, we are satisfied that the damage to your fence and air conditioner was caused by overland flood. More specifically, Burpengary Creek located approximately 100m behind your property has risen and overflowed, causing inundation to your yard on or around 11 January 2011. As your Policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI building insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building located at [REDACTED] Blackall Street Basin Pocket QLD 4305 on 10 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Bremer River that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Bremer river, which is located approximately 70 metres to the north of your property on or around 10 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

CASHMERE QLD 4500

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building located at [REDACTED] Henry Court, Cashmere QLD on 11 January 2011.

In particular you have claimed for damage to the sealed driveway at your property.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Geography:

We understand that a watercourse runs through your property and intersects with your sealed driveway. This watercourse is a creek that branches off Four Mile Creek.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest rain station to your property is located at Clear Mountain Buranda Rd. Rainfall data from the days leading up to January 11 indicates that there was heavy rainfall in your area. Further, heavy rain in the preceding months especially that of December 2010 would have saturated the ground. We enclose the relevant rainfall data for your records.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8, 12 and 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your home building occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or
is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your sealed driveway was caused by flood. Specifically, on or around 11 January 2011, the creek running through your property which intersects with your sealed driveway has overflowed due to heavy rainfall in your area, inundating your sealed driveway and consequently washing a section away. The creek is a watercourse and the damage occurred as a result of this watercourse flooding. We confirm our view that a watercourse may at times be dry but this does not change its characterisation. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal

Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Dear Miss [REDACTED],

Your AAMI contents insurance [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] Long Street East Graceville 4075 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Oxley Creek at the time your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, Oxley Creek to the east of your property received significant volumes of floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow. Floodwaters have subsequently travelled overland and inundated your property. Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at Unit 13 [REDACTED] Bilga St, Middle Park 4074 on the 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

We note the contents of the consultancy report dated 20 February 2011 prepared by Drapper Environmental Consultants, which we understand you operate. We have reviewed this report's contents and given the sum of the information available to us in relation to the water inundation at your property, we are not satisfied that this property was solely damaged by water ingress caused by rainwater runoff. We confirm that even in the instance that some rainwater runoff mixed with Brisbane River floodwater, Australian Insurance Law allows an insurer to apply the exclusion of flood notwithstanding the mixture of these waters.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of Mt Ommaney Creek, which is located approximately 30 m north of your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Ramu Street, Darra, 4076 on 12/01/2011

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River, flowing into Wolston Creek and then into Bullock Head Creek causing them to rise and overflow. Bullock Head Creek has overflowed to inundate the reserve and stormwater channel to the east of your property with floodwaters then inundating surrounding properties including yours on or around 12 January 2011. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, floodwaters from the Brisbane River have flowed into Wolston Creek and then into Bullock Head Creek causing them to rise and overflow. Bullock Head Creek has overflowed to inundate the reserve and stormwater channel to the east of your property with floodwaters then inundating surrounding properties including yours on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Dairyfarm Lane
CEDAR CREEK QLD 4520

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building located at [REDACTED] Dairyfarm Lane, Cedar Creek on 11 January 2011.

In particular you have claimed for damage to your rock wall, steps, timber post and wire fence, the washing away of an area of soil, and the removal of debris adjacent to your fence on the upper side of your property.

As you know, we appointed two assessors to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8, 12 and 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your home building occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14:

Erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel,

Soil movement or settlement"

Your Policy also states in the section, "Other costs" on page 19:

"We will also pay for the following where applicable:

Demolition and removal of debris

We will pay the reasonable cost of, and, at our option, arrange for the:

removal of debris from the site necessary for repairing or rebuilding ..."

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your rock wall, steps, timber post and wire fence is covered by your policy under the insured event of Storm and Rainwater. These components of your claim will be covered subject to any conditions, excesses or further assessments required.

The washing away of an area of soil on your property is not covered due to the general exclusions of washing away of soil and soil movement on page 14 of your Policy.

The cleaning or clearing of debris that has accumulated adjacent to your fence on the upper side of your property has not been accepted under this claim as this in itself is not an event insured by your Policy, and is not covered by the removal of debris provisions on page 19 of your Policy.

As your Policy can only respond on the above basis, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered in full on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Dear Mr [REDACTED],

Your AAMI building insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the loss of your poly fibre jetty located at [REDACTED] Ramsey Court, Dundathu QLD 4650 on or about 9 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for your cooperation in this regard.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8 to 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains the specific insured events that your Policy covers.

Our decision on your insurance claim:

You have advised us that the damage to your jetty was most likely as a result of a large object which may have floated along the Mary River impacting your jetty and dislodging it from the steel cables holding it in place at the rear of your property.

Based on the available information we are not satisfied that the jetty was lost as a consequence of impact by an object specifically covered under your Policy.

Accordingly, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion since the damage you have claimed for is not as a result of an event that is insured under your Policy.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Aldersgate St, Corinda 4075 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River into the Pennywort and Oxley Creeks affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River into the Pennywort and Oxley Creeks, which are located approximately 600 metres to the east of your property on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5

working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Dumbarton Drive, Kenmore, 4069 on 12/01/2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Moggil Creek on or around 12 January 2011. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, we are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood after some initial inundation by stormwater runoff.

Specifically, your property was inundated up to a maximum depth of 50 mm above floor level by storm water runoff before flood waters from the Brisbane River flowing up Moggil Creek travelled over land and inundated your property to a height of 1.8m above floor level on or around 12 January 2011.

As your policy covers loss or damage caused by storm water runoff but not for loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered in full on this occasion. Your policy will only respond to the damage caused by initial stormwater runoff, subject to the relevant terms of your policy.

We will arrange for an assessor to attend your property and provide us with a report on the scope of work. We will then arrange for a builder to attend your property and provide us with a quote for the fair and reasonable cost of covered repairs.

We confirm that the acceptance of your claim for damage to home and contents in 2009 was at AAMI's absolute discretion. On that occasion the assessed damage was settled as a Storm & Rainwater claim. We confirm that AAMI considers each claim for damage separately and is under no contractual obligation to accept a future claim as a consequence of any previous claim decisions as each claim is considered on its own facts.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. covered for damage or loss to your home building occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, overland floodwaters from Oxley Creek approximately 350m to the west of your property have mixed with water escaping from a drain on your property to inundate your house on or around 13 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood of this type, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5

working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:

Dear Ms ██████████

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: ██████████

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at ██████████ Melbourne St Brassall 4305 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Mihi Creek on or about 12 January. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Dear Mr [REDACTED],

Your AAMI building insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the damage to your building located at [REDACTED] Hilliup Street, Westlake QLD 4074 on 14 January 2011.

In particular you have claimed for cracking to your internal walls and damage to your retaining wall.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property on 31 January 2011 and again on 7 April 2011, to inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8 to 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains the specific insured events that your Policy covers.

Our decision on your insurance claim:

You have advised us that the damage to your internal walls and retaining wall was most likely as a result of the heavy rains and stormwater which occurred during the January 2011 flood event.

On this occasion, we are not satisfied that the cracking to your internal walls and the damage to your retaining wall was caused by the heavy rains in January 2011. It appears that both the cracking to your internal walls and the movement to your retaining wall are pre-existing and are as a result of normal wear and tear.

We refer you to page 14 of your Policy which states as follows:

What we do not cover – general exclusions:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

- Wear and tear..."

We regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion since the damage you have claimed for is not as a result of an event that is insured under your Policy.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood.

Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 400m to the north east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on the afternoon and evening of 12 January 2011 via Cubberla Creek and the gully adjacent to your property that forms part of the catchment.

We have considered the possibility that your property was inundated by stormwater runoff, however after reviewing rainfall data and the Hydrology Area Report we are satisfied that stormwater runoff inundation did not occur.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River which is located approximately 250m north east of your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

We note that the claims department has been in contact with you in relation to your ceiling repairs.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

[REDACTED] Woogaroo Street
Goodna QLD 4300

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building located at [REDACTED] Woogaroo St, Goodna Qld 4300 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We have reviewed our assessor's report in relation to the flood damage incurred by your property. We note that the report contains a reference to a water leak coming from the floorboards of the first storey bathroom. The report does not specify from which pipe the water is coming from but identifies leaking at a significant rate through the underside of the timber floorboards. You may wish to pursue a separate "Escape of Liquid" claim for any damage suffered as a result of the pipe leak. If you wish to proceed on this basis, please phone AAMI on 13 22 44 so that we can initiate the appropriate investigations and consider your claim.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Woogaroo Creek affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading,

'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your home was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of Woogaroo Creek, which is located approximately 50 m south east of your property on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

DALBY QLD 4405

Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water and sewerage damage to your building and contents located [REDACTED] Nicholson Street on or around 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for your cooperation in this regard. Enclosed for your information and records is a copy of the Assessor's report.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated within close proximity of Myall Creek.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest rain station to your property is located at Dalby Airport. Rainfall data from the days leading up to and including 11 January 2011 indicates that there was heavy rainfall in your area which caused Myall Creek to break its banks and overflow into nearby properties.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Re: Damage to roof and drill

We understand that damage was sustained to your drill as a consequence of water leaking through a small hole in the metal roof of the workshop area. We note that you discussed this aspect of your claim with AAMI and agreed to lodge a separate claim in relation to your damaged drill and roof.

Re: Remaining property damage

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to the remainder of your property was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the failure of the Dalby Treatment Works, which caused sewerage to inundate your property, was a consequence of floodwater inundation from the overflow of Myall Creek on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Plumer Street Sherwood 4075 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Oxley Creek at the time on or around 13 January 2011 your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, overland floodwaters from Oxley Creek approximately 150m to the west of your property to inundate your house on or around 13 January 2011. Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood of this type, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Huxham Terrace Auchenflower 4066 on 10 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We obtained a site specific Hydrologist Report from WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd who attended your property on 18 February 2011. Their report indicates that the initial water inundation of the laundry up to 10cm was from stormwater runoff.

WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd has advised that the inundation to the remainder of your house (above 10cm) was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River on or around 11 January 2011. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, we accept that some initial damage to your property was caused by stormwater runoff, followed by a later event where Brisbane River floodwater entered your home.

As such, we are satisfied that the damage to concrete piles to the southern elevation of the property and the damage to building and contents located up to and including a maximum depth of ten centimetres (10cm) above the ground floor level of your home was not caused by overland floodwaters. Additionally, the ceilings to the upper level of the home were damaged when rainwater has entered through the roof.

On this basis we are pleased to inform you that damage to the concrete piles to the southern elevation, water damage to the 10cm level within the laundry and the ceilings upstairs will be covered under your Policy.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to your building and contents located higher than 10cm above ground level was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River which is located approximately 570m from your property has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear Mr and [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Platypus Court, Lawnton on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property to inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Geography:

We understand that the North Pine River is approximately 400m north west of your property and an unnamed tributary of North Pine river is approximately 100m west of your property.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood.

Specifically, the North Pine River approximately 400m to the north west of your property has risen and overflowed, causing overland floodwaters to inundate your property via an unnamed tributary to the North Pine River approximately 100m west of your property on or around 11 January 2011.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] Diane Court North Booval 4304 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Tarcoola Street, East Ipswich on 12 January 2011.

In addition to your main claim for your building and contents, you also have claimed for:

1. Damage to your internal ceilings to two bedrooms and a toilet; and
2. Damage to the front brick wall to sub-floor.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Bremer River at the time (12 January 2011) your property was affected. "You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the water damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Bremer river, which is located approximately 300 metres to the north of your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim for water damage is not covered on this occasion.

We note that you have two other sub-components to your claim. We have evaluated both of these claims against your policy cover and respond as follows:

1. Alleged hail storm damage on 21 November 2009 and subsequent rainwater entry/damage to the interior ceiling lining of two bedrooms and a toilet

We advise that our assessment has not identified any discernable damage to these parts of your home which could have clearly occurred in late 2009. Rather, we refer to the Cunningham & Lindsey assessment report which confirms that water levels inside your home exceeded the internal ceiling height.

Based on the information available, both from you and our assessor, we are not satisfied that you have established that there was any previous damage to your home which was caused by a hail storm during late 2009.

We confirm that our records show no notification or claim from you at that time, for any such water damage. Unfortunately, in these circumstances AAMI's position has been prejudiced by your failure to contact us since 2009 to advise us of any damage to your home. With the entire ceiling now subject to floodwater inundation, we are not prepared to accept that earlier damage occurred.

In this regard we refer you to page 13 of your Building Policy, which explains that AAMI does not cover the following under a Storm and Rainwater event:

"Damage or loss caused by water seeping into or otherwise entering your building due to:

A defect or fault in the design, structure or construction of your building where you could reasonably be expected to be aware of the defect or fault."

We also refer you to the first paragraph of page 27, which explains that when your property has been damaged, you need to phone us immediately.

For the above reasons AAMI is unable to accept your claim for rainwater damage to the internal ceilings in the two bedrooms and toilet.

2. Alleged storm/rainwater damage to your front brick wall to sub-floor

We refer you to the report of Cunningham & Lindsey in which the assessor advises that the high level of soil built up against the brick wall has caused its cracking and movement. Based on this assessment report and the assessment photographs available to us, we are not satisfied that storm/rainwater damage caused the cracking and movement of this brick wall.

We confirm that your Building Policy specifically excludes damage caused by or arising from "soil movement" (we refer to you the general exclusion found on page 14). In these circumstances, we are satisfied that the lateral pressure of the soil, on only one side of this lower brickwork, was the dominant cause of the damage. Any exacerbation of this condition was a result of rainwater or floodwater during January 2011 would not give rise to an acceptable claim under your policy.

As such we regret to inform you that this component of your claim has been declined.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 200m to the south of your property has risen and overflowed, inundating the low lying parklands approximately 50m to the north east of your property. The Brisbane River has continued to rise which has caused floodwaters to travel overland towards and inundate your property from the direction of the parklands. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer

[REDACTED] Dalrello Court
Glenvale Toowoomba QLD 4350

Dear M [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents located at [REDACTED] Davidson Street, Oakey QLD on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We also thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. The report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Oakey Creek at the time (Tuesday, 11 January 2011) your property was affected. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 150 m to the north west of Oakey Creek which runs through the township of Oakey.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest BOM recording station to your property is the Oakey Aero Rainfall Station. The relevant rainfall data is included in the enclosed WRM onsite hydrology report. Rainfall data leading up to and including 11 January 2011 indicates that there was heavy rainfall in your area which caused Oakey Creek to break its banks and overflow into nearby properties.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, we are satisfied that the damage to your property was caused by flood.

Specifically, Oakey Creek which is located approximately 150 m south east of your property has risen and overflowed due to the heavy rains in the area, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. Furthermore, the WRM onsite hydrology report concludes that the source of inundation to your property was overland floodwater from Oakey Creek. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

Dear [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Wendouree Cres Westlake 4074 on 12 of January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brisbane River at the time on or around 12 January 2011 your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Collins Street, Brassall Heights on or around 13 January 2011.

In particular, you have claimed for the cracking to the external brick wall of your home, and the damage to your basement level and contents.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property on 12 March 2011 and 13 April 2011, to inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Our decision on your insurance claim:

We have considered the circumstances of your claim and are pleased to inform you as follows:

Water Damage to Basement Level and Contents

We are pleased to inform you that this component of your claim has been accepted as we are satisfied that rain water runoff inundated this lower level of your home. Specifically, we are satisfied that your claim for damage is acceptable up to the height of 150mm elevation within the basement.

Cunningham Lindsey has supplied the following list of contents which were damaged by water. In order to settle these items, we will require either quotes or estimates to replace them to be provided by you for review.

- Cabinet
- Cabinet with glass
- Fridge repairs
- Chest of Drawers
- Wall Unit
- Desk
- Rugs
- Speakers
- Food Spoilage

For the building damage, we will arrange for a builder to contact you and they will attend to inspect and quote on the repairs required to the downstairs area. We will also arrange for the carpet to be replaced once the repairs have been started.

The accepted components of your claim will be subject to your policy excess and any other relevant policy conditions.

Damage to Brick Wall

We will engage a building specialist to inspect the damage to the external brick wall and provide you with our decision once we have received the expert report.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with any component of our decision explained above, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 40 metres to the south of your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. [REDACTED] Junction Road
BURPENGARY QLD 4505

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Junction Road, Burpengary on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage on 3 February 2011 and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We also thank you for allowing a second onsite assessment to be conducted on 29 April 2011.

Geography:

We understand that your home is located approximately 200 metres to the north of Burpengary Creek.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by flood, as that term is defined in your policy.

Specifically, we believe that overland floodwaters from Burpengary Creek, which is located approximately 200 m to the south of your home, have mixed with water escaping from nearby street drains and stormwater runoff to inundate your property on 11 January 2011.
Alternatively, it is our view that the rainwater runoff and any drain escape water was unable to flow away from the vicinity of your home as a result of the Burpengary Creek already breaking its normal banks and flooding towards your home.

Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood of this type, we regret to inform you that your claim has not been accepted.

We confirm that AAMI is not obligated to accept an insurance claim based on any previous claim outcome. AAMI reviews each claim against the policy in place at the time of the claimed event and is legally entitled to determine its liability against that policy. Any previous claim accepted for water damage to your property was at AAMI's absolute discretion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Mr and M [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your property located at [REDACTED] Rangeview Road, Morayfield QLD on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen. We also thank you for providing us with a disc of coloured photographs of your damaged contents.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated adjacent to Sheep Station Creek at Morayfield.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by flood. Specifically, Sheep Station Creek located adjacent to your property, has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Richmond Street Corinda on 11 – 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage. We additionally appointed a hydrological engineer to inspect your property and its surrounds and provide a written report as to the cause of the water inundation. We thank you for allowing both assessments and your continued patience in allowing us to complete our enquiries into your claim.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

The WRM hydrology investigation specific to your home explains that the inundation of its ground level was initially caused by water escaping drains. Higher levels of floodwater from the Brisbane River subsequently inundated your home on 11 – 13 January, 2011. Please find enclosed a complete copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was ultimately inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, viewing publically available aerial mapping and reviewing the documents you have provided, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by an initial inundation of water escaping stormwater drains, followed by overland flood to a far higher inundation level.

We are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents in your home up to and including 60 cms above ground level was not caused by overland flood. Rather, the damage was caused by water escaping drains near your property. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover this portion of your claim.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to your building and contents located higher than 60 cms above the ground level of your home was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River which is located some 150 m from your property has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

We apologise for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Drysdale Street, Mount Ommaney 4074 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We also thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

The on-site hydrology report provided by WRM indicates that the inundation was caused by initial stormwater runoff followed by floodwater escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River on 12 – 13 January, 2011. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or
- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, viewing publically available aerial mapping and reviewing the documents you have provided, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by an initial inundation of water escaping stormwater drains then and overland flood to a far higher level.

We are satisfied that the damage to that the damage to the ceiling of the top floor of your dwelling was caused by water entry through your home's roof during the storm. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover the portion of your claim. Your case Manager will contact you regarding the settlement of this portion of your claim.

We are satisfied that the damage to your building and contents located on the lower level of your dwelling up to and including 100 mm above ground level was not caused by overland flood. Rather, the damage was caused by stormwater runoff. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover this portion of your claim.

We are also satisfied that the damage to your building and contents located in your garage up to and including 250 mm above ground level was not caused by overland flood. Rather, the damage was caused by stormwater runoff. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover this portion of your claim

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to your building and contents located higher than 100mm (lower level home) and 250mm (garage) above ground level was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River which is located 400 m to the north-west of your property has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Braggan Street Gailes 4300 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Brisbane River at the time on or around 11 January 2011 your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, floodwater inundation from the overflow of Woogaroo Creek (less than 200m from your property) and the adjoining Brisbane River (approximately 1km from your property), on or around 11 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River approximately 1km to the north of your property on or around 11 January 2011.

Alternatively, we accept that minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when the damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, an unnamed tributary of the Brisbane River to the north of your property has received floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow and floodwaters to subsequently travel overland and inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

Dear Mr & [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] Capitol Drive, Jindalee, 4074 on 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River on or around 12 January 2011. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

We acknowledge that an insignificant amount of floodwater may have escaped nearby drains around your property however we are satisfied that any drain escape water would have promptly mixed with overland floodwaters from Bundamba Creek before inundation to your property occurred. We specifically refer you to the Government aerial mapping (noted above) which depicts the overland movement of flood water from Bundamba Creek. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood of this type, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Moores Pocket Rd Moores Pocket Qld 4305 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Bremer River that affected your property. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Bremer River, which is located within close proximity to your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Kanangra Close, Karana Downs on or around 12 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed assessors to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Geography:

We note that an unnamed watercourse runs past your property to the east into Kupa Park which is a low lying area of your suburb. Between Kupa Park and the Brisbane River east of your property is the Karana Downs Country Club, also a low lying area of your suburb.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

The report indicates that your property was ultimately inundated by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River at the time your property was affected. We specifically refer you to the river height data which indicates the time at which the Brisbane River peaked in the vicinity of your property.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was ultimately inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood.

Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 1km east of your property rose and overflowed to inundate the low lying areas of your suburb (Karana Downs Country Club and Kupi Park). As Brisbane River water levels continued to rise, overland floodwaters have flowed into the unnamed watercourse east of your property, causing it to rise and overflow and floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on 12 January 2011.

We accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your home may have been from insignificant stormwater runoff in the immediate vicinity of your property. We are satisfied that any stormwater present would have mixed with overland floodwaters before or at the time water damage occurred to your property. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and stormwater runoff.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Please accept our apology for the delay in providing you with this decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears the damage was caused by floodwater from the overflow of Six Mile Creek, a tributary of the Brisbane River which is located a short distance to the east of your property, on or around 12 January 2011. Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from stormwater drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obliged to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 50 metres to the rear of your property on or around 12 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

[REDACTED] Curtis Street
BUNDABERG SOUTH QLD 4670

Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents located at [REDACTED] Curtis Street, Bundaberg QLD 4670 on or around 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for your cooperation in this regard.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 400 m to the south east of Saltwater Creek.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Mould, wet or dry rot, rising damp or dampness."

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is our view that the damage to the following items was caused by stormwater runoff entering the premises:

1. Dining suite solid timber table, six chairs and two high stools;
2. Orla keyboard;
3. Photos of various sizes (approximately 10);
4. Various sets of children's books;
5. Various craft books;
6. Various medical books and university books;
7. Kodak digital camera;
8. Photo printer (prints photos from slides);
9. Bags and boxes of dressmaking material;
10. Breville electric grill;
11. Modern Living sandwich grill;
12. Three wall pictures;
13. One picture of a farm scene;
14. Two pictures of ducks;
15. Two pictures of angels;
16. Slide projector;
17. Padded organ stool;
18. Three oil paintings.

Since property damage caused by storm and rainwater inundation is insured under your Policy, we are pleased to inform you that your Policy will cover the loss and/or damage to the above items on this occasion.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to the remainder of your contents was caused solely by mould, the cause of which is most likely to be due to the prolonged wet season and general atmospheric conditions. As your Policy does not cover damage caused by mould, we regret to inform you that the remainder of your contents claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Dear Mr [REDACTED] & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Juba Street Riverhills 4074 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report which has been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms¹ that have investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River at the time your property was affected. This report is substantial (over 260 pages) and made up of two volumes. You can view it online and download a copy at www.insurancecouncil.com.au

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

¹ The joint hydrology report has been issued by WRM Water and Environment, Water Matters International and Worley Parsons. It is titled 'Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment, January 2011'.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 300m to the North West of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property via the parklands immediately behind your property.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Visentin RD
MORAYFIELD QLD 4506

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Visentin Road, Morayfield QLD 4506 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a site-specific hydrology report from WRM Water and Environment that has investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

The report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Caboolture River, Sheep Station Creek and an unnamed watercourse at the time (11 January 2011) your property was affected. We enclose a copy of this report.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8, 12 and 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your home building occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

page 14:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building was caused by flood. Specifically, your property was inundated on 11 January 2011 by a combination of floodwaters from watercourses surrounding your property, being the Caboolture River to the north, Sheep Station Creek to the south and an unnamed tributary to the west. Given the small size of the catchment that drains to your house, the rainfall data and the reported time of inundation, stormwater runoff would not have inundated your property prior to the arrival of the floodwater. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Aitkinhead St, Bundaberg QLD 4670 on 29 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a site-specific hydrology report from WRM Water and Environment that has investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

The report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Burnett River at the time (29 December 2010) your property was affected. We enclose a copy of this report.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, the Burnett River approximately 800m to the west of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property via a constructed open channel approximately 100m to the north of your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your home contents at [REDACTED] Ward Place Emerald 4720 on 30 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrologist Area Report from WRM Water Environment Pty Ltd on the cause and timing of inundation in the area of your home. Their report shows that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Nogoia River from 29 December 2010 to 3 January 2011. We enclose a copy of the report for your information.

We also obtained an individual Water Damage Assessment of your claim by WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd, confirming the inundation was caused by flood. We enclose a copy of this assessment for your perusal.

Your Insurance Policy:

Your Home Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', provides that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

Your Home Contents Insurance Policy PDS further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home contents was caused by flood. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. EMERALD QLD 4720

Dear [REDACTED]

Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your home contents at [REDACTED] Judith Grove Emerald 4720 on the 1st January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrologist Area Report from WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd on the cause and timing of inundation in the area of your home. Their report shows that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Nogoa River from 29/12/2010 to 03/01/2011. We enclose a copy of the report for your information.

We also obtained an individual Water Damage Assessment of your claim by WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd, confirming the inundation was caused by flood. We enclose a copy of this assessment for your perusal.

Your Insurance Policy:

Your Home Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', provides that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

“You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Home Contents Insurance Policy PDS further states in the section “What we do not cover – general exclusions” on page 22:

Flood”

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home contents was caused by flood. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Hinkler Street
Bundaberg QLD 4670

Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Hinkler Street, Bundaberg QLD on 29 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We also thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. The report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Burnett River at the time (Thursday, 30 December 2010) your property was affected. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 950m north of the Burnett River which runs through the township of Bundaberg.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest BOM recording station to your property is the Bundaberg Aero Rainfall Station. The relevant rainfall data is included in the enclosed WRM onsite hydrology report. Rainfall data leading up to 30 December indicates that there was heavy rainfall over 27 and 28 December 2010.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Furthermore, the WRM onsite hydrology report concludes that the source of inundation to your property was overland floodwater from the Burnett River. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Further, the WRM report concludes that whilst your fridge/freezer was not inundated directly by floodwaters from any water course, the proximate cause of damage to the power box supplying power to the fridge/freezer was the inundation of floodwater from the Burnett River. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim for spoiled food is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] antitha Street, Bundaberg QLD on 30 December 2010.

We thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by floodwater escaping and overflowing from the Burnett River and Saltwater Creek at the time (Thursday, 30 December 2010) your property was affected. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 300m to the south of Saltwater Creek, which is a tributary of the Burnett River.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest rain station to your property is located at the Bundaberg Airport. Rainfall data leading up to 30 December 2010 indicates that there was heavy rainfall over 27 and 28 December 2010. George Street
BUNDABERG QLD 4670

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] George Street Street, Bundaberg QLD.

We thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 200 m to the south east of Saltwater Creek, which is a tributary of the Burnett River and runs through the township of Bundaberg.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest rain station to your property is located at the Bundaberg Airport. Rainfall data leading up to and including 28 December 2011 indicates that there was heavy rainfall in your area which caused the Burnett River to break its banks and overflow into Saltwater Creek, which in turn broke its banks and overflowed into nearby properties. The relevant rainfall data is included in the enclosed WRM onsite hydrology report.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by flood. Specifically, Saltwater Creek which is a tributary of the Burnett River and located approximately 200 m north west of your property, has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from stormwater water escaping stormwater drains, at the time of the main flood event. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain or drains. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. Flood"

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home contents was caused by flood. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and have the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of the decision of our Consumer Appeals Service. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

ROCKHAMPTON QLD 4700

Dear Mrs & Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Quay Street Rockhampton 4700 on 29 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report from hydrologists WRM Water and Environment. This firm has investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Fitzroy River from 27 December 2010 to mid January 2011. We enclose a copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, “You are not covered”, further states that you are not covered for:

“Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, “What we do not cover – general exclusions” on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

flood”

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Fitzroy River, which is located approximately 150m north east of your property. As your policy does not cover loss of damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

The PDS for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on page 14) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on page 22) also states in the section. "What we do not cover – general exclusions":

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home building and home contents was caused by flood. As your policies do not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeals Service is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

BUNDABERG QLD 4670

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Fagg Street, Bundaberg QLD on 29 December 2010.

We thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by floodwater escaping and overflowing from the Burnett River and Paddy Creek, at the time (Wednesday, 29 December 2010) your property was affected. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated between Paddy Creek, which is located to the north of your property and the Burnett River, which is located to the south of your property.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, “What we do not cover – general exclusions” on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

flood”

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by flood. We are satisfied that the house and shed on your property were inundated above floor level by floodwaters overflowing from the Burnett River. We further accept that it is possible that your property was initially inundated by Burnett River water backing up Paddy Creek from the north east. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your property located at [REDACTED] The Boulevarde, Theodore, QLD on or around 27 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen. We also thank you for providing us with a disc of coloured photographs of your damaged contents.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated between Castle Creek and the Dawson River.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing publically available aerial mapping, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by flood. Specifically, Castle Creek and the Dawson River, both located within a short distance of your property, have risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

Your AAMI contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents at [REDACTED] Baker Street Emerald 4720 on 6 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report from hydrologists WRM Water and Environment. This firm has investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Nogoa River at the time your property was affected. We enclose a copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

“You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section “What we do not cover – general exclusions” on page 22:

Flood”

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Lathouras court, Bundaberg QLD on or around 29 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

We also thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is located approximately 80 metres to the east of Washpool Creek.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

Please note that our claims department will be in contact with you shortly to discuss the frozen food component of your claim.

We apologise to you for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal

Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Victor Street Allenstown 4700 on 29 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report from hydrologists WRM Water and Environment. This firm has investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Fitzroy River on or about 29 December 2010. We enclose a copy of this report for your records.

Queensland Government aerial flood mapping:

We additionally refer you to publically available aerial flood mapping on the Queensland Reconstruction Authority's website: www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map. This mapping, made available by the Queensland Government, indicates that your home was inundated by floodwater.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the Fitzroy River, located to the east of your property, on or about 29 December 2010. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Alfred Street
ST GEORGE QLD 4487

Dear [REDACTED]

Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your home building and home contents at [REDACTED] Alfred Street St George 4487 on the 10 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We also obtained an individual water damage assessment of your claim by WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd. Their report shows that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Balonne River which peaked on 9 January 2011 at 13.2m. We enclose a copy of the report for your information.

Your Insurance Policy:

The Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on pages 8 and 12) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on pages 16 and 18) under the heading "What we cover – insured events", provides you are covered for damage or loss to your home building and your home contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

The Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on pages 9 and 13) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on pages 17, 19 and 21) under the headings, "You are not covered for", provides that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

The PDS for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on page 14) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on page 22) also states in the section. "What we do not cover – general exclusions":

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home building and home contents was caused by flood. As your policies do not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

The acceptance of your claim for damage to your property in March 2010 was at AAMI's absolute discretion and was settled at the time as a Storm & Rainwater claim. We confirm that AAMI considers each claim for damage separately and is under no contractual obligation to accept a future claim as a consequence of any previous claim decisions.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeals Service is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of the decision of our Consumer Appeals Service. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Holberton Street
TOOWOOMBA QLD 4350

Dear Mrs & M [REDACTED]

Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your home building and home contents at [REDACTED] Holberton Street Toowoomba 4350 on 10 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Assessment Report:

Cunningham Lindsey attended on 22 February 2011 to assess the damage to your property. Cunningham Lindsey has confirmed that rain water runoff caused inundation of the shed causing damage to contents stored within. Fencing was also affected by rainwater runoff. We also enclose a copy of this assessment report.

As part of your claim, you have submitted quotes for replacement of the content items which were stored within the shed that suffered water damage. You have also submitted a quote to pull-up and relay pavers in the driveway and to supply and lay replacement 'Peaches and Cream' rock around the shed.

Your Insurance Policy:

The Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on pages 8 and 12) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on pages 16 and 18) under the heading "What we cover – insured events", provides you are covered for damage or loss to your home building and your home contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

The PDS for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on page 14) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on page 22) also states in the section. “What we do not cover – general exclusions”:

- Erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel
- Soil movement or settlement and
- The washing away or movement of the surface of any path or driveway which has a surface consisting of a loose material such as gravel, stone or dirt.”

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home contents stored within the shed was caused by an inundation of rainwater runoff. We have therefore been able to accept this part of your claim.

Based on the information we have obtained, we believe that the damage to the driveway has been caused by the washing away of soil, earth or gravel from under the pavers allowing them to move. In relation to the ‘Peaches and Cream’ rocks around the shed, we believe that these have been washed away by rainwater runoff.

As your policies do not cover loss or damage caused by the erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel, we regret to inform you that that portion of your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeals Service is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au.

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of the decision of our Consumer Appeals Service. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

[REDACTED] Long Street
EMERALD QLD 4720

Dear [REDACTED]

Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your home contents at [REDACTED] Long Street Emerald 4720 on the 29 December 2010.

As you know, we appointed an assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrologist Area Report from WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd on the cause and timing of inundation in the area of your home. Their report shows that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Nogoa River from 29 December 2010 to 3 January 2011. We enclose a copy of the report for your information.

We also obtained an individual Water Damage Assessment of your claim by WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd, confirming the inundation was caused by flood. We enclose a copy of this assessment for your perusal.

Your Insurance Policy:

Your Home Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', provides that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Home Contents Insurance Policy PDS further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

Flood"

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home contents was caused by flood. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Tattler Court
MORAYFIELD QLD 4506

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Tattler Court, Morayfield on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen. Thank you also for allowing a second assessment on 14 April 2011.

Geography:

We understand that your home is located approximately 100 metres north of Sheep Station Creek.

Your AAMI building and contents insurance policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant mapping, it is evident that the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood, as that term is defined in your AAMI policy.

Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Sheep Station Creek, which is some 100 metres to the south of your property on or around 11 January 2011. In this instance we advise that the policy's definition of flood includes the covering of normally dry land by water that:

- overflows from a creek, or
- cannot enter a creek because that creek is already full.

Accordingly, we accept that if any rainwater runoff or water escaping from nearby drains, within the vicinity of your home, did contribute to the local floodwater height, that height was achieved as a result of water joining the already heightened Creek level and its overflow.

Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obliged to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and other water.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim has not been accepted.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

You are entitled to have this decision reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.aumailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Whitsunday Court
UPPER CABOOLTURE QLD 4510

Dear Mr [REDACTED] and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your contents located at [REDACTED] Beerburrum Rd, Elimbah on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

However, we note that you declined our offer to attend your property and conduct a further on-site inspection and to talk to you. Despite this, we have made our decision on the information currently available to us and we are satisfied of the cause of loss as detailed below in our decision.

Geography:

We understand that your property is located in Elimbah and that King John Creek runs through your property adjacent to Beerburrum Road.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest rain station to your property is Beerburrum Forest Station which indicates that 132.8mm of rainfall fell on 10 January 2011 and 180mm on 11 January 2011.

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21 under the heading 'What we cover – insured events', explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

It also states:

"You are not covered for:

Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

Your Policy further states in the section "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 22:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

Flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, we are satisfied that King John Creek has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to inundate your property on or around the morning of 11 January 2011. Alternatively, we are satisfied that local stormwater runoff from around your property was unable to enter King John Creek because it was already full or overflowing.

Floods of these types are excluded by your policy and we confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and stormwater runoff. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne City Mail Centre, Victoria, 8001, fax on 1300 316 047, telephone on 1300 130 794 (9 am – 5 pm EST Monday to Friday) or e-mail to consumerappeals@aami.com.au mailto:

If you are not satisfied with the response from our Consumer Appeals Service you may be entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) for a review of that decision. The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission. AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Contact details for the FOS will be provided by our Consumer Appeals Service on the completion of its review.

We understand that Cressbrook Creek runs through the township of Toogoolawah and approximately 150m to the east of your property.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest rain station to your property is located at Toogoolawah Post Office. Rainfall data from the days leading up to and including January 10 indicates that there was heavy rainfall in your area.

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (your Policy) (on pages 8, 12 and 13) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your home building occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or
is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Policy also states in the section, “What we do not cover – general exclusions” on page 14:

flood”

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents (with the exception of damage as a result of water entry through the roof which is discussed below) was caused by flood. Specifically, Cressbrook Creek approximately 350m to the east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 10 January 2011. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion for the damage caused by the flood.

In relation to the damage as a result of water entry through the roof we advise that this component of your claim is covered, subject to the relevant terms of your policy. We will arrange for a builder to attend your property and provide us with a quote for the fair cost of covered repairs.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. MARBURG QLD 4346

Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Queen Street, Marburg on or around 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed assessors to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Geography:

We understand that Black Snake Creek is approximately 100m west of your property and flows from south to north. We also understand there is a watercourse (an unnamed tributary of Black Snake Creek) which runs from the south west and behind your property to converge with Black Snake Creek approximately 900m north of your property.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM) which provides an indication of the rainfall totals in your area at the time your property was inundated. It is noted that there was some rainfall in your area in the days leading up to significant rainfall events on 10, 11 and 12 January 2011.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, the watercourse behind your property rose and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 11 January 2011.

As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Please accept our apology for the delay in providing you with our decision.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

[REDACTED] Mannikin Street
Narangba Qld 4504

Dear Mr & Mrs Laszlo,

Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your home building and home contents at [REDACTED] Mannikin Street, Narangba Qld 4504 on 11 January 2011 at 12.00pm.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We also obtained an individual water damage assessment of your claim by WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd. Their report shows that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from Burpengary Creek, which peaked on 11 January 2011 at approx 12.35pm. We enclose a copy of the report for your information.

Your Insurance Policy:

The Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on pages 8 and 12) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on pages 16 and 18) under the heading "What we cover – insured events", provides you are covered for damage or loss to your home building and your home contents while they are in your home or at the site, occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

The Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on pages 9 and 13) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on pages 17, 19 and 21) under the headings, "You are not covered for", provides that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

The PDS for your Home Building Insurance Policy (on page 14) and for your Home Contents Insurance Policy (on page 22) also states in the section. "What we do not cover – general exclusions":

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our Decision On Your Claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, it is evident that the damage to your home building and home contents was caused by flood. As your policies do not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your Right to Have This Decision Reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our response, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeals Service is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. Should you wish to exercise this right, please write to: The Consumer Appeals Service, AAMI, PO Box 14180, Melbourne

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Donely Street
Oakey QLD 4401

Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Donely Street, Oakey QLD 4401 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for allowing this to happen.

Hydrology Report:

We have obtained a Hydrology Area Report from hydrologists WRM Water and Environment. This firm has investigated the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

Their report indicates that the inundation was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Oakey Creek at the time (11 January 2011) your property was affected. We enclose a copy of this report for your records.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,
the normal confines of any watercourse or lake including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir or canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy also states in the section, "What we do not cover – general exclusions" on page 14 for Building and page 22 for Contents:

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood. Specifically, it appears that the damage was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Oakey Creek approximately 300 metres to the south east of your property on or around 11 January 2011.

Alternatively, we accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from storm water runoff, at the time of the main flood event. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and storm water runoff. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by flood, we regret to inform you that your claim is not covered on this occasion.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Dear Mr and [REDACTED],

Your AAMI building and contents insurance claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for contacting AAMI to tell us about the water damage to your building and contents located at [REDACTED] Donely Street, Oakey QLD 4401 on 11 January 2011.

As you know, we appointed an Assessor to attend your property and inspect the damage and we thank you for your cooperation in this regard.

We also thank you for allowing an onsite hydrology investigation to be conducted by WRM Water and Environment. The report indicates that the inundation was caused by initial stormwater runoff followed by floodwater escaping and overflowing from the Oakey Creek at the time (11 January 2011) your property was affected. Please find enclosed a copy of this report for your records.

Geography:

We understand that your property is situated approximately 300 m north west of Oakey Creek which runs through the township of Oakey.

Rainfall Data:

We have obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM). The closest BOM recording station to your property is the Oakey Aero Rainfall Station. The relevant rainfall data is included in the enclosed WRM onsite hydrology report. Rainfall data leading up to and including 11 January 2011 indicates that there was heavy rainfall in the vicinity of your property.

Your AAMI Building and Contents Insurance Policy:

Your AAMI Building Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 8, 12 and 13) and your AAMI Contents Insurance Policy Product Disclosure Statement (on pages 16, 18, 19 and 21) (together referred to in this letter as your Policy) under the heading, 'What we cover – insured events' explains that you are covered for damage or loss to your building or contents occurring during the period of cover and caused by:

"Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface."

Your Policy (on pages 9 and 13 for Building and pages 17, 19 and 21 for Contents) under the heading, "You are not covered", further states that you are not covered for:

"Damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

"You are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving:

flood"

Our decision on your insurance claim:

After careful consideration of the information and reports we have obtained, viewing publically available aerial mapping and reviewing the documents you have provided, it is our view that the damage to your property was caused by initial stormwater runoff followed by a higher level of overland flood.

We are satisfied that the damage to your property located up to and including 10 cm above floor level in your rumpus room and up to and including 20 cm above floor level in your three sheds was not caused by overland flood. Rather, the damage was caused by stormwater runoff. On this basis we are pleased to inform you that your policy will cover this portion of your claim.

Unfortunately the information and reports we have obtained indicate that the damage to the remainder of your property (the higher portions) was caused by flood. Specifically, Oakey

Creek which is located approximately 300 m to the south east of your property has risen and overflowed causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. As your policy does not cover loss or damage caused by overland flood, we regret to inform you that this portion of your claim has not been accepted.

Your right to have this decision reviewed:

If you are not satisfied with our decision, you are entitled to have it reviewed at no cost to you by our Consumer Appeals Service (referred to in policy booklets as the AAMI Customer Ombudsman or the AAMI Consumer Appeal Service), who will respond to you within 5 working days of receiving your telephone call, letter or e-mail. The Consumer Appeal Service team is independent of this Department and has the appropriate experience, knowledge and authority to carry out a review.

Your participation in this review process does not affect or compromise your entitlement to seek remedies elsewhere or to issue legal proceedings. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Jutland Street
OXLEY QLD 4075

Dear M [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you do not live anywhere near the Oxley creek and believe your place has been flooded due to storm water runoff. You advised the hydrologist report is technical but you are unable to see where it says the cause was flood waters. You advised you have a storm drain at the back of your house and advised the assessor said he could not see how the damage was from a body of water. You want the claim covered as damage was from storm water drains.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor, Hydrology Area Report and the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 6 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and Hydrology Area Report in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I acknowledge your assertions that you live nowhere near Oxley Creek and that the assessor has incorrect findings in the final report including your vicinity to swamp areas and creeks, comments you allegedly made in regards to rebuilding flooded properties as well as other non factual statements. I accept your assertion that if the decision has been made in any way to deny claim based on the assessors report it is incorrect. However, I can confirm the main basis of the decision has been based on the Hydrology Area Report and unfortunately I am bound by this Hydrology Area Report which states your property was inundated by flood waters escaping or overflowing from Oxley Creek.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Oxley Creek or one or more of its tributaries, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Your Reference: [REDACTED]

Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 18 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Pages 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that her whole house had been flooded.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 20 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 18 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Contents policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the contents policy booklet.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 20 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note there is no dispute your client has received the relevant Product Disclosure Statement (Policy) containing the exclusions in the policy. However, you believe that flood is covered by the policy unless it is shown that there is an exclusion which has been clearly communicated to your client, which you allege has not been to your client in this matter. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act (the Act) to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion and the Corporations Act 2001 requiring clear, concise and effective disclosure..

Section 35 of the Act provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your client's policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

While I appreciate you believe your client's property was inundated by storm and rain water runoff I am satisfied there is no evidence before me to substantiate that view. As stated above I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 4 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Brisbane River which flowed into and flooded Ferny Gully, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that you were forced to evacuate the unit as the ground floor had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report on the extent of damage to your property. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 28 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you have concerns on the accuracy of the information contained in the Cunningham & Lindsey report, AAMI's letter and AAMI's reliance on the information provided in the Hydrology Area Report.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 28 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I have considered your opinion that the information contained in the AAMI letter is incorrect. However, I have viewed the relevant flood mapping and I accept that the flood was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflowing of the Oxley Creek which received significant volumes of floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

In regard to your comments relating to the Cunningham & Lindsey report, I accept you believe there are errors in the report. However, I note that the report provided by Cunningham & Lindsey formed only part of the evidence relied upon when considering your claim and I am satisfied these errors did not influence the outcome of your claim.

I have also considered your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham & Lindsey on 29 January 2011, and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Ms [REDACTED],

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 19 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Pages 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that due to the floods water had damaged their contents.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 7 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 19 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the contents policy booklet.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 7 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI prior to the assessment that your clients were told to dispose of damaged items and take photographs as evidence of owning these items. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations your clients have acted in reliance on that statement to their detriment. That is, a number of salvageable items were thrown out as AAMI would replace them and had your clients not have been told that they would have salvaged these items. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of these misrepresentations.

I can confirm your clients contacted AAMI on 14 and 17 January 2011 and AAMI made further contact with your clients on 17 January 2011. The claim messages recorded are as follows:

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their contents. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied your client were assured any loss or damage to their contents would be covered by their policy. I do not accept your clients' loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI.

I am satisfied that the evidence suggests from the phone conversations with your client, in particular with Rachael Dobbie on 17 January 2011 that your client advised the contents were left outside. I am also satisfied your clients were not advised that their claim was covered at any time. I accept that the onus is on the insured to mitigate any further losses after an event that may be covered under an insurance policy. That is, if contents items were salvageable or if your clients were unsure then they were required not to dispose of these items.

You dispute your clients received the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) containing the exclusions in the policy. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion. I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was printed on 23 March 2010 and lodged via Australia Post on 31 March 2010. I can confirm a copy of AAMI Contents Insurance Policy was enclosed. I can also confirm the mail was not returned for any reason.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However, I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

policies, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

While I appreciate you believe your client's property was inundated by storm and rain water runoff I am satisfied there is no evidence before me to substantiate that view. As stated above I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 26 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Stable Swamp Creek, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that your house, at 97 Elanora Way, Karalee had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 14 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you assert the information contained in the Cunningham & Lindsey report is incorrect and state you were not asked any of the questions at the assessment. You acknowledge that AAMI have the right to deny your claim, however you ask that AAMI do so on the correct information.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 14 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the answers to the questionnaire contained in the Cunningham & Lindsey report are incorrect, and whilst I acknowledge that the assessor may not have asked you these questions directly, I am satisfied that all of the information gathered regarding the cause of the damage is correct. I am guided not only by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor but also the hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the Bremer River, which borders the south west end of your property, which rose and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Page 10 of the Home Building policy provides you are covered for:

Impact - sudden and unexpected impact of any:

motor vehicle, aircraft, watercraft or space debris,

object falling from a motor vehicle or aircraft,

falling tree or part of a tree,

aerial, mast or satellite dish which breaks or collapses.

The Home Contents policy provides an additional benefit of spoiled frozen food. Page 31 of the policy states (in summary) we will pay for spoilage of frozen food caused by failure of public electricity supply to your home. The most that we will pay for this benefit is $400. No excess is payable.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 19 January 2011 to advise that your property had been affected by the recent flooding.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 28 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You wrote to my office on 7 May 2011 requesting a review of AAMI's decision with respect to two specific areas: the damage to your pontoon and food spoilage. You provided a copy of the report you obtained from Jetty Specialist advising the damage to your pontoon was caused by floating debris.

The matter was referred to AAMI management who accepted your claim for spoiled frozen food and settled you $400 as per the policy benefit. However, advised they would not cover the damage to your pontoon as the policy does not cover impact caused by debris or caused by flood.

You remain dissatisfied with AAMI's decision to not cover the damage to your pontoon as you believe the damage is covered under the terms of the policy. On this basis you now request that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including report you provided from Jetty Specialist.

I have also obtained a report from the external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the Brisbane area.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter dated 28 March 2011 which sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted for the reasons set out in your letter dated 7 May 2011.

In reviewing your claim and reasons for the denial I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the hydrologist in this matter. I would like to bring to your attention the following extracts from the Hydrologist report which can be located at www.insurancouncil.com.au:

'Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period 9 to 14 January were made up of releases from Wivenhoe Dam and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River. The water level response to these normal flood events in lower Lockyer Creek, in the lower Bremer River and in the lower Brisbane River was dwarfed by the subsequent water level rise associated with releases from Wivenhoe Dam over the period 0600 hours on Tuesday 11 January to 0300 hours on the morning of Wednesday 12 January.

It is concluded that releases from Wivenhoe Dam was the principal immediate cause of flooding along the reach of the Brisbane River downstream of the Dam, along the lower reaches of Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River, and along tributaries further downstream.

Given that rainfall across the Brisbane City LGA had ceased by 1800 hours on Tuesday 11 January, any flooding after this time will have been caused by waterflow inundation from the Brisbane River and its tributary creeks, it being noted that inundation along the tributaries was associated with backwater flooding from the Brisbane River (which in turn was principally caused by the dam release flood from Wivenhoe Dam).

Flooding along the mainstream of the Brisbane River and along the lower tributaries was principally caused by releases from Wivenhoe Dam.

Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period Sunday to Friday 9 to 14 January were made up of dam release floodwaters from Wivenhoe and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River.

I accept the current insurance law is that the proximate cause of a loss is the dominant or effective or operative cause, whether or not the last in time or the sole cause.

Based on the available evidence, it is my view that a number of storm and rainwater events over a long period of time contributed to the filling of the Wivenhoe Dam. Subsequent to the rising level of the Wivenhoe Dam I accept that it was human intervention in releasing water from the dam that caused a rapid flow of water which caused damage to your property. I accept that the dominant or effective cause of the damage was the rapid flow of river water. It is my view that the lateral force of water was strong enough to rip the pontoon out of its mooring.

I acknowledge you have obtained a report stating the damage was caused by impact from debris. However, unless it can be confirmed that the debris which caused the impact was one of the items covered by the policy, I am not satisfied that AAMI is liable to cover your claim.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your AAMI Home Building policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

Based on the information regarding the rapid flow of the Brisbane River, on balance I believe it is unlikely that all of the pontoons damaged during the flood event were impacted by debris. Rather, I accept that on balance the damage was caused by the lateral force of the water. Further, there is no evidence to support that your pontoon was impacted by an item specifically covered by the policy.

I acknowledge there is no exclusion in the policy for rapid river flow. While I accept that an exclusion does not apply, I am satisfied an insured event has not caused damage to your property. In the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that AAMI is entitled to deny cover to the whole of the damage to your property.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Page 31 of the policy booklet provides that AAMI will pay for spoilage of frozen food caused by failure of electricity supply to your home to a limit of $400.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 27 December 2010 to report it had been raining and water had entered your home, causing it to flood.

AAMI appointed a Suncorp Assessor, Greg Mickle, to attend your home to inspect the damage. Mr Mickle subsequently submitted a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood.

After considering Mr Mickle's report, AAMI wrote to you on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with AAMI's decision and you ask that AAMI cover the damage sustained to your contents, including the spoiled frozen food.

You now ask that I review this matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file, including Mr [REDACTED]'s report and Bureau of Meteorology Daily Weather Observations.

Damage to Building & Contents

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I understand that you have asked for your claim for the damage sustained to your contents to be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the assessor in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the overflow of the Undullah Creek causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Spoiled Frozen Food

Notwithstanding, I understand your food in your freezer was spoiled as a result of this event. The policy provides cover for additional benefits, such as 'Spoiled frozen food'. I accept the policy states that AAMI will pay for spoiled frozen food caused by failure of public electricity to your home other than because of industrial action.

I note AAMI has conducted enquiries into the failure of the electricity supply and was unable to substantiate their claim that flood (as defined in the policy) caused the electricity to fail, which therefore led to the spoilage of your food. In the circumstances, I am pleased to advise AAMI has agreed to accept and settle your claim for frozen food spoilage.

I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process this aspect of the claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request to my office that I review AAMI's decision regarding your recent claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as a Dispute Resolution to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

Your Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Home Building Insurance policy (the policy). In summary, the policy covers you for sudden and unexpected damage caused by the insured events listed on pages 8 to 13.

Page 14 (in summary) explains damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving structural failure or breakdown is excluded under all sections of the policy, as is damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving wear and tear, rust, deterioration or rot, erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel, soil movement or settlement.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 10 January 2011 to advise your home had been flooded and damaged by a severe storm. You arranged for quotations to repair some of the damage and AAMI arranged for Cunningham Lindsey to attend and report on the extent of the damage.

Your claim was accepted and after considering the quotes and the report regarding the damage to the paving, AAMI contacted you to confirm that the damage had occurred due to the soil under the pavers being washed away and therefore dislodging and shifting the pavers. You also confirmed the rocks were loose gravel and these were also washed away in the storm. AAMI explained the policy does not cover damage caused by the washing away of soil, earth or gravel. Further, the policy does not cover any damage associated with soil movement, settlement or erosion.

AAMI sent a letter to you on 11 April 2011 detailing their decision. You are dissatisfied with the decision and contacted my office via email on 4 May 2011. You state the policy covers you for storm and rainwater damage, and your paving was damaged by storm water flowing through your backyard due to the storm water drains overflowing. You state your driveway consists of brick paving and the damage was caused by extremely fast flowing storm water lifting the pavers from their surface. You dispute that the damage was caused by erosion which you believe occurs over time.

You now request that I review this matter.

My Decision

I have read all of the available material on the file.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your AAMI Home Building policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

It is no dispute that the proximate cause of the damage to your paving was caused by the storm. Rather, what is in dispute is whether AAMI is liable to cover the repair of the paving damage under your claim.

While I accept you believe the damage to the paving was a result of a storm and its subsequent deluge of water, it is my view the water from the storm caused the surrounding soil and sandy compacted fill to subside and wash away causing the paving to dislodge and shift. I am satisfied the policy is clear when it states any damage as a result of subsidence or the erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel is specifically excluded under the policy.

I accept the onus rests with you, the policyholder, to read your policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets your requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover you have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with you to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments. I accept that upon lodging a claim you are bound by the terms and conditions of the policy.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept you have been a loyal customer. I thank you for choosing us as your insurer in the past and I hope you will continue to do so. While I empathise with your circumstances, AAMI has an obligation to all its stakeholders, including policyholders, to ensure claim decisions are made in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy.

Consequently, I am satisfied AAMI's decision to not cover the damage to your paving is correct and in accordance with terms of your policy.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Page 10 of the policy provides you are covered for:

Impact - sudden and unexpected impact of any:

motor vehicle, aircraft, watercraft or space debris,

object falling from a motor vehicle or aircraft,

falling tree or part of a tree,

aerial, mast or satellite dish which breaks or collapses.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your pontoon had been washed away.

also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia regarding the cause of water inundation to the Brisbane River. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 18 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your pontoon was not caused by an insured event. Specifically, that an impact by an object covered by the policy had not caused the damage.

You wrote to my office on 29 April 2011 requesting a review of AAMI's decision. You referred to the report you obtained from Jetty Specialist advising the damage to your pontoon was caused by floating debris either natural and / or manmade. You remain dissatisfied with AAMI's decision to not cover the damage to your pontoon as you believe the damage is covered under the terms of the policy. On this basis you now request that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor, hydrologists, the report from Jetty Specialist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter dated 18 April 2011 which sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted for the reasons set out in your letter dated 29 April 2011.

In reviewing your claim and reasons for the denial I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the hydrologist in this matter. I would like to bring to your attention the following extracts from the Hydrologist report which can be located at www.insurancecouncil.com.au:

'Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period 9 to 14 January were made up of releases from Wivenhoe Dam and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River. The water level response to these normal flood events in lower Lockyer Creek, in the lower Bremer River and in the lower Brisbane River was dwarfed by the subsequent water level rise associated with releases from Wivenhoe Dam over the period 0600 hours on Tuesday 11 January to 0300 hours on the morning of Wednesday 12 January.

It is concluded that releases from Wivenhoe Dam was the principal immediate cause of flooding along the reach of the Brisbane River downstream of the Dam, along the lower reaches of Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River, and along tributaries further downstream.

Given that rainfall across the Brisbane City LGA had ceased by 1800 hours on Tuesday 11 January, any flooding after this time will have been caused by waterflow inundation from the Brisbane River and its tributary creeks, it being noted that inundation along the tributaries was associated with backwater flooding from the Brisbane River (which in turn was principally caused by the dam release flood from Wivenhoe Dam).

Flooding along the mainstream of the Brisbane River and along the lower tributaries was principally caused by releases from Wivenhoe Dam.

Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period Sunday to Friday 9 to 14 January were made up of dam release floodwaters from Wivenhoe and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River.

I accept the current insurance law is that the proximate cause of a loss is the dominant or effective or operative cause, whether or not the last in time or the sole cause.

Based on the available evidence, it is my view that a number of storm and rainwater events over a long period of time contributed to the filling of the Wivenhoe Dam. Subsequent to the rising level of the Wivenhoe Dam I accept that it was human intervention in releasing water from the dam that caused a rapid flow of water which caused damage to your property. I accept that the dominant or effective cause of the damage was the rapid flow of river water. It is my view that the lateral force of water was strong enough to rip the pontoon out of its mooring.

I acknowledge you have obtained a report stating the damage was caused by impact from debris. However, unless it can be confirmed that the debris which caused the impact was one of the objects covered by the policy, I am not satisfied that AAMI is liable to cover your claim.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your AAMI Home Building policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

Based on the information regarding the rapid flow of the Brisbane River, I do not accept on the balance of probabilities that an impact occurred. I believe it is unlikely that all other pontoons or jetties damaged during the flood event were impacted by debris. Rather, I accept that on the balance of probabilities the damage was caused by the lateral force of the water. Further, as there is no evidence to support that your pontoon was impacted by an object specifically covered by the policy, I am satisfied AAMI is entitled to deny cover for the pontoon, walkway and associated items.

I acknowledge there is no exclusion in the policy for rapid river flow. While I accept that an exclusion does not apply, I am satisfied an insured event has not caused damage to your property. In the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that AAMI is entitled to deny cover to the whole of the damage to your property.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr [REDACTED],

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (Hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 7 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the nearest watercourse is 1.8 kilometres away.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 7 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the O'Shea Gully causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

It is my understanding that you may have contradictory evidence refuting part or all of the hydrologists report which Peter Unwin, Manager of Investigations, has advised he will review once to hand. In the absence of sufficient evidence refuting the Hydrologist Area Report, the decision will be maintained that the claim is not accepted.

Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Reference: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that I review AAMI's decision regarding your recent claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review a complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Strata Title Landlord Insurance Policy (the policy).

Your policy is designed to provide you with financial protection against sudden and unexpected loss or damage to your home caused by the events set out on pages 12 to 17 of your policy booklet.

In addition page 7 explains AAMI will pay to repair or replace loss or damage to your landlord fixtures and fittings, including fixed floor coverings, internal blinds and curtains, in your lot or unit that are not insurable by the body corporate. AAMI will pay up to the amount covered shown on the most recent of your policy schedule and your renewal notice.

Page 34 explains what happens when you claim on your AAMI policy. In summary AAMI discusses with you what is necessary to make good the loss or damage and then they will decide either to repair or replace your insured property or pay the cost of repairing or replacing the insured property up to the amount covered.

Page 46 explains the current amount covered is shown on the most recent of your insurance schedule and your renewal notice.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 19 January 2011 to lodge a claim for damaged caused by recent rain and flooding. AAMI lodged a claim for you and arranged for external assessors, Cunningham & Lindsey to attend your property to inspect and report in the damage.

Upon receiving the Cunningham Lindsey report AAMI advised they would obtain a quote for their liability as your amount covered was $10,000. At this time you also advised the tenants still resided in the property so loss of rent would not apply to the claim.

On 8 June 2011 AAMI received a telephone call from your property manager to advise H & A Home Repair Services (H & A) had attended the property without your knowledge and completed the repairs. However, upon making further enquiries you confirmed signing a contract with H & A as you were not aware of the $10,000 amount covered. The cost of repairs was $14,138.92 and AAMI advised they would only be liable up to your amount covered of $10,000. As a result, any further costs including the hot water service would not be covered as the amount covered had already been exceeded.

You contacted my office unhappy with AAMI's decision. You stated the claim was to be cash settled however the repairer arrived and advised AAMI had authorised repairs to be carried out. You advised you have also paid for the hot water system ($1485), reconnection fee ($111.38) and had the garage fixed ($110). You stated that if you had been cash settled as initially discussed you would have arranged repairs for less than amount charged by H & A but as they were authorised by AAMI you allowed them to carry out repairs.

The matter was referred back to AAMI management for further review. You were advised your amount covered is $10,000 which was already exceeded. Therefore AAMI would not pay anything further on the claim. You did not agree and believe the contents should have been paid first or you should have just received the $10,000 as you believe you could have had the repairs and contents for this amount.

As you have remained dissatisfied with AAMI's decision the matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the information on your file.

Your AAMI Strata Title Landlord Insurance policy is a defined events policy and does not provide cover for all types of risk. I can confirm that the onus remains with you, the policyholder, to establish that a loss, which falls within the terms and conditions of your policy, has occurred.

I have reviewed your policy and confirm the amount covered of $10,000 is the maximum amount available for fixture and fittings and contents on this claim. I accept the policy clearly states you are covered up to the amount covered as stated on your insurance certificate.

I have reviewed the claims process and the fact an AAMI builder proceeded with repairs when only asked to provide a quotation. I accept there is no dispute that repairs were carried out to the amount of $14,138.92 which is well over your amount covered. I accept that you signed a contract with the repairer as you were unaware of the amount covered at the time.

While I accept you have received a settlement of your claim over your amount covered, I am satisfied that this does not necessitate that further costs be paid by AAMI. That is, any costs you have further incurred will not be met by AAMI as the amount covered of $10,000 has been exceeded.

I have discussed the matter with AAMI management as to who will bear the cost of the amount over and above the amount covered of $10,000. I have been given no indication that AAMI is seeking reimbursement of this from any party. However if AAMI or any other party ask that this extra cost is to be borne by you, you are entitled to a further review by my office on this aspect.

Accordingly, I am satisfied AAMI's decision is correct under the terms of the policy.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear M [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 6 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist, WRM Water & Environment (WRM) to confirm the cause of the water inundation.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 17 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as the neighbour across the road has been covered for sewerage and you have had the same sewerage issue causing similar damage. You advised you were put into accommodation by AAMI and was under the impression this was due to the fact that you were going to be covered for the claim. You advised the sewerage came up through the toilet and man hole but there was nothing in denial letter about the sewerage damage so you believe you should be covered.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 17 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of the Fitzroy River causing water to inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I have made enquiries into your statement that a neighbour from across the road was covered. I can confirm that coverage of this neighbour's claim was an administrative error which should not have been covered. However AAMI are not obligated and will not apply that error to correctly determined decisions within the Berserker / Rockhampton area and apologise for concern that this has caused you.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

RE: AAMI Claim Numbers: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 29 July 2011. My review is further to my letter to your clients dated 8 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients have lodged two claims with AAMI for water damage to their property. Claim 6702769800 is for damage attributed to rainwater entry and claim 6718831700 is for floodwater inundation.

Your clients were advised AAMI would consider both claims, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater is covered by the policy, damage caused by flood is not.

AAMI subsequently declined claim 6718831700 on the basis of it being attributed to flood damage. In regard to 6702769800, AAMI accepted the damage it agreed was caused by the insured events of storm and rainwater and issued a claim settlement accordingly:

Your clients have engaged the services of Consumer Credit Legal Centre. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission.

Regarding your position that AAMI did not clearly inform your clients of the flood exclusion in the policies by providing a policy booklet prior to inception of the policy, I am satisfied AAMI previously posted the relevant policy booklets to your clients when required to do so. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your clients the relevant documentation when required to do so. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policies, subject to any exclusions. The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklets. I do not agree with your assertion AAMI failed to clearly inform your client of the flood exclusion and I am satisfied AAMI is entitled to rely upon the exclusion.

I note AAMI accepted the damage it agreed was caused by the insured events of storm and rainwater and issued a claim settlement accordingly. It is my view this was the appropriate course of action.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted on behalf of AAMI and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon to determine cover. It is my view it can be taken into account when evaluating the collective evidence relating to the event.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents that AAMI has declined was caused by flood and I am satisfied the policy clearly provides that flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your client's complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. & [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

I refer to your recent request that my office review AAMI's decision relating to the above claim.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

Prior to me completing my review of this matter, I was notified AAMI had further considered the information relating to the event that caused damage to your home and contents and agreed to accept the claim.

Accordingly, I have withdrawn the dispute and returned your file to the Home Claims department to enable the settlement arrangements to be made.

Dear Mrs. [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to report flood water entry at your property on 12 January 2011, rising to approximately 2 metres and making the home inhabitable.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the remaining damage to your home and contents (other than that caused by rainwater entering via the upstairs windows) was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You consider AAMI's decision not to cover the remaining damage is incorrect, as you state the water came from storm water drains and not from the river.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 21 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim for damage other than that caused by rainwater entering via the upstairs windows. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the remaining damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover the aspect of your claim in dispute is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 29 December 2010 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a Hydrology Area Report for Theodore dated January 2011 from WRM Water and Environment Pty Ltd (WRM) to confirm the cause of water inundation at your property of 48 Fifth Avenue, Theodore 4719.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 11 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision on the basis you believe the damage should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and the hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Building policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 13.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the assessor's report and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by flood water escaping and overflowing from the Dawson River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED],

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 19 January 2011 to advise that your home had been inundated by flood water from both the Brisbane River and Pullen Pullen Creek.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 19 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you have concerns on the accuracy of the information contained in AAMI's letter. You advised the flood came from the Brisbane River located to the South East of your home and Pullen Pullen Creek which is to the North West of your home.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 13 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I have considered your opinion that the information contained in the AAMI letter is incorrect. However, I have viewed the relevant flood mapping and I accept that the flood was caused by overland floodwaters from the Pullen Pullen Creek, which is located approximately 200 metres to the east of your property. Further, I note that when you lodged the claim you advised AAMI your property had been inundated by floodwater from both the creek and the river.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms. [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: MAF (flood): [REDACTED]
Clients: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 26 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 11 January 2011 to lodge a claim for flood water damage to their property.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report on the extent of damage to the property. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your office on 12 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 26 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms and conditions of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I acknowledge your assertion that your clients' experienced a similar event in 2009 which was covered by AAMI and therefore AAMI should cover the damage as a result of this event. I must advise that each claim is assessed and reviewed on its own merits and in this instance AAMI established flood to be the cause of damage and declined your clients' claim as their policy does not cover damage caused by flooding.

You state that AAMI staff had a duty of utmost good faith to inform your clients of the unsuitability of the insurance cover selected during consultation with them. You assert AAMI has failed in its statutory responsibility to treat your clients with 'utmost good faith' as required by section 13 of The Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (ICA).

I am satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and therefore section 69(2) of the ICA provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days of commencing cover is sufficient. I note that you do not dispute that your clients were provided with a copy of the policy documentation, therefore I accept that your clients were issued the policy documents AAMI was required to send.

Your clients' policy is defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your clients, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your clients to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

I have considered your assertion that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

Accordingly, I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

I have also considered your argument that the damage to your clients' property was caused by storm and rainwater run-off. I accept that in order to claim for storm water runoff damages to the home and contents, the onus is with your clients to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain or storm water. Whilst I acknowledge it is your view that your clients' property was inundated by storm water runoff, I am satisfied there is no evidence before me to substantiate that view. As previously noted, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by overland floodwaters from Burpengary Creek mixed with storm water runoff and water which escaped from nearby street drains. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Mr. & Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request to have your claim reviewed through AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to report water entry at your property on 11 January 2011.

A claim was lodged and you were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report and after considering it and the other information to hand, including a Hydrology report and flood maps, AAMI advised you the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 30 March 2011.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You have provided a Statutory declaration advising on Wednesday 12 January 2011 at approximately 5.15am the storm water drain was overflowing and the water was inundating the back yard. It stated from approximately 6:00am, the front pipe was overflowing too and upon departing the home at approximately 8.30am, water from the overflowing storm water drains was about to reach the floorboards in the house.

You also submit AAMI cannot rely on the hydrology report to determine the cause of damage at your property as it is not site specific and you submit the assessment report information does not match the information in AAMI's letter of 30 March 2011. You consider AAMI should accept the claim on the basis the initial damage was caused by pipe backflow early on 12 January 2011 and that the floodwater inundation did not occur until 13 January 2011.

You have now requested I review the matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed AAMI's decision and the reports they considered, along with the accounts set out by you in your statutory declaration and correspondence to my office. However I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter, being the Cunningham Lindsay and hydrology reports and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was initially caused by an event covered under the policy such as water escaping from drains, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted on behalf of AAMI and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon to determine cover. It is my view it can be therefore taken into account when evaluating the collective evidence relating to the event.

Whilst I acknowledge the information set out in your correspondence provides a different account of what AAMI's letter says occurred, I believe supporting evidence from suitably qualified professionals is required to refute the information relied upon by AAMI. If you are to provide evidence from a person suitably qualified to substantiate the information you have provided in your letter, I accept it may assist in bringing into question the current findings being relied upon.

When claiming against your policy, the onus rests with you, the policyholder, to establish that your property has been damaged by one of the insured events covered under your policy.

Based on the evidence presently to hand, I am satisfied AAMI have established, on balance, the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 12 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the water came out of the drains and therefore the damage should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overland floodwaters from Oxley Creek, which is located approximately 500 metres to the west of your property, which overflowed and inundated your property on or around 12 January 2011. I acknowledge that an insignificant amount of floodwater may have escaped from nearby drains around your property however, I am satisfied that any drain escape water would have promptly mixed with overland floodwater rising over Lancelot Street and other surrounding streets.

I note that under Australia law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage with the damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain. I accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water and the water level was expected to rise.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 27 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe when you lodged the claim with AAMI you were advised you were covered for flood damage.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 27 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the Brisbane River located approximately 750 metres south east of your property which had risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I have also reviewed your assertion you were advised that you were covered for flood damage when you lodged the claim. I have reviewed your claim messages and cannot confirm the details of the conversations you had with the operator at the time of lodging the claim. I am satisfied the AAMI operator would not have told you were covered for something that is specifically excluded from the policy. Even if such an assurance was provided, I believe it would have been general information and not an absolute assurance you would be covered. In any event, I must advise that the onus remains with you the policyholder, to read the booklet and ensure that the cover provided meets your requirements.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your home had been inundated by flood water.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 29 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and believe the result of the flood water inundation was the poor condition of nearby properties and the inland 'tsunami' that devastated Toowoomba. You have now asked that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the external assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept the flood was caused by flood water overflowing from Oxley Creek and may ultimately be a result of a water discharge from the Wivenhoe Dam, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 2 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an assessor Pollock Campbell who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist WRM Water & Environment (WRM) to confirm the cause of the water inundation.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 23 February 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you are entitled to initiate as you believe the damage should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 23 February 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Nogoia River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 29 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

Your daughter, [REDACTED] contacted my office to request a review of AAMI's decision. Ms [REDACTED] believed the water that entered your home had come from the drains that surrounded your property, rather than the lake which is a considerable distance away. Further, she advised your neighbour's saw the water rising from the drainage. She also expressed concern that the hydrologist did not inspect the drainage in or around your property, rather the hydrologist only provided a general report for the entire Brisbane area. She therefore submits there have been issues with the drainage surrounding your property. In addition, Ms [REDACTED] advised individual hydrologist reports were obtained for units located at Beanland Street, which resulted in their insurer accepting part of their claims. She also explained that you were under the belief the damage sustained to your home would be covered under the policy. When considering the matter, Ms [REDACTED] asked that I consider your personal circumstances as well as your insurance history with AAMI.

You now ask that I review this matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also considered the documentation you submitted in relation to the drainage surrounding your property.

The AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. Whilst I acknowledge your neighbour's may have seen water uprising from the nearby drainage, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I understand you may have issues with the drainage surrounding your property. However, I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Westlake watercourse and the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I acknowledge the damage sustained to nearby units may have been accepted in part by their insurer, but I am unable to comment on another insurer's policy. Further, I accept each claim and each event must be considered in isolation.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 11 January 2011 to report your home had been affected by flood.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state a previous claim for identical circumstances was accepted in 2009. You have advised refusal of your current claim has put a great financial and emotional strain on you and you request the matter be reviewed.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 3 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Burpengary Creek. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

I have examined the details of your previous claim 5829898700, which was lodged on 20 August 2009 for water entering your shed. However, I note the description provided at that time was that rainwater had entered the shed and there was no mention on AAMI's system that the Creek had overflowed. I was unable to locate any record of an assessment occurring under that claim to verify the cause of the loss. Instead, it appears the claim was accepted under the insured event 'Storm and rainwater', on the verbal information provided by you and the evidence of loss you sent in for consideration. I do not consider this extends any onus on behalf of AAMI to accept a future claim if it falls outside the terms of the policy.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request to have your claim reviewed through AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to report water entry at your house during storms and floods.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state the ground level of your home flooded from road storm water runoff on 12 January 2011 and you dug trenches in your yard to divert water away from the home as you live in a semi-rural area and the roads have no guttering. You have advised the river flooded the home on 14 January 2011.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

The AAMI Home Building policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 11.

When claiming against your policy, the onus rests with you, the policyholder, to establish that your property has been damaged by one of the insured events covered under your policy and is not defeated by any of the policy exclusions. I accept that the policy clearly provides that flooding as defined is not covered.

I have reviewed the reports AAMI has considered and I am satisfied they support the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be partially accepted on the basis your home flooded from road storm water runoff on 12 January 2011 and was not flooded by the actions of the river until 14 January 2011. However I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater runoff, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home was caused by flood as a result of overflow of a watercourse, being the Bremer River.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to report water entry at your property. AAMI noted the following account on your behalf after listening to your version of events:

There has been a huge downpour and water has backed up. The workshop and garage are under water. The water has not entered the lower level of our home at the time of the call. We managed to get a lot of the contents out of the affected area. The fences has been washed away. The soil around the slab has dropped away and around the pool. The side door and workshop door has been damaged by the water.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

including an Area Hydrology report and flood maps you were advised the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 29 March 2011.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You notified my office of your request for a review and confirmed the Brisbane River did not break its banks directly from the south of you. You explained water backed up from the storm water drain on the adjacent property and then from overflowing street gutters. You consider these occurrences are covered under the terms of AAMI's policy, based on the fact the water escaped from drains and street guttering prior to entering your home. You have advised additionally, AAMI staff informed you during two separate conversations your claim was valid and would be honoured.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Water escaping from a drain or street guttering is an event that is covered under AAMI's Home Building and Contents policies. However, in order to claim for water escaping from a drain or street gutter damaging your home and contents, I accept the onus is with you to establish, on balance, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and drain/street gutter water, damaging them. I am satisfied it is accepted law that when stormwater mixes with river water or water overflowing from a watercourse, it is classified as flood water.

I accept the Brisbane River may not have broken its banks directly to the south of your home as a result of the topography in that area. However, AAMI considers the evidence to hand indicates parklands approximately 50 metres to the north east of your home were inundated by water escaping from the river and when the river continued to rise, these waters travelled overland towards your home, subsequently inundating it.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the expert reports and information it considered. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River, irrespective of the water not coming from the south as you may have expected it to. The evidence indicates the water travelled overland and inundated your property after leaving the parklands nearby. I accept some of this water that entered your property likely mixed with water escaping from drains and street gutters in the vicinity but I also accept this occurrence is not covered under the policy.

In regard to your comments that AAMI staff assured you your claim was valid and would be honoured, I am unable to verify the conversations you refer to in this regard, as whilst calls may be monitored from time to time for training purposes, they are not recorded. However, even if I were able to examine the contents of the conversations you have referred to and this resulted in me accepting you were advised your claim would be covered, this would not necessarily compel me to cover the claim, as I would need to consider what evidence was before me to confirm the information provided resulted in you acting differently than if you had received accurate advice from AAMI.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Sirs,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 30 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe it is irrelevant whether the damages were caused by rain from the sky or from rivers breaking their banks as your residence was damaged and many personal effects were lost.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 30 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Your Reference: [REDACTED]

Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 25 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 4 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 25 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 4 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

There is no dispute your client received the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policies). Your dispute is that your client was not clearly informed the flood exclusion applied to their policy and therefore AAMI ought not to rely on the exclusion and pay your clients claim.

Section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 9 March 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Stable Swamp Creek which runs into Oxley Creek itself joining the Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 20 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 15 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 20 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 15 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

You do not dispute your clients received the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) containing the exclusions in the policy. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your client. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position that your client was told when taking out the AAMI Landlord Insurance Policy that they were covered for flood and were under the belief that changing to a AAMI Home Building policy afforded the same cover. You believe AAMI has breached its duty of utmost good faith contravening section 13 of the insurance Contracts Act 1984 and as such, request your clients claim be paid.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However, I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your client's policies are defined events policies, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 28 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. Dear Mr. Holmes,

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 26 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that water had inundated their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, to provide a report on the cause and level of damage sustained to the property. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 12 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 26 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 31 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

You have stated your clients received a letter dated 26 June 2008 that said they were "fully insured" and they considered this to mean they were covered for everything, including flood as they live on the bank of a river. Further, you state AAMI staff had a duty of utmost good faith to inform your clients' of the unsuitability of the insurance cover selected during consultation with them. You assert AAMI has failed in its statutory responsibility to treat our clients with 'utmost good faith' as required by section 13 of The Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (ICA).

I am satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and therefore section 69(2) of the ICA provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days of commencing cover is sufficient. I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your clients.

Your clients' policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your clients, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your clients to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

I have also confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customers of basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

You have also asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building). Accordingly I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by floodwater inundation from overflowing of the Bremer River which adjoins their property, on or around 11 January 2011. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request I review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

Your Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

In summary, the policy covers you for sudden and unexpected damage caused by the insured events listed on pages 8 to 13 of the policy. One of the events covered is loss or damage caused by or arising from Storm and rainwater.

Page 14 of the building policy explains that damage as a result of wear, tear and deterioration is excluded under all sections of your policy.

Page 16 of the building policy explains the precautions you need to take at all times, and at your expense. It states you need to take all reasonable precautions for the safety and protection of your building and the site...to prevent damage to your building. It further states if you do not, AAMI may reduce or refuse to pay any claim you make.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 31 December 2010 to report a storm had come through your home causing damage.

AAMI arranged Construct Services (Construct) to inspect and report on the damage. In their subsequent report they advised (in summary) the following:

'Damage has occurred under the stair area, where the concrete floor is stained with red earth. Minor water stains are visible to one brick wall. Further damage has occurred in the garage, where brown staining to the garage floor is evident, mild wood rot is visible to vertical timber trim and skirting board to one wall, and staining to one brick wall is visible.

An inspection on the external brick wall, adjacent to the garage and stairwell area found an existing concrete repair to the pathway has slumped, and a gap between the concrete path is visible between the path and house bricks.

It is our opinion, during heavy rainstorms experienced at the end of December 2010 and beginning of January 2011, stormwater has entered the damaged section of path and gap down the brick wall, to course down to the concrete floors, causing the damage mentioned.

We have advised the policyholder to seek the services of a qualified repairer, to have the concrete path and gap down the brick wall inspected, and any maintenance carried out, in an attempt to prevent further water entry in the future.

Mrs Cowderoy stated she had a burst water pipe under the poor concrete pathway repair, where this section of concrete path was cut out and then re-laid, but has now subsequently slumped, allowing water into the house.

Conclusion

Damage has occurred under the stairwell area and left-hand side of garage, where brown soil staining to concrete floors are evident, and mild water stains to brick walls is visible. Mild rotting to two timber trims are also evident. It is our opinion; the damage being claimed is due to age, wear and tear.'

AAMI advised you the maintenance related issues would not be covered, however the resultant damages were covered by the policy. You were not happy with decision and contend that the maintenance related damages be covered by the claim. You were advised you had a claim in 2009 for a burst pipe and the driveway repairs were not completed to your satisfaction by your plumber. AAMI advised you the assessor at the time informed you to contact the plumber to have the driveway repairs rectified correctly.

AAMI wrote you setting out their position that the driveway repairs would not be covered by the claim. You contacted my office on 4 August 2011 as you are not satisfied with AAMI's decision. You are disputing nil cover to the driveway and advised that the pipe burst some years ago and AAMI repaired it. You therefore believe the driveway should be covered.

You have now asked that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read all of the available material on the file.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your Home Building policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks, it only covers loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

While you believe AAMI rectified the driveway repairs in 2009 I am unable to substantiate this position. I have reviewed the claim messages from a burst pipe claim in 2004 which clearly indicates the time when your plumber cut the concrete driveway to access the burst pipe.

AAMI assessor Robert Hay attended your property on this occasions and I would like to bring to your attention a section of his assessment notes which states:

'Bursting pipe on outside of home has flooded garage causing damage to garage contents. Insured's plumber has attended and located leak under a concrete footpath to side of home. He has also replaced concrete over the repaired pipe and insured is not happy with the quality of finish. Plumber has been contacted to fix uneven concrete.'

I am satisfied that the repair of the concrete pathway was by your plumber and AAMI's assessor confirmed that it required rectification. The evidence before me suggests the plumber reattended however did not attend to the repairs correctly which has caused it to slump over time.

Construct have advised in their assessment 'an inspection on the external brick wall, adjacent to the garage and stairwell area found an existing concrete repair to the pathway has slumped, and a gap between the concrete path is visible between the path and house bricks.'

It is our opinion, during heavy rainstorms experienced at the end of December 2010 and beginning of January 2011, stormwater has entered the damaged section of path and gap down the brick wall, to course down to the concrete floors, causing the damage mentioned.'

I accept the evidence to hand indicates deterioration of the concrete driveway has been occurring over a period of time resulting in wear and tear to your property. I accept the policy is clear and unambiguous in stating that any damage to your building resulting from wear and tear is specifically excluded under the policy. I also accept the policy is clear when it states that you are required to take all reasonable precautions to prevent damage to your property and in the absence of this, AAMI is entitled to deny your claim.

Accordingly, I am satisfied AAMI's decision not to accept the concrete driveway is correct pursuant to the terms and conditions of the policy.

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 16 January 2011 to advise that your home had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (Hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 1 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and refute AAMI's findings believing the claim should be covered as water came from the stormwater drain and not from the Brisbane River. You advised you have photographic evidence supporting this assertion. You also advised you do not understand why AAMI paid out without delay for the cars that were damaged but are not covering the home contents at the same property.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from Cunningham Lindsay and the Hydrologist.

The AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 1 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of Cunningham Lindsay and the Hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by water escaping across normally dry land from the Brisbane River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I can also advise the AAMI Comprehensive Car Insurance policy provides cover for flood damage hence why that claim was accepted.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 24 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due a combination of storm water and flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 31 May 2011 advising the claim was partially for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the majority of damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 24 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to partially accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the whole of the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was predominantly caused by flood.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI prior to evacuation from their home, your client was informed by a staff member that even though flood was not covered under the policy, as the event was deemed a 'catastrophe; teh claim for building and contents would be covered. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations your clients have acted in reliance on that statement to their detriment. That is, a number of salvageable items were thrown out as AAMI would replace them and had they not been told that they would have salvaged these items. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of these misrepresentations.

I must advise that page 39 of the contents policy and page 30 of the building policy explains following an event that is likely to result in a claim, you must take all reasonable precautions to prevent any further damage, loss, cost or liability. It is my view that irrespective of what may be told to an insured at the beginning of a claim, minimising the losses as best a customer can is required.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied your client were assured any loss or damage to their home would be covered by their policy. I do not accept your clients' loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI.

I note there is no dispute your clients received copies of the relevant policy documentation. However, you believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I accept the claim has been accepted for stormwater damage to the following:

- Piles (Stumps) Under The Home - Concrete Piles To Southern Elevation Under House.
- Bedroom 3 Ceiling
- Dining Room Ceiling
- Laundry (up to 100mm)
- Laundry Door

It is my understanding AAMI is in consultation with Cunningham & Lindsey in arranging quotations to repair these sections of your property.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 22 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that majority of the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that during the recent heavy rain and storms your house had been flooded.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 20 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the water that inundated your property came from the stormwater channel located to the rear of your property. Further, you assert that when you contacted AAMI on 11 January 2011 to clarify the policy definition of flood, you were told that if heavy rain caused the flooding then it would be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 20 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River and the adjoining watercourse located within a short distance to the rear of your property, which overflowed and inundated your property on or around 12 January 2011. I believe the water carried by the watercourse to the rear of your property was designed to assist in draining excess water from storm events, and was not large enough to handle the volume of water that overflowed from Brisbane River. In either case, I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I have also reviewed your assertion you were advised that you were covered for flood damage were the flood was caused by heavy rain. I must advise that AAMI do not record telephone conversations, but do monitor calls for training purposes, therefore I cannot confirm the details of the conversations you had with the operator on 11 January 2011. Whilst staff may have advised some claims are covered in some circumstances, each claim and each event must be considered in isolation. I am unable to accept you would have been provided with an absolute assurance you would be covered for this damage, when the policy clearly provides otherwise.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 2 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it, the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that water had inundated their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, to provide a report on the cause and level of damage sustained to the property. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 21 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Caxton Legal Centre. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 2 June 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 21 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

Accordingly, based on the hydrologist and assessor's report, the evidence before me indicates the predominant cause of the flood and the damage to your client's property, was the over flow of the Brisbane River on or around 12 January 2011. I accept that there may have been an insignificant amount of water which escaped from drains located in close proximity to the insured property at the time the overland flood arrived. However, I note that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under the policy) and water escaping from a drain.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your client's claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 29 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

I acknowledge your position that the Cunningham Lindsey report contains inaccuracies. While I accept on face value your concerns over the report, I am satisfied this report only formed part of the basis for the non acceptance of your client's claim and the inaccuracies do not change the decision that flood caused the damage to your client's property.

You have stated your client does not recall receiving a Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) after taking out the policy. Nor was he advised that the policy does not include flood cover and state that had he been told he would have shopped around for a more suitable policy which did cover him for such events.

I can confirm that upon policy inception a copy of the PDS was provided effective from the inception date of this policy. I can also advise that Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the PDS within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I can confirm that the relevant policy documentation was sent to your client when they purchased the policy. Accordingly, I accept that AAMI has complied with its obligations pursuant to Section 35 of the Act to clearly inform your client of the provisions of cover. I note you believe AAMI has breached the General Insurance Code of Practice, however I am satisfied this has not occurred.

I note that you have also raised a concern that your client did not receive a PDS with their last renewal notice. I can confirm that a PDS is not required to be sent on each renewal unless there has been a variation to the policy during the preceding period of cover. Accordingly, I can confirm that the last policy period of 12 months up to 2 November 2011 has not had a change in the PDS, nor the previous period to this of 2 November 2010. That is, the PDS that your client last received is still current.

In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy and claim is subject to the exclusions set out in the PDS.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by mould, wet or dry rot, rising damp or dampness.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that your house floorboards had been damaged.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to rising damp. After considering the report, AAMI wrote to you on 14 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home was caused by rising moisture from water pooling underneath your home and that rising damp is not covered by your policy.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision by my office. My office wrote to you 13 May 2011 requesting AAMI undertake further enquiries into the matter.

AAMI conducted further enquiries and Technical Events Claims Manager Peter Unwin wrote you 29 June 2011 maintaining AAMI's decision not to cover your claim. It was explained that damage was caused by dampness which is specifically excluded under the policy.

You have requested a further review of AAMI's decision as you believe the dampness occurred during a period of excessive storm and rain.

On this basis I will now review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including report from the assessor and further email from you dated 14 July 2011.

The AAMI Home Building policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by mould, wet or dry rot, rising damp or dampness is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter dated 29 June 2011 and the reasons why the claim has not been accepted.

You obtained a report from R.B. Green who gave his professional opinion on the damage to the floorboards. In his report he notes:

'I personally believe that the sustained flow and longevity of floodwaters during the period of flooding resulted in excessive moisture levels in the atmosphere. As is the nature of natural products and materials, the timber flooring swelled/expanded to the point where the floorboards popped/dislodged. Due to the nature of the sloping block, there is no sign of residual water underneath the house and has sufficient air circulation, which further indicates that the damage is a result of the flooding.'

I accept there is no dispute that water running underneath your property has not come into contact with the floorboards. I also accept it was excessive moisture from water flowing underneath your property over a period of time as the likely cause as to why the floorboards have dislodged. However, I am satisfied that the policy is clear that any loss, damage or liability arising from or caused by dampness is specifically excluded from cover.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home. AAMI also commissioned an external hydrologist WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd (WRM), to confirm the cause of water inundation at your property at 12 Aldersgate Street, Corinda.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 5 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the damage was caused by storm water and not flood.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 5 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River into the Pennywort and Oxley Creeks, which are located approximately 600 metres east of your property and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Further, as your claim has been declined, I accept that you are not entitled to temporary accommodation or make safe repairs under the claim benefits.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to report water entry at your property.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report and after considering it and the other information to hand, including Hydrology reports, flood maps and details collected during an area visit by a representative from AAMI, you were advised the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 10 August 2011.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You notified my office of your request for a review and advised stormwater came up through the drains on 11 January 2011. You explained this had also occurred on previous occasions during storms, with water backing up to two foot high beneath the house. You advised you consider the upper level of your home may have been affected by floor water but that prior to this, stormwater from the drains entered the home and damaged the lower level.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Water escaping from a drain is an event that is covered under AAMI's Home Building and Contents policies. However, in order to claim for water escaping from a drain damaging your home and contents, I accept the onus is with you to establish, on balance, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and drain water, damaging them. I am satisfied it is accepted law that when stormwater mixes with river water or water overflowing from a watercourse, it is classified as flood water.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the expert reports they considered. I am mindful of WRM Water & Environment's comments that the initial inundation of the home above the lower floor level did not occur until about 7 hours after rainfall in the area had ceased and that the initial inundation of the subject property above floor level was a result of floodwaters flowing overland from the Brisbane River, not solely stormwater from the drains. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property. I accept some of this water that entered your property likely mixed with water escaping from drains in the area but I also accept this occurrence is not covered under the policy.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 16 January 2011 to report water entry at your property on 12 January 2011. You advised your house was completely flooded.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You contend at least part of the damage to your home and contents was caused by water escaping from drains on the morning of 12 January 2011, prior to meeting overflow from the nearby creek. You feel AAMI has failed to meet its obligations to you, and you have requested consideration be given to your loyalty to AAMI over the years.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Water escaping from a drain is an event that is covered under AAMI's Home Building and Contents policies. However, in order to claim for water escaping from a drain damaging your home and contents, I accept the onus is with you to establish, on balance, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and drain water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain.

Having reviewed the information collated in the assessment reports relating to your home, I note you advised you were not present at the time of inundation. The assessor accepted that whilst it was possible street drains overflowed during the event, it most likely met with rising overland floodwaters prior to entering your property. This was concluded by the assessor after considering the lay of the land, the location of the drains and speaking with the resident of a neighbouring property.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 27 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the evidence indicates the flood water travelled over land and inundated your property, possibly after mixing with water escaping from drains in the area. I also accept this occurrence is not covered under the policy.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 10 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 30 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 10 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 30 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

You have stated your clients do not recall receiving the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) and that the exclusions in the policy therefore do not apply, as the documents were not received until after the contract was in place. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your clients of the relevant exclusion.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your clients on 13 March 2009. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your clients the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI prior to evacuation from their home, your clients were informed by a staff member by the name of Ann they were '100% covered' and that you assert had they not been advised of this, they would have cleared more goods out before evacuating and significantly reduced their loss. Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied your clients were assured any loss or damage to their home would be covered by their policy. I do not accept your clients' loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 24 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of Oxley Creek, caused principally by the backflow of the flooded Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr and Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 18 January 2011 to advise that you had just arrived home from overseas to find your area has been flooded due to heavy rains and storm water build up causing damage to your property.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 29 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision in a letter received 27 July 2011 as you believe the assessment report was incorrect.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I note your position that the Cunningham Lindsey report is inaccurate and the statutory declaration you have submitted indicates the storm water drains have back flowed outside your property. However, I must advise that the Cunningham Lindsey report was only one piece of information used by AAMI in determining the claim was not for acceptance. Greater weight has been placed on the hydrologist report that specialises in these matters. The hydrologist has determined the damage caused to your property has been caused by flood and I am required to rely on that view in the absence of evidence to counteract this advice.

I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of the Breakfast Creek causing water to flood overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

You have asked that reconsideration be given to the claim, as this is the type of event you hold insurance for.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 30 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

It is my understanding there is no dispute you were provided with the relevant policy booklets setting out the details of cover upon inception of the policy. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to inform a prospective insured over the phone of all the details of cover specific to a policy, so provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days, its legal obligations are complied with. I appreciate you are presently in the situation of having your Landlord insurance claim covered, but your Home Building and Contents claim declined and I appreciate this must be frustrating, but I am satisfied the policies relating to these claims differ and that the Landlord insurance policy covers flood. The onus remains with an insured to read the policy documentation once received to ensure the cover purchased suits their needs and if it is found it does not, to make arrangements for alternate cover.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Dear Mr. [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

I write further to my previous correspondence of 11 May 2011.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

AAMI was contacted by you on 16 January 2011 to report water damage to your mother's home. You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend the home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report stating that the damage to the property was due to flooding of the Moggill Creek.

After considering the assessment report and other information to hand, AAMI wrote to your mother on 20 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You have advised AAMI previously honoured a flood damage claim at the home and you consider this set an expectation that similar events would be covered in the future.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on the file.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 20 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept the claim. I understand that you consider AAMI accepted a previous flood claim for your mother and that you believe this set expectation similar future events would be covered. However, in reviewing AAMI's records relating to your mother's policy, whilst I note a previous event for damage arising from rainwater inundation was claimed in 2009, I was unable to locate any claim for an occurrence constituting a flood. However, even if it were the case AAMI had made a goodwill decision previously to accept a previous claim for a flood event, I would not consider this in itself would oblige AAMI to accept a future claim for a similar occurrence.

In regard to this matter, I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your mother's home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Moggill Creek. The evidence indicates the water then travelled over land and inundated your mother's property and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your mother's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI is entitled to refuse to cover this claim.

My decisions represent AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Ms [REDACTED],

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 18 August 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that due to the recent floods the lower level of their property had been inundated with water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due a combination of storm water and flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your clients home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 30 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 18 August 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 30 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to not accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the whole of the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note your position that your client was told when taking out the policy with AAMI that they wanted cover for any event and would not have taken out insurance with AAMI without that reassurance. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations the Finlen's have acted in reliance on the policy covering them for any possible event to their detriment. That is, your client was given a policy totally inadequate given they expressly stated they wanted comprehensive cover for everything. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of this misrepresentation.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversations your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

I note that when your clients called AAMI on 14 June 2007 to enquire about the policy a quotation as given as they did not wish to take up the policy immediately. It was not until they contacted AAMI on 29 June 2007 that they paid for the policy to commence. Unfortunately there are no messages on the policy or quotation to indicate a conversation took place to the effect your clients state that all possible events would be covered. Therefore, I am unable to verify the conversation your clients allege took place that all events would be covered.

I note there is no dispute your clients received copies of the relevant policy documentation. Although I can confirm the relevant policy documents were printed on 14 June 2007 and sent via Australia Post on 15 June 2007. I can confirm the Home Insurance Schedule clearly states 'see your policy for full details, and all limitations and conditions of cover'. You also advise your clients paid for the policy prior to receiving the PDS. I can confirm the policy was paid on 29 June 2007 which was two weeks after leaving Australia Post to your clients address. However, you believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your reference to Max Hams and 1 Ors V CGU Insurance Limited [2002] detailing your position that this decision can be applied to where a PDS as a whole is confusing and difficult to understand to a reasonable person. I have reviewed AAMI's PDS and I am satisfied it is not confusing to understand, rather clear and concise on what is covered and not covered.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 23 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However, I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr Holmes

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process. Please note all references to 'you' or 'your' in this letter refer to Mr & Mrs Flavell.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy and an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy). In general terms, the policy provides financial protection and peace of mind for loss or damage to your contents, which is caused by an insured event.

Pages 16 to 21 of the contents policy and pages 8 to 13 of the building policy detail the insured events you are covered for resulting in loss to your home and/or contents occurring during the period of cover. The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood. The policy defines 'flood' (page 19 of the contents policy and page 13 of the building policy) as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water. AAMI lodged a claim for you and appointed assessing firm Cunningham Lindsey (CL) to attend your home to assess the cause and extent of the loss.

CL completed their assessment and provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood waters from the Brisbane River.

AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 6 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe that CL's report is flawed and believe your residence has been flooded due to storm water runoff. You believe that it cannot be ruled out that the damage to your property was caused by storm water runoff, and as your policy covers loss or damage arising from storm water runoff, you believe that your claim should be accepted. You further assert that AAMI has not complied with its obligations pursuant to Section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (the Act) to inform you that flood is an exclusion under the terms of the policy, and on this basis you assert that standard cover should apply. You are also dissatisfied with the level of service you received, and the timeframe taken to assess your claim. You also state that when you initially lodged your claim, you were provided with an assurance that you would be covered. On this basis, you now ask that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor, Hydrology Area Report and the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. You have raised a number of concerns with your claim, and I will now address each item separately below.

Customer Service and Timeframe

Firstly, on behalf of AAMI, I would like to apologise for your recent experience. I wish to advise you that the majority of AAMI's claims are handled effectively and efficiently without causing distress to the customer. I would like to apologise if you believe the customer service you received throughout your claim was not of the standard you expected. AAMI is committed to providing its customers with the highest standard of service and I regret that this was not your experience. However, I am satisfied your concerns were elevated to the relevant AAMI supervisor or manager on the days they were raised and AAMI was attempting to expedite solutions to your concerns.

I acknowledge that AAMI was unable to provide you with a final outcome on your claim until 6 April 2011. I can confirm that it is not usual for AAMI customers to have to wait for such an extended period of time for an assessment and final decision on their claim. However, AAMI's resources were impacted by a large volume of claims arising from this event, and I accept that it took some time to clear the backlog of assessments. I further accept that AAMI was also waiting on the Hydrology report to be finalised prior to issuing a final decision, which was being completed by an external panel. I accept that AAMI were reliant on the completion of this report in a timely manner, a situation that whilst regrettable, was largely outside of AAMI's control. On behalf of AAMI, I can only apologise for any inconvenience caused.

Policy terms and product disclosure statement

You have also stated you were not provided with the Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) prior to purchasing the policy, and therefore assert that the exclusions in the policy do not apply. You maintain that had you been provided with a PDS informing you that flood was specifically excluded from your policy prior to your purchase of it, you would have sought cover elsewhere.

I can confirm that upon policy inception a copy of the PDS was provided effective from the inception date of this policy. I can also advise that Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the PDS within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I can confirm that the relevant policy documentation was printed on 24 October 2006, and lodged with Australia Post on 25 October 2006. Accordingly, I accept that AAMI has complied with its obligations pursuant to Section 35 of the Act to clearly inform you of the provisions of cover.

I note that you have also raised a concern that you have not received an updated PDS since inception. I can confirm that a policy or PDS is not required to be sent on each renewal unless there has been a variation to the policy during the preceding period of cover. Accordingly, I can confirm that your last policy period of 12 months up to 30 October 2011 has not had a change in the PDS, nor the previous period to this of 30 October 2009 to 30 October 2010. That is, the PDS that you last received is still current.

In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy and claim is subject to the exclusions set out in the PDS.

Policy wording

You have also asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract.

However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

Accordingly I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

Advice given at claims lodgement

I note that you have also raised a concern that you were told at the time of lodging the claim that you would be covered. I have reviewed the messages on your policy and cannot find any reference to you being provided with such an assurance. Furthermore, I accept that AAMI's system clearly shows that you were informed on 14 January 2011 that your claim was for consideration only.

However, I have conducted enquiries as to what customers were advised when calling AAMI to lodge a claim, in order to address this aspect of your concerns thoroughly. I can confirm that customers were advised that they were able to lodge a claim, to keep evidence of any items that were disposed of, and that an assessor would be appointed to their claim. However, these claims were for consideration only and were to be assessed accordingly. Whilst I understand that you may have formed the impression that AAMI would cover your claim regardless, I am satisfied that AAMI was entitled to gather all relevant information and assess the claim on its individual merits prior to making a final decision.

Furthermore, even if I were to accept that you were provided with an assurance that your claim would be accepted at the time of lodgement, I am satisfied that you were provided with the correct information shortly thereafter. In addition to this, I am not persuaded that you would have suffered any prejudice as a result of incorrect information being provided to you.

Cause of damage

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I have included the policy definition of flood earlier in my letter.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 6 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted, and your belief that the assessor has used incorrect findings in the final report and that it cannot be ruled out that storm water runoff caused the damage to your home, at least in part. I accept that in a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 27 January 2011.

However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and Hydrology Area Report in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood. I accept that I can rely on the expertise of the staff from CL & and on the ICA Hydrology Panel in assessing and am satisfied that they have the necessary experience and qualifications to make such a judgement. Accordingly I am satisfied that I can rely upon the evidence submitted by CL & the ICA Hydrology Panel.

I can confirm the main basis of the decision has been based on the Hydrology Area Report and unfortunately I am bound by this Hydrology Area Report which states your property was inundated by flood waters escaping or overflowing from the Brisbane River.

Accordingly, based on the Hydrology report and assessor's report, the evidence before me indicates the predominant cause of the flood and the damage to your home, was the over flow of the Brisbane River. I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River or one or more of its tributaries, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. & [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to report water entry at your property on 11 January 2011, which you stated started from the storm water drains in your street.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state you were advised by AAMI upon making your initial enquiries you would be covered for water from storm water drains entering the property. You maintain you acted on this advice and did not seek alternate cover and consider that this is what occurred, so therefore your claim should be for acceptance. You have also queried the timeframe associated with AAMI's decision not to accept your claim.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Firstly, in regard to your dissatisfaction relating to the timeframe surrounding AAMI's consideration of your claim, whilst I acknowledge your frustration I accept that AAMI required information and evidence relating to the event, and time to consider and evaluate it.

Water escaping from a drain is an event that is covered under AAMI's Home Building and Contents policies, so I am not satisfied you were provided with incorrect information relating to this when you made your initial enquiries with AAMI. However, in order to claim for water escaping from a drain damaging your home and contents, I accept the onus is with you to establish, on balance, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and drain water, damaging them.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Oxley Creek after receiving floodwaters from the Brisbane River. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property, possibly after mixing with water escaping from drains in the area. I also accept this occurrence is not covered under the policy.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

I have enclosed a copy of the assessment report you have requested. Please be aware that whilst the contents of the document have been taken into consideration by AAMI, its decision has been made on the balance of probabilities after considering all the information collectively.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request to have your claim reviewed through AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

Your AAMI Policy

Your claim has been made under AAMI's Home Building Insurance policy.

The policy is designed to provide you with financial protection and peace of mind against sudden and unexpected loss or damage to your home caused by the events set out on pages 8 to 13 of the policy booklet.

Page 13 states you are not covered for:

'Damage or loss caused by water seeping into or otherwise entering your building due to:

a defect or fault in the design, structure or construction of your building where you could reasonably be expected to be aware of the defect or fault,'

Page 14 explains AAMI will not cover under any section of the policy damage, loss, cost or liability caused by, arising from or involving dampness or structural failure or breakdown.

Your Claim

You lodged a report with AAMI on 29 December 2010 for damage to your floor. You provided the following account:

There were heavy rains in our area & we noticed the timber floor has started to bow up. We havent seen any water come through but it maybe because of all the moisture in the air.

AAMI advised you damage arising from moisture in the air was not covered under your policy. Location of leaks was discussed, but you did not proceed with any further action at that time.

On 15 February 2011, you contacted AAMI again in regard to damage to your floors. AAMI lodged a claim noting it was advised by you at that time flood water had affected them. However it was later noted your suburb was not affected by floods and the claim was amended to be associated with a storm and rainwater event. An assessment by external assessing agent Cunningham Lindsay was subsequently arranged. Following this, AAMI appointed Cork Interiors to complete an inspection of the floors and you obtained a report from N.J. Biddle Building.

After reviewing all the reports and information to hand, AAMI informed you the claim was not for acceptance on the basis it did not agree the damage was attributed to a storm event, or any other insured event detailed in the policy booklet. AAMI sent you a letter stating it attributed the loss to rising damp.

You did not agree with the findings and sought a review by my office. You advised you now consider the floor was possibly damaged by rain penetrating your patio roof due to a lack of flashing. You believe this rain may then have been blown through your locked security doors and onto your floor. You have now requested I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the information on your file, including the letter you forwarded to my office.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your AAMI Home Building Insurance policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have considered your recent advice the floor was possibly damaged by rain penetrating your patio roof due to a lack of flashing and being blown through your locked security doors and onto your floor. However, I note your previous advice water was not evident on the surface of the floor and your confirmation this is simply a theory as opposed to an observation. I believe in the circumstances, it is appropriate for me to rely on the expert opinion to hand to determine the likely cause of the damage.

Whilst it is my view the experts who have inspected your floor are not in agreement with each other in regard to the cause of some of the damage to your floor, I note none of the reports rule out the possibility of rainwater being the cause of at least some of the damage. In particular:

- Cunningham Lindsay's report details possible inclement weather & moisture through the subfloor as a potential cause of some of the damage
- Cork Interiors refers to a definite possibility the damage is caused by moisture, but notes an inability to determine where it is coming from
- N.J. Biddle Building nominates stormwater penetration through the concrete slab due to heavy rains (hydraulic storm damage and seepage from the ground) and the floor being equal to or lower than the yard

I accept if your slab is allowing rainwater to seep between it and the floor, this would constitute a defect you could not reasonably be expected to be aware of until now the floor was exhibiting the damage. I note the policy provides cover for damage or loss caused by water seeping into or otherwise entering your building due to a defect or fault in the design, structure or construction of your building where you could not reasonably be expected to be aware of the defect or fault.

However, I am mindful that N.J. Biddle Building and Cunningham Lindsay have also nominated the problems the floor is displaying partly to a general failure of materials, with Cunningham Lindsay identifying adhesive separation and wear and tear signs and N.J. Biddle Building stating the home's slab requires sealing.

Accordingly, it is my view the damage your floor is exhibiting is attributed to a combination of causes, one of which is attributed to an insured event, being Storm and rainwater. On this basis, I have discussed the matter with AAMI Home Claims Management and it has been agreed a partial settlement of the cost of repairing the damage would be an appropriate settlement.

I can advise the settlement offer that is now being offered is for 50% of the cost of replacing the damaged floor in the affected rooms or functional areas. As the policy provides for repair or replacement of undamaged floor coverings if this is reasonably required to achieve a match with the repair or replacement of the damaged area, AAMI's liability will encompass 50% of the entire room or functional area where this damage occurred, but will not extend beyond this (for example, to other undamaged rooms or functional areas not exhibiting the damage). I am satisfied this offer is fair and reasonable and represents AAMI's liability under this claim.

Please note I am satisfied AAMI's liability does not extend to the cost of sealing the slab to prevent a repeat occurrence of water seepage in the future.

AAMI Home Claims will contact you shortly regarding the settlement offer.

If you are dissatisfied upon being informed of AAMI's settlement offer relating to the functional area being covered under your claim, or the sum being paid, or scope of works the offer is based upon, you can seek a further review of that aspect by my office.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear M [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water, which had damaged your contents.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsay, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from the Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel to confirm the cause of the water inundation and examined interactive flood maps provided on the Queensland Government website.

After considering the reports and information, AAMI wrote to you on 1 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood, which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision. You believe the damage should be covered on the basis that you have lost everything.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the external assessor and hydrologist, along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 and 21.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports it obtained and information it considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 1 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River on or around 12 January 2011, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. Holmes,

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 11 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 13 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 11 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 13 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

You have stated your client, [REDACTED], was provided with an assurance by an AAMI representative that he would be covered for flood, and on this basis agreed to insure the home and contents with AAMI. Further, you state your clients never received a copy of the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) and therefore the exclusions in the policy do not apply. You assert AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your clients of the relevant exclusion.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your clients on 3 December 2009. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days, section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position that your client was told when taking out the policy with AAMI that he was covered for flood and would not have taken out insurance with AAMI without that reassurance. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations [REDACTED] has acted in reliance on that statement to his detriment. That is, your client was given a policy totally inadequate given that he expressly stated he wanted cover for flood due to the flood event he experienced in 2009. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of this misrepresentation.

As [REDACTED] had a face to face conversation with an AAMI representative at an AAMI branch I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However, I note the AAMI representative in question has confirmed his understanding of AAMI's policies and the cover they provide and is confident in stating he would not advise a customer flood cover is provided. I have also confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customers of basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

Your client's policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your clients, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your clients to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 9 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Bremer River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. [REDACTED]

Re: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Page 31 of the contents policy booklet provides that AAMI will pay for spoilage of frozen food caused by failure of electricity supply to your home to a limit of $400.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to report evacuation due to heavy rains. You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter of damage to your home and contents, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not. You advised you also wished to claim for damage attributed to civil commotion, as volunteers assisting with the cleanup had trampled areas surrounding the home that were not damaged by water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood.

After considering the assessment report and other information to hand, AAMI wrote to you on 8 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You have advised it was AAMI's staff who suggested lodging the claim under the insured event of Storm and rainwater and you consider the damage you wish to claim as detailed in your email of 29 April 2011 is attributed to that cause. You also seek cover for the contents of your refrigerator and freezer when the power to your home was cut, as well as items covered under the civil commotion insured event.

You now ask that I review this matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Damage to Building & Contents

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 8 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I understand that you have asked for your claim for the damage sustained to a number of items to be accepted on the basis they were damaged by rainwater. However, I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River, causing floodwaters to flow down the storm water channel to the south of your property, causing it to rise and overflow. The evidence indicates the water then travelled over land and inundated your property and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

Spoiled Frozen Food

Notwithstanding, I understand your food in your freezer was spoiled as a result of this event. The policy provides cover for additional benefits, such as

'Spoiled frozen food'. I accept the policy states that AAMI will pay for spoiled frozen food caused by failure of public electricity to your home other than because of industrial action.

I note AAMI has conducted enquiries into the failure of the electricity supply and was unable to substantiate their claim that flood (as defined in the policy) caused the electricity to fail, which therefore led to the spoilage of your food. In the circumstances, I am pleased to advise AAMI has agreed to accept and settle your claim for frozen food spoilage.

I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process this aspect of the claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44.

Civil Commotion

I understand you believe damage arising from volunteers assisting in the cleanup of areas surrounding and in your property should be covered under the Civil Commotion insured event provided by the policy.

I have considered the definition of 'commotion', as defined at www.dictionary.com and note the definition is set out as follows:

1. violent or tumultuous motion; agitation; noisy disturbance: What's all the commotion in the hallway?
2. political or social disturbance or upheaval; sedition; insurrection.

Based on the circumstances you have described, I am not satisfied civil commotion was the cause of the damage to the items you wish to claim.

My decisions represent AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to report flood water entry at your house whilst you were holidaying in Perth.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state upon policy inception in 2000, you were asked a number of questions relating to the home, but none of these mentioned an exclusion for flood damage and you believe you would be covered for such a cause. You seek reconsideration of the current decision not to accept the claim.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

The AAMI Home Building policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 11. Whilst I note your comments that you were not verbally informed by AAMI of an exclusion relating to damage caused by flood, I accept the onus is with a policyholder to read the policy documentation that is sent to them following their policy inception, to ensure the cover detailed meets their requirements. If upon reading the documentation, the policyholder identifies the cover is insufficient, I consider it remains up to them to find alternate cover that fits their needs.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home was caused by flood as a result of overflow of a watercourse.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from the Insurance Council of Australia's hydrology panel to confirm the cause of the water inundation.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 11 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and the matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the damage was due to the overflow of the Bundamba Creek and the Bremer River, caused by backwater flooding of the Brisbane River resulting in water inundating your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 30 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that water had flooded their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 13 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 30 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 13 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

Your client does not dispute receiving the Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) which sets out the exclusions in the policy, including flood as an exclusion. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I accept the onus is on your client to contact AAMI if your client was confused or required clarification over the policy coverage, including any exclusions that are stated.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 29 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

I acknowledge your clients believe storm water run-off caused the damage to their property however as your clients property has a floor or habitable level 600mm above ground level, on the balance of probabilities I do not accept storm water runoff would have caused any damage inside your insured's property.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of Bundamba Creek, which received floodwaters from the Bremer River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Any such application must be made within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 17 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 12 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 17 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note your position that your client was not told when taking out the policy with AAMI that he was not covered for flood. You allege that as a result the claim should be paid. Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

You have also stated your client did not recall receiving the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) and that the exclusions in the policy therefore do not apply, as the documents were not received until after the contract was in place. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your client. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 27 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Bremer River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. Dear Mr and Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 16 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 18 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the claim has not being properly reviewed as there was no flood waters in your area.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 18 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River causing water to inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Clients: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 14 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to report their house was inundated with water due to heavy rain.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 18 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 14 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms and conditions of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

You have stated your clients were not made aware of the policy exclusion for damage caused by flood and had relied on AAMI to alert them of the inadequacy of the policy for their needs given their circumstances. Further, you state AAMI staff had a duty of utmost good faith to inform your clients of the unsuitability of the insurance cover selected during consultation with them. You assert AAMI has failed in its statutory responsibility to treat your clients with 'utmost good faith' as required by section 13 of The Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (ICA).

I am satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and therefore section 69(2) of the ICA provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days of commencing cover is sufficient. I note that you do not dispute that your clients were provided with a copy of the policy documentation, therefore I accept that your clients were issued the policy documents AAMI was required to send.

Your clients' policy is defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your clients, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your clients to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

You have asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

Accordingly, I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 18 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I have considered your argument that the damage to your clients' property was caused by storm water run-off and / or rain. I accept that in order to claim for storm water runoff damages to the home and contents, the onus is with your clients to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain or storm water.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 26 January 2011 and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by overland floodwaters from the Bremer River resulting in inundation of your clients' property. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 10 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 10 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

You have stated your client did not recall receiving the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) and that the exclusions in the policy therefore do not apply, as the documents were not received until after the contract was in place. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your client on 19 July 2007. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI prior to evacuation from their home, your client was informed by a staff member 'Mr Hakim congratulations I have gone through your policy and you are covered for flood'. You also assert 2 days later Mr Hakim was advised to keep receipts of all rentals so if the claim was approved AAMI would then reimburse your client. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations Mr Hakim has acted in reliance on that statement to his detriment. That is, a number of salvageable items were thrown out as AAMI would replace them and had he not have been told that he would have salvaged these items. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of these misrepresentations.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied your client were assured any loss or damage to their home would be covered by their policy. I do not accept your clients' loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 1 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your patience whilst I have conducted my review of your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim was lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy.

Each of the Home Building and Home Contents policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood. Both policy booklets set out flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas around the sire, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 3 January 2011 to report that your home had been inundated by floodwaters that had commenced five days earlier. AAMI arranged for a home building assessor to attend your residence and report on the damage sustained. At this time, you advised a large shed or garage at the rear of your property had been badly affected, and that the main building was spared any water damage.

Following their initial inspection, AAMI obtained a hydrology report from WRM Water + Environment (WRM) that detailed the nature of the flood that Emerald as a township had experienced. A short time later, a representative of WRM contacted you to discuss the specific circumstances of the water inundation your property had experienced.

After considering all of the available information including various conversations with you and WRM's reports, AAMI wrote to you on 23 February 2011 to advise the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI set out the decision had been made on the basis the damage you were claiming was the result of flood and therefore not covered under the terms of the policy.

You are not satisfied with AAMI's decision and while you accept the decision not to accept the claim based on flood, you believe AAMI provided misleading advice when you commenced the policy stating you were covered in such situations. You assert had such representations not been made, you would not have purchased the policy. You have now asked that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file and have sought further information and clarification from WRM and AAMI. I have also considered a report in relation to the 2008 Emerald flood event. As you are aware, given the nature of these claims, each must be considered individually and any findings I make are limited to the particular property and the specific circumstances of each claim.

Flood

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in each of the policy booklets on pages 13 and 21 respectively.

The policy also states that flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

I accept the area where your house is located is in a flood prone area and had previously experienced flood events one of which occurred in 2008.

I note WRM made comment in their report that there was no evidence that local stormwater runoff contributed to the damage to your property. Further, following their discussions with you after the flood, WRM noted water entered your property from a storm water channel to the rear of your property.

In my discussions with you, I note your view the water that inundated your property was predominately from the watercourse to the rear. In your statements, you confirm water entered your garage from the rear watercourse and receded within 24 hours. Further, you state there is no underground drainage system in your area, rather rainwater from your property runs into the street gutter on Carrington Place to the front, and the watercourse to the rear. You also state that in any normal storm event water from your property runs into the watercourse to the rear.

I have reviewed Google maps and an interactive flood map of your area. I note the watercourse to the rear of your property runs east to west and water appears to drain into the large stormwater channel to the west of your property and eventually into the Nogoia River.

In light of the rainfall patterns, the duration of the inundation and other evidence, I accept that the water which entered your property was backflow water from the Nogoia River. I accept such water escaped from the river, entered stormwater channels and in turn the watercourse to the rear of your property, rather than travelling across land, outside of channels and drains, from the river or the stormwater channel to the west.

For present purposes, I accept that for your property the watercourse to the rear serves as a drain for normal rain water. After careful consideration of the specific circumstances of your property and the loss you suffered, it is my view that it cannot be ruled out that the water which caused the inundation of the garage escaped from the watercourse to the rear of your property, rather than travelling across land from the stormwater channel to the west or the river. As stated above, I accept the watercourse to the rear of your property serves as a drain. Damage caused by water escaping from a drain is covered under the terms of the policy and you are entitled to the interpretation of the policy.

Consequently, I am pleased to confirm AAMI have agreed to accept your claim pursuant to the other terms and conditions of the policy. AAMI will contact you shortly to arrange the further processing of your claim.

AAMI's representations

I note your assertions that when you commenced the policy covering your home and contents in 2008, that AAMI staff provided assurances flood would be covered. I have investigated this and whilst staff may have advised some claims are covered in some circumstances, each claim and each event must be considered in isolation. I am unable to accept you would have been provided with an absolute assurance you would be covered for flood for future events, when the policy clearly provides otherwise.

I must advise that both the home and contents policies do not cover flood and should such an event occur in the future, AAMI will not be obliged to accept a claim, should it be deemed the cause of the loss or damage was flood, as defined in the policies.

Yours faithfully

Re: AAMI Claim [REDACTED]

Thank you for your patience whilst I have been reviewing AAMI's decision regarding your contents claim.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

I confirm I have considered the information you have provided and have discussed the matter with Management in the QLD Home Claims department. It has been agreed that a site specific hydrology report should be obtained from a suitably qualified expert, with a view to determining whether the contents were damaged by rainwater runoff as opposed to floodwater.

Once the inspection has occurred and the related report received, the Home Claims Manager will make contact with you to advise if the previous decision has been revised. If you are then not satisfied with the decision you receive, you are entitled to seek a further review by my office.

I have requested contact be made with you by the Home Claims department later this week in order for a mutually agreeable time to be arranged for the hydrologist to attend. However, if you disagree with the proposed course of action, please notify me.

If you have any questions regarding this decision, please do not hesitate to contact my office on 1300 240 437.

Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your patience whilst I have conducted my review of your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim was lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy.

Each of the Home Building and Home Contents policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood. Both policy booklets set out flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas around the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 3 January 2011 to report that your home had been inundated by floodwaters a week earlier. AAMI arranged for a home building assessor to attend your residence and report on the damage sustained. At this time, the assessor noted water had inundated your home to a level of approximately 75mm damaging most rooms.

Following their initial inspection, AAMI obtained a hydrology report from WRM Water + Environment (WRM) that detailed the nature of the flood that Emerald as a township had experienced. A short time later, a representative of WRM contacted you to discuss the specific circumstances of the water inundation your property had experienced.

After considering all of the available information, AAMI wrote to you on 23 February 2011 to advise the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI explained the decision had been made on the basis the damage you were claiming was the result of flood and therefore not covered under the terms of the policy.

You are not satisfied with AAMI's decision and contacted the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) to lodge an appeal. As the matter had not been through the relevant internal dispute resolution process, your dispute has been referred to my office for review before it can be considered by the FOS.

You state you were of the belief that your policy covered you for flood and prior to the floods you state you contacted AAMI and were assured by the operator that you would be covered. Further, you assert the water that entered your home had come from drains surrounding the property and you note that the hydrologist report does not address this issue. You assert the damage to your home was from stormwater and are therefore seeking for AAMI to cover the claim.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file and have sought further information and clarification from AAMI. I have also considered a report in relation to the 2008 Emerald flood event. As you are aware, given the nature of these claims, each must be considered individually and any findings I make are limited to the particular property and the specific circumstances of each claim.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in each of the policy booklets on pages 13 and 21 respectively.

The policy also states that flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

I accept the area where your house is located is in a flood prone area and had previously experienced flood events one of which occurred in 2008.

I note WRM made comment in their report dated 18 February 2011 the initial inundation of the street would have been from the Nogoa River water backing up the stormwater pipes. It ruled out stormwater runoff. WRM also noted the Nogoa River overflowed and drained in a northerly direction along the western (upstream) side of town along a major constructed open channel, which in turn overflowed towards your property.

In my discussions with you, I note your view the initial water which inundated your property came from the storm water drains in the street gutters at the front of your property. You advised you saw the water flowing out of the storm water drains and fill the street. You also noted a stormwater channel or irrigation channel of some sort to the rear of your property which too filled with water and overflowed.

I have reviewed Google maps of your area. I note the stormwater channel at the rear of your property runs north and water appears to drain into the large stormwater channel to the west of your property and eventually into the Nogoa River. In light of the rainfall patterns, the duration of the inundation and other evidence, I accept that the water which entered your property was backflow water from the Nogoa River. I accept such water escaped from the river, entered stormwater channels and in turn the constructed channel to the rear of your property, rather than travelling across land, outside of channels and drains, from the river or the stormwater channel to the west.

For present purposes, I accept that for your property the open channel which WRM refer to serves as a drain for normal rain water. After careful consideration of the specific circumstances of your property and the loss you suffered, it is my view that it cannot be ruled out that the water which caused the inundation of your home came from the drains both at the front and to the rear of your property, rather than travelling across land from the stormwater channel to the west or the river. As stated above, I accept the watercourse to the rear of your property serves as a drain. Damage caused by water escaping from a drain is covered under the terms of the policy and you are entitled to the interpretation of the policy.

Consequently, I am pleased to confirm AAMI have agreed to accept your claim pursuant to the other terms and conditions of the policy. AAMI will contact you shortly to arrange the further processing of your claim.

Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED],

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Page 31 of the policy booklet provides that AAMI will pay for spoilage of frozen food caused by failure of electricity supply to your home to a limit of $400.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to report water entry at your property, damaging contents in your garage. You attributed this to a storm water drain down the road backing up.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter of damage to your contents, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report and after considering it and the other information to hand, including a Hydrology report, AAMI advised you the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 5 April 2011.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You also seek cover for the contents of your freezer when the power to your home was cut, which has not been addressed by AAMI.

You now ask that I review this matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Damage to Contents

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 5 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of a watercourse branching off the Brisbane River. The evidence indicates the water then travelled over land and inundated your property and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

Spoiled Frozen Food

Notwithstanding, I understand your food in your freezer was spoiled as a result of this event. The policy provides cover for additional benefits, such as 'Spoiled frozen food'. I accept the policy states that AAMI will pay for spoiled frozen food caused by failure of public electricity to your home other than because of industrial action.

I note AAMI has conducted enquiries into the failure of the electricity supply and was unable to substantiate their claim that flood (as defined in the policy) caused the electricity to fail, which therefore led to the spoilage of your food. In the circumstances, I am pleased to advise AAMI has agreed to accept and settle your claim for frozen food spoilage.

I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process this aspect of the claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44.

My decisions represent AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 16 January 2011 to advise during the heavy rain water had backed up through the storm water drains and flooded the street, which had caused damage to your contents.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham & Lindsay, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from the Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel to confirm the cause of the water inundation and examined interactive flood maps provided on the Queensland Government website.

After considering the reports and information, AAMI wrote to you on 8 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood, which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision. You have advised you specifically sought clarification from AAMI on 12 August 2010 as to how to differentiate storm and flood damage and that the response you were provided with in regard to what when water damage would be covered matches the situation that this dispute relates to. You have advised the damage occurred after it was raining heavily and this caused at least part of the loss incurred. You have advised the drains surrounding your home were unable to cope with the rainfall and your contents were damaged by this before the river broke its banks. Additionally, you question why AAMI has not agreed to settle you for spoiled frozen food under the relevant policy benefit and have raised concerns regarding AAMI meeting its obligations under its Customer Charter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the external assessor and hydrologist, along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

Damage to Contents

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I acknowledge your position is that the drains surrounding your home were unable to cope with the rainfall and your contents were damaged by overflow from this before floodwaters entered the property. I further note you consider AAMI's advice on 12 August 2010 that you would be covered if it has been raining heavily and floods your home has not been complied with in respect to this claim, as this is what you consider happened. However, without any evidence to support this position, I believe the evidence presently to hand should be relied upon, which is that water from a stormwater channel connected to the Brisbane River rose and overflowed, then travelled overland before entering your home.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports and information it considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 8 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. In the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

If you are able to provide any evidence you considers supports your position that all or some of the damage to your contents was caused by storm and rainwater prior to floodwaters coming into contact with them, the matter can be reconsidered.

Spoiled Frozen Food

Notwithstanding, I understand your food in your freezer was spoiled as a result of this event. The policy provides cover for additional benefits, such as 'Spoiled frozen food'. I accept the policy states that AAMI will pay to a maximum of $400 for spoiled frozen food caused by failure of public electricity to your home other than because of industrial action.

I note AAMI has conducted enquiries into the failure of the electricity supply and was unable to substantiate their claim that flood (as defined in the policy) caused the electricity to fail, which therefore led to the spoilage of your food. In the circumstances, I am pleased to advise AAMI has agreed to accept and settle your claim for frozen food spoilage.

I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process this aspect of the claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44.

AAMI Customer Charter

I note your view that AAMI did not comply with its Customer Charter on a number of occasions throughout its handling of your claim. It is my understanding your concerns in this regard have not been considered by AAMI Management. If you are able to provide specific details in regard to the occasions you consider AAMI breached its Customer Charter, those details will be provided to AAMI Management to consider and arrange a response to you in regard to the issuing of any $30 Penalty Payments.

Once that has occurred, if you are dissatisfied with the Manager's response, you can seek a further review of that by my office.

My decisions represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED] and Miss [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 28 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and as such the matter was forwarded to my office for review. In addition, you advised that AAMI told you to dispose of the carpets and they would arrange replacements for you. You also advised AAMI informed you they would cover the cost of an attending electrician so your essential items were up and running again.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 28 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of the Lagoon Creek causing water to inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

I have considered the matter on the carpet and electrician expenses you believe AAMI informed you they would pay for. Upon discussing the matter with AAMI management I can advise that AAMI have accepted the electricians cost you have incurred and will be in contact with to discuss the settlement of this item. The basis of this is that the electricians cost was to check the stove, fridge, air conditioner, hot water system and other electrical appliances to make sure they were safe and fix if possible. AAMI have confirmed they advised they approved this work and as such have accepted these costs.

I have discussed the matter of the carpet with AAMI management who have declined to accept any cost incurred as there has been no financial loss incurred as the damage to the carpet was such that they had to be removed due to health and safety concerns. I acknowledge your statement that you would have adopted a cheaper method of drying the carpet instead of removing them if you knew AAMI were not going to pay for them, however I am also persuaded by the fact this conversation occurred on 17 January 2011 some 6 days after the carpets were inundated by water. I can confirm messages from this day clearly indicate that you can start disposing of items that are starting to smell but to keep photos of everything. Later that same day the messages further state you removed the carpet as it was starting to smell and advised you would keep a small section for the assessor to view who will determine coverage. This confirms to me that the carpet was taken up prior to any discussion about any carpet replacement and clearly indicates any such disposal of items would be assessed for coverage when an assessor attends Unfortunately I do not have any evidence before me to indicate that when you first rang AAMI they indicated they would pay for new carpet regardless of the claim decision. Unfortunately in the absence of messages to confirm this assertion I am guided by the policy and procedures of AAMI and stating to a customer that AAMI would replace carpet whether the claim is covered or not is not the policy of AAMI. Therefore, while I empathise with your circumstances I am satisfied AAMI is not required to pay for replacement carpet.

Therefore, I am satisfied AAMI is not required to pay for replacement carpet but will meet the costs incurred by the electrician.

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request to have your claim reviewed through AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

As previously advised, it is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Landlord Insurance Policy.

Page 14 of the policy provides that you are covered for damage or loss occurring during the period of cover caused by flood.

The Claim

On 18 January 2011 AAMI was notified of a claim you needed to lodge for damage to your property situated at 53 Tramore Street, Rocklea, which was caused by flood on 12 January 2011.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, to assess the loss. AAMI subsequently accepted the claim for flood damage to the home.

However, a dispute has arisen in regard to damage to the stumps at the home, as AAMI attributes it to soil movement, which is excluded under all sections of the policy.

You have advised the floor was fine prior to the flood event and is now bowed. You believe the repair of the stumps needs to be covered under the claim, on the basis the damage was caused by the flood.

My Decision

I have considered all the information to hand relating to this matter, including the report compiled and submitted by Morgan Consulting Engineers (Morgan), who inspected the home to determine any structural damage that had occurred as a result of the flood event.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

In regard to the damage in dispute, I note Morgan's report stated:

'The concrete stumps to the residence appear to be original, or were replaced many years ago. The stumps are generally in reasonable condition although the stumps at the front are showing severe signs of degradation due to age, such as cracking, and spalling. Some of these cracks have been repaired in the past.'

'The stumps in the front wall are leaning to the left hand side of the residence, however the fibro sheeting has been cut to profile in places to suit this lean, and has clearly been in this condition for many years.'

'There is a noticeable difference in level between some stumps.'

In relation to damage caused by the flood event, Morgan's report concludes:

'The spalling and cracking of concrete is caused by corrosion of reinforcement within the stump, and in this case, the hinges inserted into the stumps have caused much of the damage. This process occurs over a period of many years and could not be caused by a brief one-off event.'

'The site is likely to be underlain by highly reactive clay, and the increased moisture content under the residence as a result of the flood event has caused swelling of the soil and lifting of the lightly loaded stumps in the centre of the main bedroom and living room. This has resulted in the uneven floor in these rooms, which is considered to exceed normal serviceability limits. This is considered to be as a result of the recent flood event.'

Based on Morgan's opinion as set out above, I am satisfied it has been established that the flood event caused damage to the stumps in the centre of the main bedroom and living room, resulting in uneven floors in these two rooms. Accordingly, I have discussed the matter with AAMI's Home claims department and can advise AAMI will be covering the damage to the stumps Morgans have nominated as being damaged by the flood and floors in the main bedroom and living room.

In regard to the remaining stumps AAMI has previously declined to cover, I am not satisfied it has been established these suffered damage as a result of the flood event, as opposed to from other causes. I note Morgan has stated in relation to this:

'The large and relatively random pattern of settlement previously experienced in the stumps indicates that the soil supporting these stumps has failed in bearing. There does not seem to be any recent increase in settlement. Therefore this is considered to be not as a result of the flood event.'

I accept I can rely on the expert opinion of Morgan, in the absence of any contradictory expert findings.

In summary, with the exception of the stumps in the centre of the main bedroom and living room and the floors in these rooms, I am not satisfied it has been established the remaining damage in dispute occurred as a result of the flood event as opposed to other causes over an extended period of time.

In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI is required to cover the stumps in the centre of the main bedroom and living room and the uneven floors in these two rooms. However, I am satisfied AAMI is entitled to decline to cover the remaining damage in dispute, on the basis that the evidence to hand supports it was not caused by the flood event.

I have now returned your claim file to AAMI's Home claims department, who will contact you shortly in regard to the details relating to the revisions to the scope of works and the damage settlement, to reflect the amendments arising from this review.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear M [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your house had been damaged during the recent storms.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 19 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe as you were initially advised you would be covered and were advised additional consideration would be given based on this.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 19 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI initially you were informed by a staff member that you would be covered and believe further consideration should be given to your claim based on this information. Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation you had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to your home and contents.

I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied you were assured any loss or damage to their home would be covered by their policy. I do not accept you loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI.

I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of the Oxley Creek which flowed down an unnamed tributary of the creek causing water to flood overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your patience whilst I have been reviewing your dispute regarding the above claim.

As previously advised it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You lodged a claim with AAMI on 12 January 2011 for water entry at your property.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

After conducting investigation into the matter, AAMI sent you a letter dated 8 April 2011 stating it considered three separate events occurred at your property over 11 and 12 January 2011. AAMI believed the first of those events constituted stormwater runoff inundation and agreed to cover damage attributed to this, which it accepted was to an internal height of 100mm above floor level. However, AAMI considered the other two events were floodwater inundation and declined to cover any damage attributed to these.

You have made a submission to my office and requested the settlement offer be revised to 370mm above floor level inside your home and to 900mm to the shed, based on the evidence you compiled and submitted.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed the reports AAMI considered and whilst I understand the basis of its current settlement offer, I believe there are sufficient doubts surrounding the evidence it has relied upon to warrant its revision.

Accordingly, I can advise the settlement offer has now been increased to meet your request damage to a height of 370mm above floor level inside the house and to a height of 900mm for the shed be covered under your claim as being the result of stormwater runoff. However, damage above these heights will not be covered, as I am satisfied the evidence to hand supports that it was attributed to floodwater.

I have now returned your file to AAMI's Claims department so contact can be arranged with a view to progressing the claim to settlement stage.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request I review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

Your Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

In summary, the policy covers you for sudden and unexpected damage caused by the insured events listed on pages 8 to 13 and 16 to 20 of the policy booklets. One of the events covered is loss or damage caused by or arising from Storm and rainwater.

Page 12 and page 18 of the policy booklets explain you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 13 and page 18 of the policy booklets further explain you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood.

Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it, the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to report water had entered your home to approximately knee height causing damage. A claim was lodged AAMI and arranged for external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey to attend your property to inspect and report on the damages. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After reviewing the reports, AAMI decided to obtain a second assessment report on your property. Upon review of the second assessment report, AAMI requested a specific hydrologist report on your property and appointed WRM to conduct this report.

You were dissatisfied with the progress of your claim and the timeframe in reaching a decision. AAMI explained that the hydrologist report would take several weeks to be obtained and due to it being a specific site report they could not expedite the matter.

You remained dissatisfied with this response and contacted the Financial Ombudsman Service to lodge a complaint. You are disappointed at the timeframe taken to resolve the claim and are seeking for AAMI to payout your claim.

My Decision

I have read all of the available material on the file.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Contents policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I can advise that recent weather events across Australia have placed stress on AAMI's resources and they are endeavouring to expedite the claims process for its customers. This unfortunately requires time and on behalf of AAMI I thank you for your patience in this matter.

I can confirm that that whilst damage or loss caused by flood (as defined above) is not covered, damage or loss caused by stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface is covered, subject to the other terms and conditions of the policy.

It is essential that all available information is sought in making a correct decision on your claim. In response to your claim, AAMI believe it is appropriate to obtain the expert opinion of a hydrologist on the cause of water ingress given rise to the damage to your property. Once the report is received, AAMI will conduct a review of the matter and a decision will be provided.

Accordingly, I accept AAMI are entitled to obtain all relevant information before a final decision is made pursuant to the terms and conditions of the policy.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. Holmes,

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 16 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that water had inundated their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 16 June 2011.

You have stated your clients did not receive a copy of any Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) from AAMI until after the premium was paid. As a consequence, you assert that AAMI can not rely upon the exclusions contained within the policy as the PDS was not received until after the policy was in place.

It is my understanding there is no dispute AAMI did post the relevant policy booklets to your clients, after the policy was incepted. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your clients the relevant documentation when required to do so.

Your clients' policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your clients, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your clients to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

Whilst storm water runoff is an event that is covered under AAMI's Home Building and Contents policies, I accept the onus is with your clients to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and rainwater. I do not believe there is sufficient evidence to hand to support that some part of the damage occurred solely as a result of storm water runoff or rainwater entering your clients' home.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. When considering this matter, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist. In the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage was due to an event covered under the policy, I accept it was caused by floodwaters from the Brisbane River.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 8 February 2011, and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by floodwater inundation from overflowing of the Brisbane River. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your phone call to my office on 14 March 2011. You have requested I review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been made under AAMI's Landlord Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy covers you for loss or damage to your insured building caused by the insured events set out on pages 12 - 17 of the policy booklet. One of the events covered is loss due to flood.

Page 28 submits, 'We will pay for the loss of rent incurred by you while your landlord building is being rebuilt or repaired if:

- your landlord building has been damaged or lost by an insured event, and
- we agree your landlord building is no longer habitable, and
- your tenant was paying rent due under a current rental agreement with you for at least four consecutive weeks preceding the date the damage or loss occurred'.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to report that your rental property had suffered storm damage two days earlier. On 19 January 2011, AAMI contacted you to discuss the details of your loss where you advised that during a storm, your property had been flooded. Accordingly, AAMI organised for a loss assessor to attend your property.

On 23 February 2011, AAMI contacted you to discuss the loss of rent aspect of your claim. You were advised that at this stage, the loss of rent aspect of the claim had not been approved as it had not been ascertained that your tenant had paid four consecutive rental payments prior to the loss. As part of AAMI's investigation, they had been advised that your property had an upstairs and downstairs area and the rental payments were divided between the two levels. As the upper level tenants had moved out, it left the full payment to be made by the tenant in the lower level who was unable to do so.

On 11 March 2011, you contacted my office expressing your dissatisfaction with the loss of rent aspect not yet being approved under your claim. You advised that the tenant's last payment was on 16 December 2010 which covered the rent to 19 December 2010. You further advised that the current rental agreement does not expire until 14 April 2011. You were dissatisfied with AAMI's decision so pursuant to AAMI's Internal Dispute Process, your concerns were referred to Technical Support Officer [REDACTED] to review.

[REDACTED] reviewed your claim and contacted you on 14 March 2011 to discuss. On this call, [REDACTED] maintained the decision not to cover your loss of rent under this claim. He reiterated that in order to be eligible for the loss of rent benefit, the tenant must have paid four consecutive weeks of rent prior to the loss. As it had been confirmed that the rent was only paid up to 19 December 2010 and the date of loss was on 12 January 2011, the benefit did not apply to your claim.

You remained dissatisfied with AAMI's decision and subsequently contacted my office the following day. You submitted that the tenant had made punctual rental payments from April 2005 right up until 16 December 2010 and had abandoned the property on approximately 11 January 2011. You further advised that as the rental agreement is effective till 14 April 2011, the loss of rent benefit should be applied to your claim. You have now asked that I review your claim.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on the file.

As a matter of general principle, the onus is on the insured to prove, on the balance of probabilities, that the claimed loss or damage was caused by an insured event. Once an insured establishes a prima facie case, the onus falls on the insurer to prove that the loss or damage did not arise from an insured event or is otherwise excluded from cover.

Page 28 of the policy booklet is clear in stating that you are covered for loss of rent incurred by you if your property is damaged by an insured event. In order for this benefit to apply, the property must be deemed unliveable; the tenant must have paid four weeks consecutive rent preceding the date of loss and the tenant must be on a current rental agreement.

During our recent conversation, you advised that your tenant had vacated your property prior to the date of loss leaving outstanding rental payments. As previously mentioned the loss of rent benefit covers loss of rent incurred due to an insured event. I understand that you had an agreement with your tenant stating that although they had vacated the property, they were still responsible for all rental payments until a new tenant had been found. Accordingly, as your tenant had vacated your property prior to the date of loss, I am satisfied that this event did not prejudice your ability to collect rent and therefore, you did not incur a loss of rent.

Further more, I accept that a current rental agreement must be in place to be covered for loss of rent. Although I accept that your rental agreement originally expired on 14 April 2011, I am satisfied that your tenant terminated the rental agreement effective 19 December 2010, being prior to the date of loss.

Having reviewed all the available information on the claim, I am satisfied that as your tenant had vacated the property prior to the date of loss, this event did not prejudice your ability to collect rent. Further more, I am also satisfied that there was not a rental agreement in place at the date of loss and your tenant had not paid four consecutive weeks of rent preceding the date of loss. As such, it is my view that you have not met the requirements for the 'loss of rent' benefit to apply on your claim.

Accordingly, I believe that AAMI's decision not to cover your loss of rent is correct, pursuant to the terms and conditions of your policy.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED],

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that the lower level of your home had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a Hydrology Area Report that had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms (hydrologist) to confirm the cause of the water inundation.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 8 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision on the basis a previous claim in 2008 was accepted.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the external assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 8 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept the flood was caused by floodwater overflowing from O'Shea Gully, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I note you submit AAMI accepted claim 5423964700 for a storm and rainwater event that occurred on 18 November 2008. However, there is no information to indicate AAMI accepted this claim as being the result of a specific event of flood rather it appears AAMI considered it consistent with Storm and rainwater for which the policy responds.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear [REDACTED],

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that due to the heavy rains the water was rising. You advised you left your property on at which stage the water was up to the roof of your home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a hydrology report commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 8 April 2011 advising the claim for flood damage was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and believe the entire claim should be covered. You believe you should be covered as you do not live near the river, therefore storm damage and not flood has caused the damage.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 8 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the inundation of flood water escaping and overflowing from the Tivoli Creek and/or Bremer River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number - [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that I review the decision made by AAMI in regard to your home building claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

Your Policy

You currently hold a Home Building Insurance policy with AAMI for your residence.

Your policy covers you for sudden and unexpected damage caused by the events listed on pages 8 to 13. One of the events covered is 'Storm and rainwater', including hail.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 10 January 2011 to lodge a claim for damage to the retaining wall at your home, which had collapsed.

AAMI subsequently declined the claim and sent you a letter stating this was on the basis of the retaining wall not having been properly maintained and repaired, or not complying with local government or other statutory requirements.

As you disagreed with the decision, you requested my office review the matter.

You advised my office the wall was constructed by the developers of the estate your home is in. Your position is that the Council has confirmed signing off on the estate development and that it would therefore follow the wall did meet any requirements in place at the time of the construction. You have further advised the Council informed you there was not a Code or Building Regulation specific to retaining walls when it was constructed.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I note ICPS Australia (ICPS) has recently advised AAMI the only requirement for construction of retaining walls at the time yours was built was that it needed to be designed by an Registered Professional Engineering in Queensland (RPEQ) with relevant experience in similar type of work in accordance with recognised Engineering first principles. There was no specific Code or Building Regulation it needed to adhere to and instead it was left to the discretion of the RPEQ undertaking the design to satisfy and demonstrate due diligence in regard to the engineering principles and procedures adopted.

I believe it is reasonable to accept the retaining walls constructed on your property during the development of the estate met the requirement of being designed by an RPEQ, given the development was considered acceptable by the Council.

Accordingly, taking this into account, I am not satisfied AAMI can rely on the exclusion it has nominated to decline your claim and I have given consideration to whether there is evidence to support that an insured event as defined in the policy was the cause of the damage to the wall.

I note ICPS's report does attribute the collapse to hydrostatic pressure building up during the prolonged rainfall in early January, so I am pleased to advise your claim has now been accepted on the basis that rainwater predominantly caused the wall to collapse.

I have returned the claim file to AAMI's Home Claims department and you will be contacted shortly in regard to the arrangements for progressing with the claim.

If you have any questions relating to my decision, please do not hesitate to contact my office via the details on the first page of this letter.

Yours faithfully,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by storm water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 15 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You contacted the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS) unhappy with AAMI's decision to deny your claim. You refute the information AAMI has relied upon in reaching its decision and believe the claim should be covered.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 15 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River causing water to inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mrs and Mr Laszlo,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: ■

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 11 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist, WRM Water & Environment (WRM) to confirm the cause of the water inundation.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 16 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the water escaped from the street drains as there were no signs of any significant water flow through the channel. You advised the WRM report offered no evidence to support its conclusion the Burpengary creek overflowed which they believe caused the water inundation.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with photographs of the affected area in the absence of flood mapping.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 16 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I acknowledge your belief that water escaped from a three meter square storm water drain in close proximity to your property. However based on the hydrologist report and photographs of the water inundation taken during the event, the evidence before me indicates the predominant cause of the flood was the over flow of the Burpengary Creek. Therefore, I accept that the flood was caused by floodwaters from Burpengary, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr & Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your recent claim. I can confirm that I have completed the review on behalf of Carolyn Biram.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

Your Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

Your policy is designed to provide you with financial protection and peace of mind against sudden and unexpected loss or damage to your contents caused by the events set out on pages 8 to 13 of your policy booklet. One of the insured events covered is 'Storm or rainwater'.

In summary, page 14 of the policy explains you are not covered under any section of the policy for damage, loss, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving: structural failure or other failure or breakdown; soil movement or settlement.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 9 January 2011 to lodge a claim for damage sustained to your property. You advised that it had been raining for several days, causing the retaining wall to collapse. You advised the retaining wall holds up your deck and a water tank. Consequently, Pattersons Insurerbuild (Pattersons) attended your home to secure the damage. Pattersons subsequently reported the rear retaining wall underneath the deck collapsed as a result of heavy rain and lack of reinforcement. Water then entered into your office causing damage.

Shortly afterwards, AAMI engaged Construct Insurance Building Services (Construct) to attend your home on 24 January 2011 to assess the damage. In the report submitted by Construct, they advised the heavy rain appeared to have flooded the inadequate drainage system behind the retaining wall, causing it to shear the reinforcing bars, resulting in the collapse of the wall. Construct noted the retaining wall was less than one meter in height, but the load bearing wall appeared to be supporting an embankment greater than two meters in height, which included two bored piers supporting a deck extension and a water tank with an approximate four tonne capacity. Construct therefore believed the retaining wall had not been adequately constructed. On this basis, Construct recommended instructing an engineering to undertake further enquiries into this matter.

Subsequently, AAMI engaged an engineer, Censeo, who attended your home on 15 February 2011, to inspect and ascertain the cause of the damage. After considering the reports, AAMI's Home Claims Service Manager, Lily Harris, believed the retaining wall had not collapsed as a result of the storm but believed its failure was due to a design fault. Consequently, Ms Harris wrote to you on 23 March 2011 advising your claim was not one for acceptance.

In your letter dated 28 March 2011, you set out your dissatisfaction with AAMI's decision. You state the wall had adequate drainage and the failure of the wall was due to the recent storm, rather than a design fault. Further, you advised the erosion occurred after the wall had collapsed as a result of the torrential rain that occurred afterwards. Further, you submit AAMI has not provided any evidence to indicate your property was not properly maintained.

You now ask that I review this matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the information on your file.

It is a general principle of insurance law it is up to the policyholder to prove the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

In reviewing this matter, I accept Censeo inspected the solid block wall at your property and identified 7.7 meters of the block wall had collapsed and separated from its base. Further, Censeo determined the ground behind the wall had not been filled with compacted fill, rather they found evidence of bottles, debris, rubble and rubbish. Consequently, I accept Censeo determined rain would easily be able to penetrate the rubble, causing the soil to heave and therefore putting extra weight on the wall. I accept the policy clearly excludes any loss or damage caused by soil movement or settlement.

I acknowledge Censeo believed excess moisture in the uncompacted fill caused by an extreme storm event or a period of heavy rainfall may have caused the retaining wall to be pushed over. However, I accept Censeo identified the block wall had sheared off the footing mortar at the base and was therefore satisfied other issues, such as blocked weeps holes and unsuitable compaction levels behind the wall, contributed to the failure of the wall. Consequently, I accept Censeo was satisfied the collapse of the retaining wall was due to lack of connection to the footing, blocked weep holes and uncompacted fill behind the retaining structure.

I have considered your concerns why you believe your claim should be accepted. Even though I am satisfied the failure of the wall was a result of structural failure or breakdown, which is specifically excluded under all sections of the policy, I accept Censeo identified a period of high rainfall, which occurred during December 2010, may have also contributed to the collapse of the wall.

Accordingly, based on the information before me, it is my view AAMI is obliged to cover a portion of the damage sustained to wall. I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claim Department, who will contact you shortly with the view of negotiating settlement for the damage sustained to the wall.

In regard to the internal damage, I note AAMI has not previously considered this aspect of your claim. Consequently, I have also discussed this matter with AAMI management and I am pleased to advise they have agreed to consider covering the internal damage sustained to your home.

If you remain dissatisfied with AAMI's decision regarding the settlement of the wall or internal damage, you may contact my office and ask that I further consider this matter further for you.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 18 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water which came up underneath your house about a metre high into the laundry.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 5 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and state AAMI provided cover the last time your property was flooded back in June 2008, however AAMI have declined to do so this time. You believe that as you were covered for flood the last time around you would like AAMI to accept the claim and cover the flood damage this time also.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor, Hydrology Area Report and the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 5 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and Hydrology Area Report in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I acknowledge your assertions that you were covered last time for flood damage. I can confirm the claim you are referring was lodged on 25 May 2009. I can confirm these South East Queensland storms were not classified as flood damage, hence why you were covered for damage to the fridge and washing machine. I can also confirm an assessment of the damage to your property was not conducted at this time. Even if I were to accept that a flood caused damage to your property at this time and AAMI covered you for this event, I am satisfied that each claim is settled on its own merits according to the terms and conditions of the policy.

I accept your assertion that if the decision has been made in any way to deny claim based on the assessors report it is incorrect. However, I can confirm the main basis of the decision has been based on the Hydrology Area Report and unfortunately I am bound by this Hydrology Area Report which states your property was inundated by flood waters escaping or overflowing from Breakfast Creek which received flood waters from the Brisbane River.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of Breakfast Creek which received flood waters from the Brisbane River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 11 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated with water from the storm.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report regarding the damage to your property. AAMI also obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM) to investigate the cause of the water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 4 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the damage was caused by storm water and state your neighbour's claim was accepted by their insurer as they obtained a report confirming the damage was caused by storm water.

You now ask that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including report from Cunningham & Lindsey, the rainfall data along with interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 4 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the overflow of Sheep Station Creek, which is located approximately 100 metres south of your property and flows in a north east direction to join the Caboolture River. I also accept that if any rainwater runoff or water escaping from nearby drains did contribute to the local floodwater height, this was the result of water joining already heightened Creek level and its overflow. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been flooded, which had damaged your contents. During subsequent discussions with AAMI you advised you believed the water was rainwater runoff.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsay, who provided a report for consideration. AAMI also obtained a report from WRM Water & Environment and examined interactive flood maps provided on the Queensland Government website, as well as information from the Bureau of Meteorology.

After considering the reports and information, AAMI wrote to you on 3 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood, which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision. You believe the damage should be covered as you do not believe the reports being relied upon are accurate.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the external assessor and WRM, along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 and 21.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports it obtained and information it considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 3 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Oakey Creek, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Mr Paul Holmes
Senior Solicitor/Consumer Advocate
Civil Justice Services (Consumer Protection)
GPO Box 2449
BRISBANE QLD 4001

Dear Mr Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 21 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that due to the floods your house had been damaged.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 21 June 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note there is no dispute your client received the policy schedule and certificate. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position that your client was not told when taking out the policy with AAMI that the policy was inadequate for his needs. I make note in your submission that your client was aware that he lived in a suburb that was affected by water flow on a regular basis'. However, upon review of AAMI's records the policy began on 1 April 2001 there are no records that your client made AAMI aware of his intimate knowledge of the water flow issues in the Rocklea area. I accept your position that you believe that as a result of AAMI's failure to inform and draw your client's attentions of the shortcomings of the policy that AAMI must pay for the claim in accordance with AAMI's duty of utmost good faith as outlined in section 13 of the Insurance Contracts Act 1984.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversations your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

I can confirm that since 1 April 2001 there have been no less than three separate policy updates in this time which have been sent to your client. I can confirm that flood has been excluded from policy coverage since the beginning of your client's policy. As you would be aware the duty of utmost good faith is besotted upon both parties to the contract. I am of the view that based on your clients concern for his major asset (House) and his intimate knowledge of the Rocklea area that he should have made AAMI aware of this major concern so that AAMI could have also verbally advised your client that flood is not part of AAMI's underwriting risk.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your client's policies are defined events policies, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the Rocky Water Holes Creek and Oxley Creek which received floodwaters from the Brisbane river via the Oxley Creek, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Re: AAMI Claim umber [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to report water entry at your property on 11 January 2011, which you stated was storm water runoff from your street.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage, as well as an in-house assessor to attend following Cunningham Lindsay's assessment. Cunningham Lindsay and AAMI's assessor subsequently submitted their reports and after considering these and the other information to hand, AAMI advised you the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 11 May 2011.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state in your opinion, the water that entered your home came from the local storm water drains, which was unable to merge with the Pine River as it was already full from the release of the North Pine Dam. You state the water was not floodwater from the North Pine River, as that water did not travel in the direction of your home, but rather, it was flash flooding from storm water runoff and driving rain.

You have now requested I review the matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provide that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered.

Therefore, if the watercourse adjacent to your home flooded and that water inundated your home, I accept the loss is not covered by the policy. However if heavy rainfall accumulated on ordinarily dry land such as in your home's yard and that isolated rainwater ran off into your home, then I accept that event would be covered as a rainwater runoff claim. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and other water such as storm water runoff or water escaping from a drain.

The policy booklet defines flood as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes or overflows from, or cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it, the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or storm water channel.

Taking into account your advice to my office that the water that damaged your home was not floodwater from the North Pine River or its unnamed tributary, as that water did not travel in the direction of your home, I remain mindful that the policy excludes cover for circumstances where ordinarily dry land is flooded by water which cannot enter a watercourse since that watercourse is already full or overflowing. I accept water of this nature is still defined by AAMI as floodwater.

I have reviewed the details noted during the assessment completed by AAMI's in-house assessor and note they state you advised all the water came from the watercourse adjacent to the western boundary of your home that rose during the event.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood and that this occurrence is not covered under the policy.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that you were forced to evacuate your home as it had been inundated with water after severe storms.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a hydrology report commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 17 May 2011 advising the claim for flood damage was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe your claim should be covered. You state you have reviewed the hydrologist report and believe the water which inundated your home came from the stormwater drains and did not travel overland. You also believe that AAMI have not taken into account the topography in the area which supports your assertions. On this basis you now ask that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 17 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted and that the water came from the stormwater drains. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that a minor contribution of the overall flooding to your home may have come from water escaping from drains near your property at the time of the main flood event. I confirm that under Australian Insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain.

Accordingly, I accept that the flood was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflowing of the Oxley Creek approximately 450 metres south east of your property which received significant volumes of floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing it to rise and overflow. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mrs & Mr [REDACTED]

Re : AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

I refer to your request that the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS) consider your dispute with AAMI. I wish to advise my office is required to review the matter prior to the FOS. On this basis, I thank you for your request for a review of AAMI's decision regarding your home claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your dispute in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

Your Policy

Your claim has been made under AAMI's Home Building Insurance Policy.

Page 6 of the policy booklet explains what we cover as the building. It states 'The building is the dwelling and other structures at the site used for domestic or residential purposes'.

The policy is designed to provide you with financial protection and peace of mind against sudden and unexpected loss or damage to your building caused by the events set out on pages 8 to 13 of the Home Building Insurance policy booklet.

In summary, page 12 of the booklet provides that you are covered for loss or damage resulting from storm and rainwater, including stormwater run-off from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. Storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 14 of you policy booklet states that you are not covered under any section of the policy for loss, damage, cost or liability caused by or arising from or involving 'erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel', 'the washing away or movement of the surface of any path or driveway which has a surface consisting of a loose material such as gravel, stone or dirt' or 'soil movement or settlement'.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that heavy rain had caused damage to your driveway.

AAMI advised you of the limitations of your policy. You stated you were of the view your driveway should be covered and so AAMI requested that you forward photos of your driveway so that the matter could be reviewed.

Upon receipt of your photos AAMI advised your claim fell outside the terms and conditions of your policy and therefore your claim was not one for acceptance.

You were dissatisfied with this and approached the FOS, AAMI subsequently appointed Construct Services Pty Ltd (Construct) to perform an assessment of the damage to your property. After considering the content of the assessment report, AAMI remained of the view your claim was not one for acceptance.

On this basis I will now review these matters.

My Decision

I can confirm I have read and considered all the available information on the claim file.

It is my understanding the damage you are claiming relates solely to the driveway and AAMI does not dispute a storm event occurred at your property. However, AAMI has advised my office your claim for storm damage was not accepted on the basis that damage caused by or arising from or involving 'the washing away or movement of the surface of any path or driveway which has a surface consisting of a loose material such as gravel, stone or dirt' is excluded under all sections of the policy.

You have stated that you are of the view that your driveway surface is not loose as it is a compacted road base which, while made of gravel, is heavily compacted by a roller. You feel that it is equivalent to a bitumen surface and should therefore be covered under the policy.

I note the photos provided indicate that some of your driveway has a concrete edging but that there is nothing before me to indicate that the rest of your driveway has any adhesive substance applied to it (such as tar, asphalt or bitumen). Accordingly I accept that there is nothing to indicate that the surface cohered and I am therefore not persuaded by your view that it is not a loose surface.

Regardless of this I note the only damage claimed to your property is that the gravel surface has been washed away. I note your AAMI policy clearly and unambiguously states the erosion or washing away of soil, earth and gravel is not covered under any section of your policy.

Accordingly, I accept that AAMI's decision not to cover the damage to your driveway is correct pursuant to the terms and conditions of your policy.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr & [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated with water from the storm.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 8 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the damage was caused by storm water and not flood.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 8 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the overflow of the Oxley Creek located approximately 400 metres to the south east of your property which has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property via the Benarrawa Reserve on or around 12 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I advise that the information relied upon in making this decision can be located at: www.insurancecouncil.com.au

The specific areas referred to were:

1. Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel report (Volume 1 – Flooding in the Brisbane River Catchment)
2. Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel report (Volume 2 – Flooding in Brisbane LGA)

And the Queensland Reconstruction Authority Interactive Flood Map:
<http://www.qldreconstruction.org.au/maps/interactive-map>

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI claim number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request I review AAMI's decision relating to the above claim.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

Your Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy. In summary, the policy covers loss or damage arising from the events listed on pages 8 to 13, subject to no exclusions applying. Amongst the events covered is damage by Storm and rainwater.

Page 14 and 15 of the policy details the general exclusions applicable to the policy.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 19 February 2011 to lodge a claim for damage to your driveway which occurred whilst you were overseas. You advised there had been flooding in your area and the bitumen driveway had lifted due to water seepage.

AAMI arranged an assessment of the damage by an external assessing company, Cunningham Lindsay. After considering the contents of the assessment report and the information to hand, AAMI wrote to you on 5 May 2011 to advise your claim was not for acceptance.

You contacted my office to request a review of the matter. You explained whilst you accepted the washing away of the loose gravel service, which was for decorative purposes, was not covered. However, this had exposed the layer beneath which you consider was damaged by the heavy and consistent rain over a three week period. You advised due to this, the driveway is now damaged and filled with potholes. You queried the estimate the assessor had made regarding the repair cost and references in the assessment report.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the information on the claim file, including photographs and the assessment report.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your AAMI Home Building policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I consider AAMI's letter dated 5 May 2011 provides a detailed basis for its decision and I confirm I agree with its position. I acknowledge you are not claiming for the loose surface of the driveway, but rather the layer beneath. Nevertheless, I accept that exclusions cited in AAMI's letter are applicable to the claim and that accordingly, AAMI are not required to settle your loss, irrespective of any payment made previously to you for a similar matter.

Consequently, taking all of the above into consideration, I am satisfied AAMI is entitled to decline your claim.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Re AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your letter of 15 April 2011 addressed to the Managing Director of AAMI and copied to [REDACTED] Chief Executive Officer of The Suncorp Group.

My office conducts the internal dispute resolution (IDR) process for The Suncorp Group which includes AAMI. Pursuant to this process, we have the authority of the Chief Executive Officer to make binding decisions on AAMI and all complaints regarding disputed claims are referred to my office. Therefore Mr Snowball has referred your letter to my office and asked that we respond on his behalf.

Please note that whilst we have the authority to make binding decisions on AAMI, such decisions are not binding on you and you retain the right to seek further review of the decision by the Financial Ombudsman Service or through the legal system.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

Your AAMI Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Home Contents and Building Insurance Policy with Complete Replacement Cover. In general terms, the policy provides you with financial protection and peace of mind against loss or damage occurring to your home building from one of the events listed in the policy.

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your home had been inundated by flood water causing damage to your building and contents.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your home and contents was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 6 May 2011 advising the claim was partially for acceptance as the damage to your building and contents was caused by flood after an initial lower inundation by stormwater run off and/or water escaping nearby drains. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis that any damage to your home and contents caused by flood is specifically excluded from cover.

AAMI advised they accepted your property was inundated to a maximum depth of 70 mm above ground floor level by stormwater runoff and/or water escaping nearby drains on 11 January 2011. AAMI further advised additional damage to your property was caused by later inundation by floodwaters from Westlake after receiving floodwaters from the Brisbane River causing it to rise to a depth of approximately 2.2 meters above ground level on 12 January 2011. On this basis AAMI have advised they would cover all damage up to a maximum height of 70mm at your property.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision by my office.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from Cunningham Lindsey and the Hydrologist.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 6 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to only accept part of your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert opinions of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the whole of the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the damage to your property caused by flood is not covered.

In cases where there is an initial inundation resulting from stormwater runoff followed by a further inundation caused by flood water as defined by the policy, I accept that it is appropriate, in light of insurance and legal principles, for AAMI to cover you for the damage caused to the lounge room, main bedroom and study by stormwater run off (70cm), but not the additional damage caused by the flood water inundation.

I accept that the majority of the damage was caused by the overflow of the Westlake which received flood waters from the Brisbane River causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, and that the policy clearly provides that you are not covered for the damage caused by flooding as defined.

Whilst I empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to only cover damage to the lounge room, main bedroom and study up to 70cm in height from floor level is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear [REDACTED],

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 20 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated with water from the storm.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained relevant rainfall data from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM) to investigate the cause of the water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 15 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you dispute that you are located near Platypus Creek and advised you are six streets away from the Caboolture River. You assert when commenced the policy the operator assured you that you would be covered for absolutely everything that could occur. Therefore, you believe AAMI should uphold its contract due to the operator's error. Further, you state the assessor advised you verbally that you would be covered for water damage when they assessed your property.

You now ask that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including report from Cunningham & Lindsey along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 15 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the overflow of the Caboolture River and in turn, Platypus Creek. I note your property is located approximately 400 metres from the Caboolture River which has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 10 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I have also reviewed your assertion you were advised that you were covered for "absolutely everything" when you commenced the policy. I have reviewed your policy messages and cannot confirm the details of the conversations you had with the operator at the time of taking out your policy. However, I am satisfied that you would not have been advised flood was covered under your policy as there is specific scripting that the operator is to follow when commencing a policy. I am satisfied the AAMI operator would not have told you were covered for something that is specifically excluded from the policy. In any event, I must advise that the onus remains with you the policyholder, to read the booklet and ensure that the cover provided meets your requirements.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that the downstairs area of your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (Hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 19 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the water initially came up from the various storm water drains in your yard and street and therefore believe the damage should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 19 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted and I acknowledge your belief that water escaped from a storm water drain in close proximity to your property. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter. After careful consideration of the information and reports obtained, and viewing relevant Government mapping, it is evident that the damage to your contents was caused by flood. Specifically, the Brisbane River approximately 500 metres to the north of your property rose and overflowed causing Westlake and the Brisbane River to become one body of water which continued to rise and overflow. Floodwaters subsequently travelled overland to inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011. In the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 10 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood where flood is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe you were advised flood was covered and on this basis my office will now review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also considered the contents of your email to my office 3 June 2011.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 10 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the whole of the was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the majority of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI on 12 January 2011 that you were advised you are covered for flood. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations AAMI should not renege on this decision. It is my understanding AAMI have investigated this position and interviewed the claims assist operator who allegedly advised you were covered for flood damage. While the operator does not specifically remember this conversation with you she has confirmed that her direction at the time was to advise customers flood was not covered under the policy.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation you had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to your home and contents. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied you were assured any loss or damage to your home would be covered by the policy. I do not accept your loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI.

It is my understanding AAMI has accepted the damage to your ceiling as this result of storm water damage and has been settled accordingly.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Holmes,

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: MAF(Flood [REDACTED])
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 13 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise their home had been flooded.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 30 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to their property was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 13 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Contents policy is a defined events policy, which do not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 30 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your client's claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 26 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence that was relied upon.

You have stated your client was given the impression that she was paying for full and comprehensive insurance cover as she was not told of any exclusions to her cover, and was not told specifically of any flood exclusion. Further, you state your client does not recall receiving a copy of any Product Disclosure Statements (PDS) from AAMI and therefore the exclusions in the policy do not apply. You assert AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your client. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days, section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I can confirm that a policy or PDS is not required to be sent on each renewal unless there has been a variation to the policy during the preceding period of cover. Accordingly, I can confirm that an updated copy of the PDS was sent to your client with their renewal notice on 7 February 2008. I can confirm that the last policy period of 12 months up to 19 March 2011 has not had a change in the PDS and the PDS last received in 2008 is still current.

Your client's policy is a defined events policy, which do not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

You have also asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19. Accordingly I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your client's property was caused by the overflow of Oxley Creek which connects to the Brisbane River and runs around your client's property, resulting in inundation of your client's property. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Miss [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 28 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that after heavy rains and floods in the area the lower level of their house was inundated with water

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 28 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 28 June 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 28 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

Your client does not dispute receiving the Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) which sets out the exclusions in the policy, including flood as an exclusion. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion. I can confirm that a policy renewal and product disclosure statements (PDS) were printed for your client on 20 May 2007 and lodged with Australia Post on 24 May 2007. I accept the policy notices and PDS sent to your client were not returned for any reason.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I accept the onus is on your client to contact AAMI if your client was confused or required clarification over the policy coverage, including any exclusions that are stated.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 23 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of Stable Swamp Creek which leads to the Oxley Creek which connects to the Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Any such application must be made within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your patience whilst I have conducted my review of your claim.

I confirm it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood. The policy booklet sets out flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas around the sire, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to report that a stretch of the driveway leading to your home had been washed away by storm water. You explained that an ordinary dry creek bed lies over the bitumen driveway that had been inundated by storm water runoff causing a section to wash away.

AAMI subsequently obtained an assessment report from Cunningham & Lindsey that set out the nature of the damage and concluded it was the result of flood water from the Brisbane River catchment along with a release from the Wivenhoe Dam.

After considering all of the available information, AAMI wrote to you on 25 March 2011 to advise the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage was the result of flood and therefore not covered under the terms of the policy.

You are not satisfied with AAMI's decision and have provided a detailed response setting out that in your view the decision regarding your claim is incorrect. You have now requested that I review the claim.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including the additional information you have provided to my office.

I have also considered other additional material and have sought further information to gain a better understanding of the event and the particular circumstances at your property.

Given the nature of flood claims, each must be considered individually and any findings I make are limited to the particular property and the specific circumstances of each claim.

I accept the basic premise set out in Cunningham & Lindsey's report that the damage to the driveway is a result of flood water and is not solely the cause of storm and rainwater runoff. I also accept damage caused by storm and rainwater is covered by the policy, whilst damage caused by flood is not covered.

In light of the material made available during the course of this review by you and others, I have concerns regarding the level of inundation resulting from storm water runoff. I am of the view that any doubt in relation to this aspect should be resolved in your favour.

In this regard I looked at your claim on the basis that the inundation resulting from storm water runoff and not the result of water that has escaped or overflowed the ordinarily dry creek bed, or a cause consistent with the flood exclusion.

It is therefore my view that it cannot be ruled out that the water which caused the small section of drive way to wash away was caused by storm water runoff, rather than flood water as defined in the policy. As such, AAMI will cover the claim, subject to the terms and conditions of the policy.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for the request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim. I can confirm that I have completed this review on behalf of Virginia Graham.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim was lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Page 12 to 15 of the policy explains Extra Cover for portable valuables (extra cover). In summary, it explains that AAMI will provide you with extra cover for portable valuables against accidental loss or damage not already covered by the policy while they are at and away from your home within Australia.

Page 31 of the policy booklet provides that AAMI will pay for spoilage of frozen food caused by failure of electricity supply to your home to a limit of $400.

The general exclusions section on page 22 of the policy provides that you are not covered under any section of the policy for loss or damage caused by or arising from or involving flood.

Flood is defined in the definitions section on page 50 of the policy. It states; Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which: escapes or overflows from, or cannot enter (because it is full or has overflowed), or is prevented from entering (because other water has escaped or been released from it), the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam, or stormwater channel.*

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 24 January 2011 to report your bicycle was chained to a pole in front of car space in the secure underground car park. You were evacuated on Tuesday but when you returned home, you discovered the car park had been flooded causing damage to your bicycle.

AAMI advised your claim was not one for acceptance as the damage sustained to your bike was caused by flood, which is excluded under the terms of the policy.

Shortly afterwards, you expressed concern the food in your fridge was spoiled as a result of the power being turned off for nine days. However, AAMI maintained their decision to not accept your claim.

In your email dated 8 March 2011, you set out your dissatisfaction with AAMI's decision to not accept your claim and state that AAMI did not explain why your claim was not accepted. You state water did not enter your car park from the river, rather you submit water entered your car park due to storm water runoff from the nearby streets as it was unable to escape down the drains. In addition, water was being pumped from the basements of surrounding buildings which also contributed to the flooding of your basement car park. In regard to the spoiled food, you advised Energex cut your power manually at approximately 1am on 12 January 2011, causing the food in your fridge to spoil. You therefore submit you have lodged a valid claim under the terms of the policy as the damage to your property was not caused by the flood.

You now ask that I review this matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Firstly, on behalf of AAMI I would like to apologise for your recent experience. I wish to advise you that the majority of AAMI's claims are handled effectively and efficiently without causing distress to the customer. I acknowledge your frustration that AAMI did not provide you with a detailed decision in writing explaining why the claim was not accepted and I wish to advise your feedback will be forwarded to the appropriate manager for future training purposes.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Further, I accept that the policy must be read as a whole and that the general exclusions apply to all sections of the policy, including the general exclusion of flood.

I note AAMI has conducted enquiries into the failure of the electricity supply and was unable to substantiate their claim that flood (as defined in the policy) caused the electricity to fail, which therefore led to the spoilage of your food. In the circumstances, I am pleased to advise AAMI has agreed to accept and settle your claim for frozen food spoilage.

I acknowledge the bicycle is covered under extra cover for portable valuable for accidental loss or damage. However, I accept the general exclusions listed on page 22 to page 23 of the policy booklet are also applicable. Notwithstanding, I am not satisfied there is sufficient evidence on file to prove stormwater runoff from the surrounding areas caused the damage to the bike, rather than flood as defined in the policy. Consequently, AAMI have agreed to undertake further enquiries into this matter to determine if your loss is covered under the terms of the policy.

I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process your claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44. If you remain dissatisfied with AAMI's decision once they have completed their further enquiries, you may ask my office conduct a further review of this matter.

Dear M [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 16 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 11 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision on the basis that you assert you were not made aware of the Flood exclusion in the policy when you purchased the policy. You state you were also not made aware that your policy does not cover flood in any subsequent renewal conversations you had with AAMI. You advise that had you been made aware of this then you would not have insured with AAMI and would have insured elsewhere.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the overflow of the Oxley Creek located approximately 750 metres to the east of your property which has risen and overflowed after receiving floodwaters from the Brisbane River, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

While I acknowledge your assertion that you were not told by AAMI that flood is not covered by the policy, I would like to advise you that all the information contained in the policy is not conveyed over a telephone conversation. I accept the onus remains with the policyholder to read the policy documents and schedule in its entirety once received to ensure it meets their requirements. I am satisfied the onus rested with you to contact AAMI if you were not satisfied with the policy you purchased or if there were elements specific to your policy, such as the exclusions, that you wished to clarify.

You have also stated you were not made aware of the policy exclusion in subsequent renewals. AAMI's records confirm a copy of the policy booklet was posted to you on 27 March 2008. Section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted you the relevant documentation when required to do so. In the circumstances, I accept that the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms. Kreet,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 10 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 27 December 2010 to advise the nearby river may flood and query whether there would be cover for resultant damage if it did. Your clients were advised flood is not covered under AAMI's policies.

On 13 January 2011 AAMI was notified water had entered the home and the family had evacuated. Upon returning home, your clients discovered damage to both the building and contents.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. In addition to the Cunningham Lindsay report, AAMI also considered flood mapping made available by the Queensland Government and a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report was jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 13 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 10 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 13 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. When considering this matter, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist. In the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage was due to an event covered under the policy, I accept it was caused by flood.

You have stated whilst your clients were informed by AAMI on 27 December 2010 by an AAMI employee their policies did not provide cover for flood, they disregarded this information, believing it to be incorrect, as they had always been under the impression the policies did include flood cover. You further state a prior claim for rainwater entry into the home was accepted by AAMI and that your clients made no distinction in their mind to the source of the water then as to presently. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your clients of the relevant exclusion.

I am satisfied AAMI previously posted the relevant policy booklets to your clients. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your clients the relevant documentation when required to do so. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

Whilst I note a previous event for damage arising from rainwater inundation was claimed in 2008, I am satisfied that occurrence did not constitute a flood. I have considered your advice that your clients sought information from AAMI on 27 December 2010 as to whether or not flood was an event covered under the policy, but opted to disregard the information subsequently received, based on their previous rainwater entry claim and the understanding they had always been covered for flood. However, in my view, the fact your clients made contact with AAMI on that date to ascertain the policy cover indicates they were not sure as to whether the policies they held did provide cover for flood. I am satisfied the onus remained with your clients to read the policy documentation sent to them to ascertain whether the cover provided suited their requirements, as opposed to disregarding the answer they were provided with.

I also note your position that upon telephoning AAMI on 13 January 2011 and lodging a claim, your client was informed by a staff member the event would be covered. You state on this basis, your clients disposed of a number of contents they otherwise may have made efforts to restore.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. However, there is no evidence before me to verify your client was provided with advice the claim would be for acceptance and I am not satisfied it has been established any information provided by AAMI resulted in your clients taking actions other than those they needed to anyway, irrespective of whether or not their losses would be covered under their insurance policy.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the Bremer River. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your client's complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 14 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 29 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 14 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

You have stated your client did not recall receiving the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) and that the exclusions in the policy therefore do not apply, as the documents were not received until after the contract was in place. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your client on 12 August 2007. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position that your client was told when taking out the policy with AAMI that she was covered for flood and would not have taken out insurance with AAMI without that reassurance. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations Miss Nguyen has acted in reliance on that statement to her detriment. That is, your client was given a policy totally inadequate given she expressly stated her location in the flood prone area of Rocklea. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of this misrepresentation.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your client's policies are defined events policies, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 10 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Rocky Waterholes Creek, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Any such application must be made within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 20 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision on the basis that you believe the damage was caused by storm water runoff and therefore request that your claim be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 20 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Oxley Creek located approximately 500 metres to the east of your property on or around 12 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

This Hydrology Area Report (Hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the week before you commenced cover with AAMI you were advised you were covered for flood damage.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I have also reviewed your assertion you were advised that you were covered for flood damage a week before taking out the policy. I have reviewed your policy messages and cannot confirm the details of the conversations you had with the operator at the time of taking out your policy. However, I am satisfied that you would not have been advised flood was covered under your policy as there is specific scripting that the operator is to follow when commencing a policy. I am satisfied the AAMI operator would not have told you were covered for something that is specifically excluded from the policy. In any event, I must advise that the onus remains with you the policyholder, to read the booklet and ensure that the cover provided meets your requirements.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home. AAMI also commissioned an external hydrologist WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd (WRM), to confirm the cause of water inundation at your property at 68 Dumbarton Drive Kenmore 4069.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 7 April 2011 advising the claim was partially for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood and stormwater run off where flood is specifically excluded from cover. AAMI advised that as stormwater run off inundated your property up to a maximum depth of 50 mm above floor level before flood waters inundated your property, they would cover damage up to this height.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you had a similar flood a few years earlier which was paid without question. You advised the stormwater run off was not just 5cm as AAMI have suggested. You advised AAMI covered you last time so you should be paid for all losses again this time.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 7 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to only accept part of your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that a major part of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I am of the view that given the extent of flood damage to your property up to 1.8 metres high, AAMI could have reasonably considered the entire damage to have been caused by flood waters. However, AAMI have been guided by the hydrologist report and have covered you for the maximum amount of stormwater run off damage (50mm) that may have occurred at your property.

I accept that the majority of the damage was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River flowing up Moggil Creek causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to reduce cover to damage up to 50mm in height from floor level is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your telephone calls to my office on 30 March and 5 April 2011, requesting I review your concerns regarding AAMI's offer of settlement for your damaged Hapsburg Beale upright piano.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process and AAMI is required to comply with my decision.

Your AAMI Policy

Your claim has been made under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance policy (the policy). In summary, the policy provides cover for sudden and unexpected loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater.

Pages 8 to 9 of the policy provides Contents with limited cover are items such as valuables, antiques (other than antique furniture), artwork, collections that are limited to $1,000 in total for each pair, set or collection and up to each specified item's insured value.

Page 11 of the policy explains that if you require cover beyond this limit then your valuables must be specified on the policy. When we you have contents items in the above groups with replacement values higher than the limits we apply, you can tell us about them, and we may agree to insure them for their higher values as 'limited cover specified items' provided they are item we cover, and you pay us any additional premium we may charge.

When we agree to insure them, your limited cover specified items will be shown together with their individual insured value on the most recent of your insurance schedule and renewal notice.

Page 25 of the policy provides that when we pay a claim for your contents, we will decide to either repair or replace your contents, or pay the cost of repairing or replacing. If we decide to pay the cost of repairing or replacing your contents, our payment will be the current retail or discounted price we may obtain, whichever is the lower.

Your Claim

On 29 December 2010, you contacted AAMI to report rain water damage to contents in your garage, which occurred during recent storms.

To date, AAMI has processed your contents claim, however your outstanding dispute relates to AAMI's handling of your claim and its offer of settlement for damage caused to you Hapsburg Beale upright piano.

You are dissatisfied with AAMI's decision not to restore your piano back to its pre-event condition and only offer to pay you $1,000 under the Contents with limited cover section of the policy.

You state that when you arranged cover for your contents, you specifically noted that the piano was over 100 years old, however you were advised by the operator there was nowhere to list the piano, rather the value would be noted on the policy. For this reason, you dispute that you did not specify the piano at the time of commencing cover for your contents as it was always your intention to comprehensively insure your piano.

You have requested that I review this matter and you are seeking AAMI to restore your piano back to its original presentation.

My Decision

Firstly, I would like to thank you for your patience whilst I have completed a review of your claim. I have now read and considered all of the available material on the file.

Claims handling

On behalf of AAMI, I would like to apologise if you feel that you have not received the level of service you would expect throughout this claim process and if we have not met your expectations in settlement of your claim. I can confirm that the majority of AAMI's claims are handled effectively and efficiently without causing distress to the customer. I acknowledge your concerns regarding the processing of your claim. AAMI is committed to providing the highest level of service and I regret that this was not your experience.

Settlement

I note that you do not dispute that the item in question is an antique Hapsburg Beale upright piano, however you are not satisfied with AAMI's offer to limit settlement to $1,000 under the content with limited cover for unspecified items section of the policy. Rather, you believe AAMI's liability is to repair / restore the storm damaged piano back to its pre-event condition.

Whilst you state that you informed AAMI of the piano, its value and your intention to specify the item at the commencement of cover, I accept AAMI's records fail to confirm any discussion with you regarding you specifying the piano on your policy.

Even if I was to consider an oversight on AAMI's behalf, I am mindful AAMI sent you a policy schedule in 2004 and an offer to renew your Contents insurance policy on an annual basis, setting out the level of cover on your policy. I accept it remains the responsibility of the policyholder to read their policy booklet and policy schedules to ensure that the policy they have purchased suits their insurance needs and to contact AAMI with any concerns relating the level of cover. I note there is no record of you contacting AAMI with any concerns with the level of cover regarding your antique piano since the commencement of your policy on 29 November 2004.

I empathise with your circumstances and I appreciate it is your preference for AAMI to restore the piano back to its pre-event condition in settlement of your claim, however I accept the policy clearly provides that AAMI is entitled to settle a claim by either replacing or paying the cost of replacing an item, or by repairing or paying the cost of repairing an item.

In the circumstance, I accept AAMI is entitled to select which settlement method to utilise. Accordingly, irrespective of whether the settlement is for the restoration of your piano or its replacement, I am satisfied AAMI's offer to pay you $1,000 represents AAMI's maximum liability to you under the claim for the piano.

I acknowledge you are a valued customer of AAMI and whilst AAMI will attempt to consider customers needs on an individual basis, I am satisfied that AAMI has an obligation to all its stakeholders, including policyholders, to ensure that claim decisions are made in accordance with the terms and conditions of your policy.

Accordingly, I am satisfied that AAMI's decision to limit settlement of your claim to $1,000 for the piano, subject to the terms of the policy, is correct pursuant to the terms of the policy.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 2 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 16 January 2011 to advise the following:

'Water has entered underneath the house by approximately 4ft. The rooms underneath are a spare bedroom, a second lounge room, and a garage workshop area which have all been water and mud damaged. I have thrown out the items of furniture and are still sorting through the balance of items, Ol have compiled a list and have taken photographs.'

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 6 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 2 June 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 6 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note your reference to max hams and 1 Ors V CGU Insurance Limited [2002] detailing your position that this decision can be applied to where a PDS as a whole is confusing and difficult to understand to a reasonable person. I have reviewed AAMI's PDS and I am satisfied it is not confusing to understand, rather clear and concise on what is covered and not covered.

Your client does not dispute receiving the Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) which sets out the exclusions in the policy, including flood as an exclusion. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I accept the onus is on your client to contact AAMI if your client was confused or required clarification over the policy coverage, including any exclusions that are stated.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 17 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of Sandy Creek resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Your Reference: [REDACTED]

Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 10 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

On 12 January 2011 AAMI was notified water had entered your clients' home and they had evacuated. Upon returning home, your clients discovered damage to both the building and contents.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. In addition to the Cunningham Lindsay report, AAMI also considered flood mapping made available by the Queensland Government and a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report was jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home. After reviewing this information, AAMI then opted to have a second assessment completed.

After jointly considering all the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 20 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 10 May 2011.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI and lodging a claim, your clients were informed by a staff member the event would be covered. You state on this basis, your clients disposed of a number of contents they otherwise may have made efforts to restore.

Whilst telephone calls at AAMI are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. However, there is no evidence before me to verify your clients were provided with advice the claim would be for acceptance and I am not satisfied it has been established any information provided by AAMI resulted in your clients taking actions other than those they needed to anyway, irrespective of whether or not their losses would be covered under their insurance policy.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that two site specific assessment reports were conducted on behalf of AAMI and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon to determine cover. It is my view it can be taken into account when evaluating the collective evidence relating to the event.

Regarding to your position that AAMI did not clearly inform your clients of the flood exclusion in the policies, I am satisfied AAMI previously posted the relevant policy booklets to your clients. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your clients the relevant documentation when required to do so. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policies, subject to any exclusions. The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 20 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. When considering this matter, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist. In the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage was due to an event covered under the policy, I accept it was caused by the unnamed tributary of Woogaroo Creek receiving floodwaters from the Brisbane River and/or Woogaroo Creek, resulting in it rising and the floodwaters travelling overland to inundate your clients' property.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by flood and I am satisfied the policy clearly provides that flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your client's complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 10 March 2011 to report water entry at your property which you attributed to storm water runoff.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state information within the Cunningham Lindsay report was incorrect, including the insurer and stating you were overseas when the loss occurred. You have explained your father, who resides at the home with you, was home when the water inundation began and he described overflowing gutters and streets. You acknowledge living near the river led to immediate flooding at the bottom of the street, but feel the months of heavy rain and backup of drains contributed to the level of water that came through your home.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 10 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the collective expert evidence to hand in this matter. Whilst I acknowledge your advice regarding inaccuracies in the Cunningham Lindsay report, I accept the assessor's overall submission is that he considered the water entry to be the result of flood.

In the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property and I also accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 1 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that their home had been inundated by floodwater.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 7 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Insurance Law Service. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

Whilst telephone calls at AAMI are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. You state upon contacting AAMI to determine policy cover, they were informed loss and damage due to this event would be covered. However, there is no evidence before me to verify your clients were provided with advice the claim would be for acceptance and I am not satisfied it has been established any information provided by AAMI resulted in your clients taking actions other than those they needed to anyway, irrespective of whether or not their losses would be covered under their insurance policy.

I accept that the policy documents clearly and unambiguously provide that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) liquid escaping suddenly and unexpectedly from fixed pipes and drains is covered, damage arising from flood is not. However, in order to claim for water escaping from a drain or storm water runoff damaging the home and contents, I accept the onus is with your clients to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and drain or storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain or storm water.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 7 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologists in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. Dear Mr and Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that I review the decision made by AAMI not to cover your recent claim and thank you for your patience whilst I conducted a thorough review.

It is the role of the Consumer Appeals Service to ensure that decisions made by AAMI staff are in accordance with your AAMI policy, the Insurance Contracts Act and the General Insurance Code of Practice.

Your Policy

Your claim was lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance policy.

On page 31 of the policy it provides that AAMI will pay for spoilage of frozen food caused by failure of electricity supply to your home to a limit of $400.

The general exclusions section on page 22 provides that you are not covered under any section of the policy for loss or damage caused by or arising from or involving flood. Flood is defined in the definitions section on page 50.

Your Claim

(The following is a summary prepared from information in AAMI's records)

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that you lost power due to the floods and your frozen food was spoiled.

AAMI subsequently advised you were not covered for the frozen foods as the power failure was due to the floods.

You have requested that I review this decision stating that your home did not suffer any flood damage and that the spoiled frozen food benefit section of the policy is not subject to the exclusion for flood.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Whilst I accept that the policy must be read as a whole and that the general exclusions apply to all sections of the policy, I am not satisfied there is sufficient evidence on file to prove that the failure of the electricity supply was due to flood as defined in the policy.

In the circumstances, AAMI has agreed to accept and settle your claim for frozen food spoilage.

In this regard, I am arranging for the file to be returned to AAMI and a staff member from the Home Claims team will contact shortly to arrange for settlement of the claim.

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Your Reference: [REDACTED]

Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 31 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 11 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 31 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI prior to evacuation from their home, your client was informed by a staff member that as long as they did not live along the Brisbane River they would be covered. Your client states that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations they did not pack or take certain things that could have been salvaged and have acted in reliance on that statement to their detriment. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of these misrepresentations.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied your client were assured any loss or damage to their home would be covered by their policy. I do not accept your clients' loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI. Further I note there are no details added to your client's policy notes indicating a telephone call to AAMI on 11 January 2011 confirming any such conversation. I also note telephone records have not been supplied by your client confirming this telephone call to AAMI.

Your client does not dispute receiving the Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) which sets out the exclusions in the policy, including flood as an exclusion. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I accept the onus is on your client to contact AAMI if your client was confused or required clarification over the policy coverage, including any exclusions that are stated.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 8 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the Oxley and/or Pennywort Creeks, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 11 January 2011 to advise that your heavy rain had caused damage to your property.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 18 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You contacted my office on 25 May 2011 to request a review of AAMI's decision as you believe that Black Snake Creek was not the cause of the flood. You explained that Black Snake Creek is located in front of your property, however the water came from the rear of your property. Therefore you believe the creek could not have been the cause of the damage. Further, you advised there is no watercourse, as suggested by AAMI, at the rear of your property and you have confirmed this with the council.

You sent an email to my office on 25 May 2011 with further information from the council in support of your claim.

You now ask that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists, the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website along with the information you emailed to my office.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 18 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I acknowledge that you assert there is no watercourse to the rear of your property, however having viewed the evidence before me, I am satisfied there is a watercourse which is a tributary of Black Snake Creek located to the rear of your property. The convergence is approximately 900 metres to the north of your property.

Subsequently, I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of Black Snake Creek which flowed down an unnamed tributary of the creek causing water to flood overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that you were evacuated from your home and you had later determined it had been completely inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a hydrology report commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 18 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision. You believe to consider flood as the primary cause of the damage to your home is an oversimplification of the events leading up to the inundation.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 18 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the inundation of flood water escaping and overflowing from the Bremer River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Mohr,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Your Reference: [REDACTED]

Clients: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 15 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your clients contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to lodge a claim for flood damage to their property.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your office on 9 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 15 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms and conditions of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 9 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

You have stated (in summary) your clients' contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to confirm if they were covered for flood and were provided with information to suggest they would be covered. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations your clients have acted on this advice to their detriment. Therefore, you believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of these misrepresentations.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded, so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about the cover their policy provided. However, I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to Claims Assist staff were to advise customers the policy covers damage caused by stormwater runoff, but not damage caused by flood, meaning the inundation of normally dry land by water escaping from a watercourse or lake, for example a river. Customers were to be referred to the policy booklet and website for specific wording surrounding the cover and informed that as there had been a significant volume of rain, they were encouraged to lodge a claim which would then be carefully assessed in order to determine whether the damage was caused by flood or stormwater runoff.

There is no evidence before me to indicate this directive from Management to staff was not followed. I am not satisfied your clients were assured any loss or damage to their home and contents would be covered by their policy. I do not accept your clients' loss increased as a result of advice provided by AAMI.

You have also questioned the change in the policy schedule wording noted by your clients. Your clients have noticed that their 2006 renewal schedule explicitly stated that flood is not covered. However, since 2007 when AAMI changed its policy to provide 'unlimited' building cover, the subsequent renewal notices received by your clients in 2007, 2008, 2009 and 2010 no longer state "Flood is not covered by this policy". You are of the view that this implies that flood damage is no longer excluded. In reviewing this matter, I note that your clients have provided a copy of their 2007 renewal notice, but not a copy of the 2006 one. Therefore, I am unable to refer to the wording on the policy schedule they are referring to. In any event, even if I accept that the explicit flood exclusion wording has been removed, I note that the schedule highlights to customers to refer to their policy (booklet) for full details, and all limitations and conditions of cover.

In an alternative argument, you have stated your clients were not made aware of the policy exclusion for damage caused by flood and had relied on AAMI to alert them of the inadequacy of the policy for their needs given their locality.

Further, you state AAMI staff had a duty of utmost good faith to inform your clients of the unsuitability of the insurance cover selected during consultation with them. You assert AAMI has failed in its statutory responsibility to treat your clients with 'utmost good faith' as required by section 13 of The Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (ICA).

I am satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and therefore section 69(2) of the ICA provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days of commencing cover is sufficient. I note that you do not dispute that your clients were provided with a copy of the policy documentation, therefore I accept that your clients were issued the policy documents AAMI was required to send.

Your clients' policy is defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your clients, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your clients to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover. Further, you have confirmed that your clients have been insured with AAMI since 2004 and do not dispute that they received their policy documents which clearly state that flood, as defined by the policy is not covered. Therefore, I am satisfied that your clients would have been aware of the policy exclusion for flood damage given that they noticed it was stated on their renewal schedules.

You have asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

Accordingly, I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

I have considered your argument that the damage to your clients' property was caused by storm and rainwater run-off. I accept that in order to claim for storm water runoff damages to the home and contents, the onus is with your clients to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain or storm water. Whilst I acknowledge it is your view that your clients' property was inundated by storm and rainwater runoff, I am satisfied there is no evidence before me to substantiate that view. As previously noted, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 1 February 2011 and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by overland floodwaters from the Brisbane River resulting in the inundation of your clients' property. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that due to the heavy rains, water had entered the lower level of your house.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a hydrology report commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 11 May 2011 advising the claim for flood damage was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and assert the floodwaters did not reach your property which you state can be confirmed by the hydrologist report and the online mapping. You advised you are claiming for rainwater damage and not flood damage and ask that your claim be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood. Whilst I acknowledge that the Queensland Reconstruction Authority Interactive Flood Map shows that the floodwaters did not reach your property, I am satisfied that on the balance of probabilities that the Bremer River broke its banks flooding the entire area of the 'pocket', within which your property is located.

Accordingly, I accept that the flood was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflowing of the Bremer River which surrounds your property, on or around 11 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

Your policy is designed to provide you with financial protection and peace of mind against sudden and unexpected loss or damage to your home caused by the insured events set out on pages 8 to 13 of the building policy booklet.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that after a lot of heavy rain and heavy winds in the area, your jetty to the rear of your property had been washed away along with a shed.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, MYI Freemans, who provided a report stating the pontoon, shed and gangway were all washed away by four metre flood waters. You advised MYI Freemans that the storm in the three weeks prior to the floods may have weakened the pylons holding the pontoons in place. You further confirm this statement advising the carpet on the pontoon was starting to lift slightly in the weeks preceding the flood. You also advised that damage by the city cat ferries during the heavy rains and strong winds in the weeks leading up to the floods had, in your opinion weakened the pylons securing the pontoon. You believed this had allowed the pylons to break loose and float away, unlike both your neighbour's pontoons, which had retained their pylons.

After considering the report, AAMI wrote to you on 7 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your pontoon, gangway and shed was caused by the rapid flow of the Brisbane River washing them away and that rapid flow is not covered by your policy.

You wrote my office 8 May 2011 requesting a review of AAMI's decision. In summary, you have outlined your reasons why the claim should be covered and state the proximate cause of the rapid flow of the Brisbane River was storm and rainwater which is covered under the policy.

My office will now review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor.

I have also obtained a report from the external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the Brisbane area.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter dated 7 April 2011 which sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted for the reasons set out in your letter dated 8 May 2011.

In reviewing your claim and reasons for the denial I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the hydrologist in this matter. I would like to bring to your attention the following extracts from the Hydrologist report which can be located at www.insurancecouncil.com.au:

'Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period 9 to 14 January were made up of releases from Wivenhoe Dam and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River. The water level response to these normal flood events in lower Lockyer Creek, in the lower Bremer River and in the lower Brisbane River was dwarfed by the subsequent water level rise associated with releases from Wivenhoe Dam over the period 0600 hours on Tuesday 11 January to 0300 hours on the morning of Wednesday 12 January.

It is concluded that releases from Wivenhoe Dam was the principal immediate cause of flooding along the reach of the Brisbane River downstream of the Dam, along the lower reaches of Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River, and along tributaries further downstream.

Given that rainfall across the Brisbane City LGA had ceased by 1800 hours on Tuesday 11 January, any flooding after this time will have been caused by waterflow inundation from the Brisbane River and its tributary creeks, it being noted that inundation along the tributaries was associated with backwater flooding from the Brisbane River (which in turn was principally caused by the dam release flood from Wivenhoe Dam).

*Flooding along the mainstream of the Brisbane River and along the lower tributaries was principally caused by releases from Wivenhoe Dam
Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period Sunday to Friday 9 to 14 January were made up of dam release floodwaters from Wivenhoe and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River.*

Having reviewed the Hydrologist report and assessor's report it is also my view that the rain had ceased prior to the Brisbane River rising and overflowing. The evidence is clear that the rise in level of the Brisbane River at the time of damage was after the rain had stopped and after the release of water from the Wivenhoe Dam.

I acknowledge you believe the 'proximate cause' of the Brisbane River rising was storm and rainwater. In your letter you state the 'Proximate Cause' can be described as 'a cause which immediately precedes and produces the effect with no independent disturbing agencies intervening. It is the cause, which when performed, leads to the damage.'

I accept the current insurance law is that the proximate cause of a loss is the dominant or effective or operative cause, whether or not the last in time or the sole cause. .

Based on the available evidence, it is my view that a number of storm and rainwater events over a long period of time contributed to the filling the Wivenhoe Dam. Subsequent to the rising level of the Wivenhoe Dam I accept that it was human intervention in releasing water from the dam that caused a rapid flow of water which caused damage to your property. Whilst storm and rainwater contributed to the rise in level of the dam, I do not accept storm and rainwater was the proximate cause of the damage to your property. I accept that the dominant or effective cause of the damage was the rapid flow of river water.

I acknowledge there is no exclusion in the policy for rapid river flow. While I accept that an exclusion does not apply, I am satisfied an insured event has not caused damage to your property. In the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that AAMI is entitled to deny cover to the whole of the damage to your property.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

I write further to my previous correspondence relating to this matter. Thank you for your patience whilst I have reviewed the matter.

As previously advised, it is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

On 19 January 2011, you lodged a claim for water entry at your property that you attributed to a major downpour of rain. You advised water had come up from the storm water drains.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report and AAMI then had a second assessment completed. After considering both assessment reports and the other information to hand, including a Hydrology report and flood maps, AAMI advised you the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 28 April 2011. AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state water was held in a dam and prior to being released, rainwater had begun backing up in the street. You have advised when the water was released from the dam, the water in the creek began rising and eventually flooded the properties. However, you consider the initial damage was caused by the water backing up, not water from the creek. You have advised the rainwater entered your home on Tuesday and the water in the creek did not peak until the Thursday. You acknowledge there was further damage to your home caused by the floods, but you are only claiming for the initial damage caused by rainwater backing up. You state you were told by the second assessor the claim would be partially accepted.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I am unable to verify the specific conversation you had when speaking to the second assessor about cover. However, even if the advice you refer to was able to be confirmed, it is my view that for this to have an effect on the outcome of your claim, I would need to be satisfied the information provided resulted in you taking actions other than those you already needed to, irrespective of whether or not the losses were to be covered under your claim. There is presently no evidence before me to confirm you were informed your claim was for partial acceptance or to indicate that any information you were provided at that time with resulted in you taking actions other than those you already had to undertake, such as works to make the home habitable.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter dated 28 April 2011 and the reports they considered. I am satisfied the letter sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim.

I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter. The evidence indicates the water from the Oxley Creek travelled over land and inundated your property and I accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered. Alternatively, I accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. However under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and water escaping from a drain.

In the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater prior to mixing with floodwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

Spoiled Frozen Food

Notwithstanding, I understand your food in your freezer was spoiled as a result of this event. The policy provides cover for additional benefits, such as 'Spoiled frozen food'. I accept the policy states that AAMI will pay to a maximum of $400 for spoiled frozen food caused by failure of public electricity to your home other than because of industrial action.

I note AAMI has conducted enquiries into the failure of the electricity supply and was unable to substantiate their claim that flood (as defined in the policy) caused the electricity to fail, which therefore led to the spoilage of your food. In the circumstances, I am pleased to advise AAMI has agreed to accept and settle your claim for frozen food spoilage.

I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process this aspect of the claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Miss [REDACTED] & Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 14 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you state you are claiming for storm water damage to the contents that were inside your shed. You advised there was a hole in the roof of the shed caused by a tree branch.

You dispute the measurements provided in the assessor's report and explained that your property is on a sloping $\frac{3}{4}$ acre block and the flood water did not reach your shed as it is located at the rear of the property. You state the only water which entered the shed was rainwater from the hole in the roof. You believe the flood map which AAMI had relied upon is inaccurate as your entire block did not sustain flood water damage. You now request that I review this matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with photographs of the affected area in the absence of flood mapping.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home contents policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 14 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim for your contents inside the shed should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I acknowledge your belief that flood water did not inundate your shed and that it was rainwater which had entered from the hole in the roof. However, based on the assessment report and photographs of the water inundation taken during the event, the evidence before me indicates the predominant cause of the flood was the over flow of the Burpengary Creek. Therefore, I accept that the flood was caused by floodwaters from Burpengary, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I note that throughout the claim you have provided varying versions to AAMI regarding the inundation of water to your property. On 13 January 2011 you advised the creek had overflowed and flooded your property. On 20 January 2011, you provided a new version of events and stated a tree branch fell on the roof of your shed causing damage and allowing rainwater to enter. You stated there was mud at the bottom of your shed. You also advised that you have no awning and storm water got in through your front door and into your property. On 3 February 2011 you spoke with an assessor from Cunningham & Lindsey and advised them that on 11 January 2011 after extremely heavy rain and storms the floodwaters in the street rose and covered your entire property and water entered the house and rear shed.

Based on the evidence before me, I am satisfied that the damage to your property was caused by the rising Burpengary Creek approximately 100 metres north of your property, rose and overflowed causing inundation of your home and shed. I acknowledge that you are not claiming flood damage, however, on balance of the information before me, I am satisfied that your contents were damaged by flood and therefore are not covered by the policy.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Thank you for your request to have your claim reviewed through AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that you had to evacuate your home as it had been inundated by water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey to provide a report on the damage sustained to your property. AAMI obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home. AAMI also obtained an onsite assessment report conducted by their assessor.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 30 June 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You requested a review of AAMI's decision on the basis that you believe your shed was initially inundated with storm water runoff a few days prior to the flood waters inundating your property. Therefore, AAMI reconsidered the matter, however maintained their decision to not cover any part of your claim as there was no evidence to support storm water runoff had caused the initial inundation. AAMI sent a second letter dated 18 July 2011 explaining the basis of its decision. As you remain dissatisfied with AAMI's decision to not accept your claim, it has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letters and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letters dated 30 June 2011 and 18 July 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted and I acknowledge your assertion that the initial inundation was caused by storm water runoff. However, I am guided by the expert opinions of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the whole of the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

Accordingly, I accept on balance of probabilities that the flood was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of Woogaroo Creek approximately 300 metres north of your property. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 22 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

On 12 January 2011 AAMI was notified your clients' home at 415 Kangaroo Gully Rd, Bellbowrie had been water damaged.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. In addition to the Cunningham Lindsay report, AAMI also considered flood mapping made available by the Queensland Government and a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report was jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After jointly considering all the reports, AAMI wrote to your clients on 30 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission.

I note your position that upon telephoning AAMI to arrange contents cover for their new property at Bellbowrie, AAMI suggested cover could be provided for it under their existing AAMI policy by changing the risk address, until it was determined what type of policy would be required in the future (for example, Landlord cover) for the Fig Tree Pocket home previously listed as the risk address on that policy. AAMI stated the Fig Tree Pocket home could be covered under the same policy for a limited time by paying an additional premium.

You have advised your clients consider AAMI was negligent by not explaining the policy now covering the Bellbowrie home did not include flood cover, given that home is situated on a water easement and includes a creek.

Your clients have advised they did not receive a policy booklet after commencing cover for the Bellbowrie home, so they consider they were not provided with an opportunity to note flood cover was not included.

You believe the loss to your clients' Bellbowrie home was foreseeable to the average person. You feel AAMI has failed in its duty to act towards your clients with the utmost good faith by not explaining the policy does not cover flood.

Whilst telephone calls at AAMI are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about commencing cover for their Bellbowrie home. I accept it is not standard process within AAMI to send a policy booklet when a risk address is changed on an existing policy, which is what occurred in this instance. However, I am mindful that the policy this relates to has been in place since 24 July 2009. Whilst I acknowledge the policy initially covered another risk address, I am satisfied it was the same policy and I consider it was sufficient for the purpose of fulfilling its obligations under the Insurance Contracts Act (1984) for AAMI to post the relevant policy booklets following the commencement of that policy. It is my understanding there is no dispute that occurred.

Accordingly, it is my view the onus remained with your clients to ensure the cover they arranged for their Bellbowrie home adequately met their requirements. You believe the loss to your clients' Bellbowrie home was foreseeable to the average person and as such I consider it was especially crucial for your clients to ensure the cover they arranged had a provision for flood damage, by undertaking the necessary enquiries.

I am satisfied that the cover your clients arranged did not include a provision for flood damage and I do not agree with your position that AAMI failed in its duty to act towards your clients with the utmost good faith by not explicitly explaining this, given they had previously been sent documents relating to their policy.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted on behalf of AAMI and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon to determine cover. It is my view it can be taken into account when evaluating the collective evidence relating to the event.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 30 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept the claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy such as storm water runoff, I accept that the whole of the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood and that this occurrence is not covered under the policy. Whilst I note you have asserted the damage was attributed to storm and rainwater runoff and not flood, there is no expert evidence before me to substantiate this position.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by flood and I am satisfied the policy clearly provides that flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 17 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that during heavy storms their house had been flooded.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 11 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 17 June 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note there is no dispute your client received the policy schedule and certificate. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position that your client was told when taking out the policy with AAMI that she relied on the expertise of AAMI to provide her with adequate cover given the Rocklea area had been subject to previous flooding. You allege that the policy was completely inadequate for her needs given her locality in the Rocklea area. You believe that as a result of AAMI's failure to inform and draw your client's attention to the shortcomings of the policy that AAMI must pay for the claim in accordance with AAMI's duty of utmost good faith as outlined in section 13 of the Insurance Contracts Act 1984.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversations your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your client's policies are defined events policies, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the Stable Swamp Creek and/or Rocky Water Holes Creek which received floodwaters from the Brisbane river via the Oxley Creek, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 16 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 12 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision on the basis your property was not visited by a hydrologist and you believe that some of the damage was caused by storm water coming from the easement at the top of your property.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham & Lindsey and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the Bremer River located approximately 200 metres to the south of your property, which rose and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 11 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr. & Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that you had been evacuated from your home due to floods. You subsequently confirmed damage at the home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also reviewed a report from the Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel to confirm the cause of the water inundation and examined interactive flood maps provided on the Queensland Government website.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 29 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision. You state AAMI was slow to provide you with an outcome and that the assessor led you to believe the damage was likely to be covered. You also consider upon inception of the policy, AAMI misled you by advising you would be covered for any event.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I appreciate your frustrations in regard to the amount of time it took for AAMI to provide you with an acceptance decision in relation to this claim, but I am mindful it is a complex matter and consider it was prudent of AAMI to make the necessary enquiries before advising you of an outcome.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the Building and Contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively. I accept the onus is with the insured to ensure the product they have purchased suits their requirements by reading the documentation provided following inception of the policy. The policy covers loss or damage caused by the insured events set out in the policy booklet, unless defeated by any of the detailed exclusions.

I have reviewed the reports obtained regarding this matter and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the damage was caused by storm and rainwater and on this basis the matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

I accept that the flood was caused by the inundation of flood water escaping and overflowing from the North Pine River and an unnamed tributary, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

C Our office conducts the internal dispute resolution process for AAMI. As previously advised we are separate from the operational departments of the company and have the authority to review complaints and make binding decisions on the company. Accordingly, all complaints regarding disputed claims or policies are referred to our office.

Our initial investigation indicated it was appropriate for your concerns to be addressed by the operational department with a view to resolution prior to our office conducting a review. Following referral of the file and as a result of your discussions with AAMI, your claim was not accepted and the matter was referred to my office for review. I can confirm [REDACTED] Chief Executive Officer (CEO) Personal Insurance Suncorp will be advised of the outcome of my review.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

C The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your home had been inundated with water from the heavy downpour.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (Hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 29 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and refute AAMI's findings believing the claim should be covered as water came from storm and rainwater and not from the Brisbane River. You advised you have photographic evidence supporting this assertion. You also ask that AAMI either meet you half way or provide payment as a good will gesture. You state that to reject the claim without some compromise is unreasonable.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of Cunningham & Lindsey and the Hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that your property is approximately 1.9 metres above ground level and that the flood water level reached a peak of approximately 2.1 metres. I further accept that based on these measurements the engineer is satisfied the water damage to the lower level of your home is not the result of storm water runoff.

I accept that the flood was caused by water escaping across normally dry land from the Brisbane River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Holmes,

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 11 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped

or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise her home had been flooded.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 1 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 11 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 1 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overland floodwaters from the Brisbane River, which is located behind your client's property. I acknowledge that your client claims storm water runoff from nearby drains may have entered her home before it was inundated by floodwater. However, I note that under Australia law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage where the damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain. I accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 31 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

You have stated your client was previously insured with Suncorp and due to an increase in premium she shopped around for equivalent insurance cover. You state that AAMI were able to offer your client this cover. However, you state that if AAMI were not able to provide equivalent cover, that your client should have been informed of this.

Your client's policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets her requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover she has purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

I have also confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customers of basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

You have also asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building). Accordingly I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your client's home and contents was caused by floodwater inundation from overflow of the Brisbane River. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Ms. Uhr,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped

or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

On 16 January 2011 AAMI was notified water had entered your clients' home on 11 January 2011 and destroyed all their contents.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. In addition to the Cunningham Lindsay report, AAMI also considered flood mapping made available by the Queensland Government and a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report was jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home. After reviewing this information, AAMI wrote to your clients on 11 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your clients engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 3 June 2011.

I note your position that your clients had the understanding the event would be covered under their Contents policy. You state the policy sold by AAMI was an inadequate product for your clients' requirements, given their home's proximity to the Bremer River.

It is my understanding there is no dispute AAMI previously posted the relevant policy booklets to your clients. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your clients the relevant documentation when required to do so. However, I do not accept AAMI was able to determine on behalf of your clients whether the policy they purchased would or would not suit their needs. It is my view it was up to your clients to determine this by way of examining the policy documentation.

In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, it is my view it can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Contents policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet.

Whilst storm water runoff is an event that is covered under AAMI's Home Contents policy, I accept the onus is with your clients to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and rainwater. I do not believe there is sufficient evidence to hand to support that some part of the damage occurred solely as a result of rainwater entering your clients' home.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. When considering this matter, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist. In the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage was due to an event covered under the policy, I accept it was caused by floodwaters from the Bremer River.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' contents was caused by flood and I am satisfied the policy clearly provides that flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your client's complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Any such application must be made within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a hydrology report commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 12 May 2011 advising the claim for flood damage was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your property was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and assert the damage was caused by storm water runoff and water coming out of the storm water drain located across the road from your property. You state that your property is located approximately two kilometres from the Bremer River and most of the properties between your property and the river were not flooded.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home contents policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted as the damage was caused by storm water. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflowing of the Bremer River which is located approximately 350 metres north of your property. I acknowledge that an insignificant amount of floodwater may have escaped from drains around your property. However, I am satisfied that any water which escaped from nearby drains would have promptly mixed with overland floodwater rising over Jacaranda Street and surrounding streets.

I note that under Australia insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain. I accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to report water and sewage entry at your property, which caused damage to your contents. You advised the sewage in the street overflowed and when the Brisbane River broke its banks, the water carried the sewage into your home.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by liquid escaping suddenly and unexpectedly from a drain or fixed pipe was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report and after considering it and the other information to hand, including a Hydrology report and flood maps, you were advised the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 27 April 2011.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state whilst you do not contest that flood is not covered under the policy, damage attributed to sewage escape should be accepted.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by liquid escaping from a drain or fixed pipe, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on pages 18 to 21.

In order to claim for liquid escaping from a drain or fixed pipe damaging your contents, I accept the onus is with you to establish, on balance, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood water and liquid escaping from a drain or fixed pipe damaging them.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 27 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

I accept that this was caused by the overflow of a tributary of the Brisbane River. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property, possibly after mixing with liquid escaping from drains or fixed pipes in the area. I also accept this occurrence is not covered under the policy.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept that you have been a loyal customer. Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear M [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your entire house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 19 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision on the basis that you believe the initial damage was caused by the drains overflowing and not caused by the river bursting its banks and flooding your property.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 19 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River located approximately 1 kilometre to the north of your property, on or around 11 January 2011. I accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your house may have come from water escaping from drains near your property, at the time of the main flood event. However, I must advise that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that you had to evacuate as your home at 42 William Parade, Fairfield as it had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 13 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe water came out of the storm water drains prior to the floods occurring. You advised that you are aware that you are not covered for everything under the policy, however you believe you should be entitled to claim a percentage of the cost of your contents as you assert the storm water damaged your contents on the ground floor. You advised you have images of the road prior to the flood showing the overflow from the storm water drains.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 13 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overland floodwaters from the Brisbane River, which is located approximately 300 metres to the north of your property, which has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overflowed and inundated your property. I acknowledge that an insignificant amount of floodwater may have escaped from nearby drains around your property however, I am satisfied that any drain escape water would have promptly mixed with overland floodwater rising over surrounding streets.

I note that under Australia law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage with the damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain. I accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Dear Ms. [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You lodged a claim with AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that following your evacuation from your unit during the floods, it had been inundated by water, which had damaged your contents. The following day, you called to update the claim to reflect building damage you wished to claim that was not going to be covered by your Body Corporate insurer on the basis of it being attributed to flood, which was not covered. When discussing the cover, you advised you had not been informed by the previous operator flood was excluded under AAMI's policy and that your claim may not be accepted.

AAMI subsequently appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsay, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from the Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel and examined interactive flood maps provided on the Queensland Government website.

After considering the reports and information, AAMI wrote to you on 11 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage was caused by flood, which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision. You have provided a submission setting out why you consider AAMI is required to cover your loss.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including Your submission, photographs of the damage, reports from the external assessor and hydrologist, along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 and 21.

I note you dispute the information relied upon by AAMI is factually correct, for example, the contents of the assessment report and the flood mapping provided on the Queensland Government website. Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to fulfil your request for copies of telephone conversation transcripts. However, whilst the contents of individual documents have been taken into consideration by AAMI, its decision has been made on the balance of probabilities after considering all the information collectively. When claiming against your policy, the onus rests with you, the policyholder, to establish that your property has been damaged by one of the insured events covered under your policy and is not defeated by any of the policy exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports it obtained and information it considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert opinions to hand in this matter. In the absence of any other convincing evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River on or around 11 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

I refer to your request that the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS) consider your dispute with AAMI. I wish to advise my office is required to review the matter prior to the FOS. On this basis, I thank you for your request for a review of AAMI's decision regarding your recent claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process and AAMI is required to comply with my decision.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that you had to evacuate your home as it had been inundated by water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey to provide a report on the damage sustained to your property. AAMI obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After discussing the matter with you and making further enquiries AAMI decided it was necessary to investigate the claim prior to making a final decision. Accordingly, IDS Group (IDS) was appointed to investigate the matter.

AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 16 June 2011 advising the claim was partially for acceptance. The basis of AAMI's decision was that part of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood (which is specifically excluded from cover) and part of it was caused by water escaping from storm water drains, which is covered. AAMI advised that as the initial inundation to the lower level of your home up to and including 100 millimetres was caused by water escaping from drains in the vicinity of your property, before flood waters inundated the remainder of your home, they would cover the damage up to this height.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you assert that when you lodged the claim the operator advised the claim would be covered as storm damage and you were advised to throw away all effected contents and take photographs of the damage. You state AAMI are covering the damage up to 100 millimetres, however the water damage is up to 4 metres. You believe that you have been prejudiced by AAMI providing you with the incorrect information and had AAMI not instructed you to throw away your contents you would have retained them and attempted to clean them. Further, you are dissatisfied with the length of time it has taken AAMI to reach a decision on your claim.

You now request a review of matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 16 June 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to only accept part of your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert opinions of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the whole of the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the damage to your property caused by flood is not covered.

In cases where there is an initial inundation resulting from stormwater runoff or overflow of storm water drains followed by an further inundation caused by flood water as defined by the policy, I accept that it is appropriate, in light of insurance and legal principles, for AAMI to cover you for the damage caused by water escaping stormwater drains (100mm), but not the additional damage caused by the flood water inundation.

I accept that damage to your building and contents located higher than 100 millimetres was caused by the overflow of the Brisbane River which is located 100 metres from your property. I also accept the policy is clear when it states that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered.

I have also reviewed your assertions that when you lodged the claim that AAMI provided assurances your claim would be covered under storm damage. I have reviewed your claim messages and cannot confirm the details of the conversations you had with the operator at the time of lodging your claim. Even if such an assurance was provided, I believe it would have been general information and not an absolute assurance you would be covered should you experience such an event.

In regard to your assertion that you were incorrectly told you could throw away your contents, I can confirm that AAMI advised you could throw away any items if there were health and safety concerns. However, AAMI requested that you take photographs and document as much information as possible to assist in the processing of your claim.

In regard to your complaint regarding the time taken to review your claim, I can advise that recent weather events across Australia have placed stress on AAMI's resources and they are endeavouring to expedite the claims process for its customers. Additionally, AAMI was awaiting receipt of all the information it believed should be considered before making a decision in regard to claim acceptance. This unfortunately requires time and on behalf of AAMI I thank you for your patience in this matter.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to only cover damage to the building and contents up to 100 mm in height from floor level is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 1 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I have also reviewed your assertion that the hydrology report should have not taken into account local drainage systems. I can confirm that Cunningham & Lindsey attended your property and believed the damage was caused by floodwaters. I also acknowledge your concerns in regards to the Queensland Government interactive flood mapping. While I appreciate your concerns I must advise that I have no expert evidence before me to suggest the hydrology report, assessors report or the flood mapping report is inaccurate and AAMI should not have relied upon them.

We accept that a minor contribution to the overall flooding of your property may have come from surface rainwater runoff in the vicinity of your property, at the time of the main flood event. We do not accept that runoff would have caused any physical damage to your property in itself. We confirm that under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and surface rainwater runoff.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

Dear Mr. & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request to have your claim reviewed through AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

On 13 January 2011, you lodged a claim for flood water entry at your property.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay to attend your home to inspect the damage. Cunningham Lindsay subsequently submitted a report and after considering it and the other information to hand, including a Hydrology report and flood maps, AAMI advised you the claim was not for acceptance. A letter confirming the decision was sent to you on 28 March 2011. AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state you were informed on 13 January 2011 by an AAMI employee by the name of Bridget that the claim would be covered. You have requested the telephone conversation recording be checked to verify this.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify the specific conversation you had when speaking to AAMI about your claim on 13 January 2011. However, even if this advice were able to be confirmed, it is my view that for this to have an effect on the outcome of your claim, I would need to be satisfied the information provided by AAMI resulted in you taking actions other than those you already needed to, irrespective of whether or not the losses were to be covered under your claim. There is presently no evidence before me to confirm you were informed your claim was for acceptance or to indicate that any information you were provided with resulted in you taking actions other than those you already had to undertake to make the home habitable.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter dated 28 March 2011 and the reports they considered. I am satisfied the letter sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter and in the absence of any other contradictory expert evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy such as rainwater, I accept that the whole of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood.

The evidence indicates the water from the Brisbane River and Oxley Creek travelled over land and inundated your property and I accept that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Buildings and Contents Insurance Policies (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to report flood water entry at your property on 11 January 2011 which caused damage to both the home and its contents.

You were subsequently advised AAMI would consider the matter, as whilst damage caused by storm and rainwater was covered by the policy, damage caused by flood was not.

AAMI's decision was made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with the outcome of this claim. You state you consider part of the damage was due to storm and rainwater runoff and the decision by the government to release water from the Wivenhoe Dam. You consider the latter occurrence to be outside the definition of flood as described in your policy.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 8 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am guided by the expert evidence to hand in this matter.

Whilst I accept it is likely the release of water from the Wivenhoe Dam was a contributing factor to the water inundation at your home, it is my view this would still be considered a flood under the policy. The policy booklet states flood is the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes or overflows from the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel. Accordingly, even if the escape of water was a result of human intervention, I consider it still falls within the definition of flood within the policy.

Whilst the policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater (excluded under your policy) and other water such as storm or rain water runoff. There is no evidence before me to support that the damage or some part of it was first caused by storm water runoff prior to flood water or mixed flood and storm water.

I accept that this loss was caused by the overflow of creeks in close proximity to your home after receiving floodwaters from the Brisbane River via Oxley Creek. The evidence indicates the water travelled over land and inundated your property and I believe that the policy clearly provides that this occurrence is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your home had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (Hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 12 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and refute AAMI's findings believing the claim should be covered as water came from the stormwater drain and not from river and this is supported by no mud in the home, but silt from the drains.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from Cunningham Lindsay and the Hydrologist.

The AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of Cunningham Lindsey and the Hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by water escaping across normally dry land from the Bundamba Creek which received floodwaters from the Bremer River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 4 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that water had entered his home and he had evacuated.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the majority of damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. Cunningham Lindsey's report also noted damage to overhead kitchen cupboards and your client's advice rainwater entered via the roof and dripped into the kitchen. In addition to the Cunningham Lindsey report, AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report was jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 28 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 4 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 28 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I note the letter does not address the damage your client states occurred arose from rainwater entering the kitchen via the roof. I apologise on behalf of AAMI for this oversight. AAMI will make contact with your client shortly in regard to arranging a further assessment opportunity with a view to determining damage attributed to rainwater entering the home via the roof and making an offer of settlement for the repair of those areas of damage.

In regard to the remaining damage attributed to flood, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist. In the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the remaining damage was due to an event covered under the policy, I accept it was caused by flood.

You have stated your client does not recall receiving the relevant Product Disclosure Statements (Policy) and that the exclusions in the policy therefore do not apply, as the documents were not received until after the contract was in place. You believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

AAMI's records confirm a copy of the most recent policy booklet was posted to your client on 22 February 2007. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation when required to do so. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I note your position is that upon telephoning AAMI on 13 January 2011, your client was informed by a staff member the event constituted a storm event and he would therefore be covered. You state AAMI later advised your client to dispose of items damaged by blackwater. You assert had your client not been advised of this, he would have salvaged more contents and significantly reduced his loss. Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your clients had when speaking to AAMI about the damage to their home and contents. However, notations on the claim confirm on 14 January 2011, your client called AAMI to advise that he needed to dispose of his items due to the blackwater which had escaped from a large local sewerage plant and filled the home. Notations state your client was informed he could dispose of anything that could cause a health issue, provided he kept a list of the items to provide to the assessor. Your client advised he had kept a portion of damaged carpet and queried whether AAMI had made a decision on claim coverage and was told staff had not been updated yet, so there were no new details to provide regarding cover. This conversation confirms to me your client was aware the event was not covered by the policy and that at that point in time, no decision had been made to accept his claim. I further note on 19 January 2011, AAMI reiterated to your client no decision on claim coverage had been made, but in the event cover were to be provided, receipts should be presented for reimbursement of fair and reasonable costs. A further conversation regarding this occurred on 24 January 2011.

I am not satisfied the information provided by AAMI has resulted in your client taking actions other than those he needed to do, irrespective of whether or not his losses would be covered under his insurance policy in the future.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 25 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the majority of the damage to your client's home and contents, (with the exception of damage as a result of rainwater entry through the roof, which is still to be determined) was caused by the overflow of Oxley Creek, which connects to the Brisbane River, resulting in inundation of your client's home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

Following the further assessment, a scope of works will be compiled setting out the damage accepted by AAMI as being the result of rainwater entry through the roof. Once this has occurred, if your client disagrees with the scope of works determined as being related to rainwater entry, he is entitled to seek a review of that matter by my office.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your client's complaint. If your client wishes to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Ms [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 31 December 2010 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an assessor who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood and stormwater. AAMI also commissioned an external hydrologist WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd (WRM), to provide an opinion as to the cause of water inundation at your property.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 5 April 2011 advising the claim was partially for acceptance. The basis of AAMI's decision was that part of the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood (which is specifically excluded from cover) and part of it was caused by stormwater run off, which is covered. AAMI advised that as stormwater run off inundated your toilet house up to a maximum depth of 30cm above floor level, before flood waters inundated the toilet house, they would cover damage up to this height.

The matter has been referred to my office for a further review of AAMI's decision in conjunction with photographs received from the Bundaberg Electorate Office in support of your claim.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website and photographs received from Mr Jack Dempsey MP's office.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 5 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to only accept part of your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert opinions of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the whole of the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the damage to your property caused by flood is not covered.

In cases where there is an initial inundation resulting from stormwater runoff followed by an further inundation caused by flood water as defined by the policy, I accept that it is appropriate, in light of insurance and legal principles, for AAMI to cover you for the damage caused to the toilet house by stormwater run off (30cm), but not the additional damage caused by the flood water inundation.

I accept that damage was caused by the overflow of the Saltwater Creek which is a tributary of the Burnett River causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, and that the policy clearly provides that you are not covered for the damage caused by this event.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to only cover damage to the toilet house up to 30cm in height from floor level is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Page 10 of the policy provides you are covered for:

Impact - sudden and unexpected impact of any:

motor vehicle, aircraft, watercraft or space debris,

object falling from a motor vehicle or aircraft,

falling tree or part of a tree,

aerial, mast or satellite dish which breaks or collapses.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your pontoon had been washed away.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who following an inspection on 17 February 2011, provided a report stating that the damage to your pontoon could have been caused by impact by your neighbour's pontoon. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia regarding the cause of water inundation to the Brisbane River. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist report) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's letter stated it considered the damage being claimed was caused by flood and that specifically, your pontoon had come loose as a result of this and floated away.

You wrote to my office on 18 July 2011 requesting a review of AAMI's decision. You are dissatisfied with AAMI's decision to not cover the reinstatement of your pontoon as you believe its loss was caused by a collision from your neighbours' pontoon (or by impact from another thing in the water). You do not consider evidence has been provided to substantiate that the flows in the Brisbane River at the time of the loss were flood flows or had any particular severity. You have advised the cost of reinstating your pontoon will cause substantial financial hardship and you have now requested that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 which sets out that the basis of the decision not to accept your claim was that the loss of the pontoon was due to flood. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted for the reasons set out in your correspondence of 18 July 2011.

In reviewing your claim and reasons for the denial as cited by AAMI, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the hydrologist in this matter. I would like to bring to your attention the following extracts from the Hydrologist report which can be located at www.insurancecouncil.com.au:

'Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period 9 to 14 January were made up of releases from Wivenhoe Dam and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River. The water level response to these normal flood events in lower Lockyer Creek, in the lower Bremer River and in the lower Brisbane River was dwarfed by the subsequent water level rise associated with releases from Wivenhoe Dam over the period 0600 hours on Tuesday 11 January to 0300 hours on the morning of Wednesday 12 January.

It is concluded that releases from Wivenhoe Dam was the principal immediate cause of flooding along the reach of the Brisbane River downstream of the Dam, along the lower reaches of Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River, and along tributaries further downstream.

Given that rainfall across the Brisbane City LGA had ceased by 1800 hours on Tuesday 11 January, any flooding after this time will have been caused by waterflow inundation from the Brisbane River and its tributary creeks, it being noted that inundation along the tributaries was associated with backwater flooding from the Brisbane River (which in turn was principally caused by the dam release flood from Wivenhoe Dam).

Flooding along the mainstream of the Brisbane River and along the lower tributaries was principally caused by releases from Wivenhoe Dam.

Floodwaters moving down the Brisbane River over the period Sunday to Friday 9 to 14 January were made up of dam release floodwaters from Wivenhoe and floodwaters from Lockyer Creek and the Bremer River.'

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your AAMI policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

Based on the information to hand regarding the rapid flow of the Brisbane River, I believe it is unlikely that all other pontoons or jetties damaged during the flood event were impacted by debris. Rather, I accept that on the balance of probabilities many pontoon detachments were likely caused by the lateral force of the water.

However, I have also given consideration to your claim under the insured event of 'Impact', as set out in the policy. I note that in order for a claim to proceed under this insured event, the impact must be from one of the items listed in the policy booklet under that insured event.

I appreciate you believe your pontoon was likely impacted by your neighbours' pontoon and if this were the case, I am satisfied it is not covered under the terms of the policy, as a pontoon is not one of the items listed under that insured event and I am not satisfied it constitutes a watercraft, which is one of the listed items. I have considered the possibility of an impact occurring by a watercraft or part of a tree, however given the magnitude of the event occurring on and around the date the pontoon detached, I consider it to be no more likely the impact was from one of these items as opposed to some other item in the water at that time. Given the onus lies with the insured to establish the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance and there is no evidence to verify what, if anything, impacted the pontoon causing its detachment, I am satisfied AAMI was entitled to deny cover for its loss under your claim.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

After discussing the matter with you, AAMI decided it was necessary to appoint an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, to attend your home to ascertain the cause and extent of the damage. Consequently, Cunningham Lindsey submitted a report stating the damage to your property was due to flood.

AAMI also advised it was necessary to obtain a report from an external hydrologist, WRM Water & Environment (WRM) to confirm the cause of the water inundation, prior to making a decision regarding acceptance of the claim.

You are dissatisfied with the time it is taking for AAMI to process your claim as your family is currently living in unhealthy living conditions. You also express your concerns regarding the service provided by AAMI and you therefore believe you are being treated unfairly. You state you have been insured with AAMI for nearly twenty years and always paid your policy premium on time. You therefore ask a decision regarding acceptance of your claim to be made urgently.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file. I note since commencing my review, AAMI wrote to you on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance.

Firstly, on behalf of AAMI, I would like to apologise for your recent experience. I wish to advise you that the majority of AAMI's claims are handled effectively and efficiently without causing distress to the customer. I acknowledge it has been a lengthy process for AAMI to obtain all the relevant information prior to making a decision regarding acceptance of the claim, but it is my view AAMI has not unduly delayed your claim. Nevertheless, I certainly understand your frustration that you did not receive the service that you expected and I can reassure you that your feedback relating to this matter has been forwarded to the appropriate manager for future training purposes.

I have also considered AAMI's decision to not accept your claim. I note AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained from the assessor and hydrologist, along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. Consequently, I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I am therefore guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the overflow of the Sheep Station Creek, the Caboolture River and an undammed tributary causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy.

In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission

(ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 19 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 12 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the torrential rain added to the mass in the river that partly caused it to rise. You also note some of the information provided in the Cunningham Lindsey report is incorrect.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 12 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Brisbane River which is located within close proximity to your property, and caused floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on or around 12 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

In regard to your comments relating to the Cunningham Lindsey report AAMI has considered when determining whether your claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that the report conducted by Cunningham Lindsey formed only part of the evidence relied upon. I accept you believe there are errors in the report however, I am satisfied these errors did not influence the outcome of your claim.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise heavy rain has caused water to flood the bottom floor of your home and damage your contents.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was due to flood. AAMI also viewed a report from the Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel to confirm the cause of the water inundation and examined interactive flood maps provided on the Queensland Government website.

After considering the reports and information, AAMI wrote to you on 5 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood, which is specifically excluded from cover.

You are dissatisfied with AAMI's decision and submit the contents of your home were damaged by storm water prior to the inundation of flood water. On this basis, you believe AAMI are obliged to accept the claim. You have now asked that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the external assessor and hydrologist, along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 5 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your position that the drains surrounding your home were unable to cope with the rainfall and your contents were damaged by overflow from this before floodwaters entered the property. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your contents was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the water overflowing from the Brisbane River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decisions in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that heavy rain had caused the river to overflow and water had flooded your home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 8 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your property was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You dispute AAMI's decision to not cover your claim on the basis that when you purchased the policy you were advised the policy would cover you for all floods except tsunami. You believe that AAMI have failed in the duty of care by not sending you a copy of your policy and Product Disclosure Statement (PDS), therefore your policy should revert to basic cover which includes flood cover. Further, you advised that AAMI failed to update you on your claim for eight weeks after your property was assessed.

You now ask that I review this matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 13.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 8 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the assessor's report and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the Brisbane River adjacent to your property which has risen and overflowed to inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I have also reviewed your assertion you were advised that you were covered for Flood damage when taking out the policy. I have reviewed your policy messages and cannot confirm the details of the conversations you had with the operator at the time of taking out your policy. However, I am satisfied that you would not have been advised flood was covered under your policy as there is specific scripting that the operator is to follow when commencing a policy. I am satisfied the AAMI operator would not have told you were covered for something that is specifically excluded from the policy. In any event, I must advise that the onus remains with you the policyholder, to read the booklet and ensure that the cover provided meets your requirements.

I accept the policy is clear when it states that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered.

While I acknowledge your assertion that you were told that flood would be covered by the policy, but not tsunami, I accept the onus remains with the policyholder to read the policy documents and schedule in its entirety once received to ensure it meets their requirements. I am satisfied the onus rested with you to contact AAMI if you were not satisfied with the policy you purchased or if there were elements specific to your policy, such as the exclusions, that you wished to clarify.

You have also stated you did not receive the Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) on inception of your policy and therefore the exclusions in the policy do not apply. AAMI's records confirm a copy of the policy booklet was posted to you on 21 January 2010. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted you the relevant documentation when required to do so. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

I can confirm that that whilst damage or loss caused by flood (as defined above) is not covered, damage or loss caused by stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface is covered, subject to the other terms and conditions of the policy.

On this occasion AAMI believed it was appropriate to obtain the expert opinion of a hydrologist on the cause of water ingress given rise to the damage to your property. Once the report was received, AAMI conducted a review of the matter and a decision was provided.

In regard to your complaint regarding the time taken to review your claim and AAMI not providing you with regular updates, I can advise that recent weather events across Australia have placed stress on AAMI's resources and they are endeavouring to expedite the claims process for its customers. Additionally, AAMI was awaiting receipt of all the information it believed should be considered before making a decision in regard to claim acceptance. This unfortunately requires time and on behalf of AAMI I thank you for your patience in this matter.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mrs and Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) on page 14 that you are covered for loss or damage caused by flood, erosion or washing away of soil, earth or gravel, soil movement or settlement, subsidence or landslide unless caused by the insured event of earthquake.

Page 6 of the policy explains the building includes outbuildings and permanent structural improvements, fixtures and fittings that are permanently attached to the home building or the site, are stored at the site in a building capable of being locked while awaiting installation; that part of the building used for performing office work, services, whether above or below ground, that are your property or for which you are liable, any jetty at your site owned by you and used only for domestic purposes.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 24 January 2011 to advise that during the heavy rain and storms the storm water drain that runs under the driveway had collapsed and damaged the concrete driveway.

AAMI appointed Construct Services who attended your property as you had concerns over the structural integrity of the driveway.

In their subsequent report, Construct Services advised (in summary) of the following:

'It would appear the bridge was in fair condition prior to the storm, however a crack has formed underneath the stormwater pipe and is allowing water from the lake to escape from an unknown point buried underneath the bridge.'

'We have advised your policy holder that we believe a structural engineer may need to be appointed prior to any works being carried out to provide a correct scope of works for repairs.'

'Damage has occurred to the front driveway where the bridge is sectioned covering a river has begun to collapse. We believe this damage has occurred during recent storm events where the river has built up adding additional strain and pressure to the banks of the bridge causing it to eventually begin to crack and crumble.'

In order to technically satisfy the exact cause of the damage to this property we suggest that a suitable engineer is engaged to determine exactly what has caused the damage and the correct means of repairing it'.

AAMI also appointed an external assessor, Cunningham & Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property appeared to be due to flood.

AAMI engaged the services of Censeo Engineers to inspect and report on the damage as recommended by Construct Services. In their subsequent report, Censeo Engineers conclusion is as follows:

'The location of the collapse is at the lowest section of the 180m long driveway. Only one storm water pipe was provided underneath a 12m long driveway bridge. Significantly inadequate drainage or measures were provided to transfer water from the upstream to the downstream of the natural water course. The fact that the sole water pipe underneath the driveway is located 1.5m above the bottom of the natural water course means that the pipe is almost of no use during normal water flow as the location of the pipe is considered to be too high to catch any water flow.'

As a result, the only way of maintaining water flow in the natural water course is by seepage of soil materials behind the boulders. The soils underneath the concrete driveway are fully saturated with water throughout the duration of the life of the driveway due to seepage. Gradual erosion has been occurring in the soil materials for a long period of time. The soils' shear resistance reduces to a level which cannot support the gravity down slope loading and movement or failure results in the soil materials underneath the concrete driveway.'

Water pressure has been elevated by the saturation of soil materials from prolonged rainfall and seepage. When the soil material fills with water, the fluid pressure provides the bog with buoyancy, reducing the resistance to movement. Saturation creates a bog-like suspension of the soils which causes it to lose virtually all of its bearing capacity. With the build-up of hydraulic pressure, the vertical and horizontal forces against the wall have increased. The huge force generated from the water flow has finally triggered the event of collapse to the boulder underneath the driveway after it reaches the point of failure.

The collapse sustained to the boulders underneath the concrete driveway, therefore, would appear to be a direct result of poor building practice, significantly inadequate drainage and inadequate design. It is also our opinion that prolonged wet weather conditions and past storm activity have only helped exacerbate the inevitable problem of long periods of erosion and movement of the soil materials underneath the driveway.

We do not believe that any damage sustained to the underneath the concrete driveway is a direct result of any storm event.'

Upon receipt of the engineers report AAMI contacted you and advised the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI wrote you 10 May 2011 stating as the damage was associated with flood, soil movement and erosion, the claim would not be covered as these causes are all specifically excluded from cover under the policy.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe AAMI's letter included many incorrect and misleading statements.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and engineer as well as the letter from you dated 15 June 2011.

The AAMI Home Building policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood, soil movement, erosion and subsidence is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home policy booklets on page 13.

Firstly, I can advise that the Cunningham & Lindsey report stating the release of the Wivenhoe Dam causing damage does not apply to your property.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 10 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and engineer in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood, soil movement, erosion or subsidence.

Even if I were to accept that flood was not a contributor towards the damage to your driveway, I am satisfied the engineers report is clear that no storm damage has occurred to the concrete driveway underneath and in the absence of any contradictory evidence, I am persuaded by their view.

I can also confirm that AAMI have not included any mention of Dam damage in their letter to you. However, I can advise that a dam is not covered under the AAMI Home Building Policy for any loss or damage.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr [REDACTED] & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your home was completely inundated by water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey to provide a report on the damage sustained to your property. AAMI obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 5 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you assert that when you renewed your policy you spoke with an operator who confirmed you were covered for flood damage. You also assert that when you lodged the claim the operator advised the claim would be covered for flood.

You now request a review of matter.

My Decision

Thank you for your patience whilst I have read and considered all of the available material on your file.

While I acknowledge your assertion that you were told by AAMI that your policy covered you for flood, I have reviewed your policy messages and cannot confirm the details of the conversations you had with the operator at the time of renewing your policy. Even if such an assurance was provided, I believe it would have been general information and not an absolute assurance you would be covered should you experience such an event.

I would like to advise you that all the information contained in the policy is not conveyed over a telephone conversation. I accept the onus remains with the policyholder to read the policy documents and schedule in its entirety once received to ensure it meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with the policyholder to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

I have also reviewed your assertion you were advised that your claim would be covered when you lodged the claim. I must advise that AAMI do not record telephone conversations, but do monitor calls for training purposes. I can confirm that operator who lodged your claim understands that the policy does not cover flood and has confirmed that she would not have provided an assurance to any customer that their claim would be covered. Therefore, I am unable to accept you would have been provided with an absolute assurance you would be covered for this damage, when the policy clearly provides otherwise.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 18 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 4 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the waste water drains and taps inside your property back flowed well before flood waters entered. You assert that insurance companies or the Government should be providing relief in the circumstances and therefore implore AAMI to reconsider its position.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 4 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be fully accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the damage was caused by the overflow of the Oxley Creek which received floodwaters from the Brisbane River causing water to inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 7 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that water flooded their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due a combination of storm water and flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 13 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 7 June 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 13 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to deny your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note there is no dispute your clients received copies of the relevant policy documentation. However, you believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 29 January 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon. I accept AAMI have complied with their obligations under the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 and the general Insurance Code of Practice and there is no evidence before me to doubt this view.

In summary, I accept that majority of the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Bundamba Creek, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I acknowledge your position that the Cunningham Lindsey assessment has inaccurate statement contained therein. While I accept on face value your concerns over the report, I am satisfied this report only formed part of the basis for the non acceptance of your claim and the inaccuracies do not change the decision that flood caused damage to your property.

I can confirm OSSA Services Pty Ltd (OSSA) attended to make safe your property. This included the removal of curtains and floorboards as they were in a dangerous position from lifting. I have discussed this with AAMI management and I am of the understanding these items have been rectified or returned to you. If this is not the case please contact AAMI. I am satisfied OSSA and AAMI had an obligation to make the property safe and not leave it in a dangerous opposition. I am satisfied this service did not constitute a valid claim under the policy.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 27 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe the damage should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 27 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the Oxley Creek flowing into Stable Swamp Creek and the stormwater channel located approximately 150 metres east of your property, which overflowed and inundated your property. The water carried by the stormwater channel which was designed to assist in draining excess water from storm events in Archerfield towards Stable Swamp Creek, was not large enough to handle the volume of water that overflowed from Stable Swamp Creek. In either case, I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Miss [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 18 January 2011 to advise that you returned from holidays to discover your home had been inundated with flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 3 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

You contacted AAMI on 27 June 2011 to ask why the contents specified on your policy were not covered under the claim. AAMI explained that specifying items on the policy does not cover them for all events, they were only covered for specific events as per the policy terms and conditions.

You remained dissatisfied with AAMI's response and contacted my office to request a review of the decision. You state you understand the building not being covered by the claim, however you believe the contents you had specified on your policy should be covered as they were specifically listed on the policy. Further, you state you thought your policy covered you for flood damage.

You now ask that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

Your policy is defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with you, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets his requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover you have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with you to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 3 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the Oxley Creek located approximately 350 metres to the north east of your property has risen and overflowed, causing floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

I acknowledge your view that the contents you specified on your policy should be covered by the claim, however I am satisfied that whilst AAMI allowed you to specify these items on the policy, I must advise that specifying items for a certain value does not guarantee that amount will be paid in the event of a claim. The specified items are only covered for loss or damage caused by insured events. As the damage to your specified items was caused by flood, I accept AAMI's decision to not cover these items under your claim.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference [REDACTED]
Clients: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 5 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that their house was completely flooded and that they believed the drains were blocked therefore the water had nowhere to go.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 17 May 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 5 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policies, subject to any exclusions.

You have asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

Accordingly, I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

I also accept that in order to claim for water escaping from a drain or storm water runoff damages to the home and contents, the onus is with your client to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and drain or storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain or storm water.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 17 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologists in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was first caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 2 February 2011, and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your client's home and contents was caused by overland floodwaters from the Brisbane River resulting in inundation of your client's home. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Any such application must be made within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that I review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution (IDR) process.

Your Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The Home Building policy is designed to provide you with financial protection and peace of mind against sudden and unexpected loss or damage to your property caused by the events set out on pages 8 to 13 of the Home Building Insurance policy booklet. One of the events covered is loss or damage caused by or arising from storm and rainwater.

Page 7 of the Home Building policy states that your building does not include loose surfaces of tennis courts, driveways and paths.

Page 31 of the Home Contents policy details the additional benefit of spoiled frozen food. In summary, it explains AAMI will pay for the spoilage of frozen food caused by accidental breakdown of your freezer where your freezer is less than 10 years old, or failure of public electricity supply to your home other than because of industrial action. The most AAMI will pay for this benefit is $400.

Your Claim

You contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to report storm water got into your power box and damaged it along with the 260 metre long cabling that goes from your front gate to the house. At this point, AAMI lodged a claim and appointed external assessor from Cunningham Lindsey to attend your property to determine the amount and cause of claimed damage.

Upon receipt of the report, AAMI sought further information from R.A.T. Tippers who had constructed your driveway. After considering all the available information, AAMI advised your claim was partially accepted. AAMI wrote to you on 12 May 2011 explaining they would cover the repair of the fuse box and electrical cabling as they were satisfied this damage had been caused by stormwater runoff. However, AAMI advised they would not cover the cost of reinstating your driveway as the policy does not cover loose surfaces of driveways. Further, AAMI advised your claim for spoilage of frozen food was declined on the basis it was not caused by an insured event covered by your policy.

You have requested that I review these decisions on the basis the damage to the driveway was caused entirely as a consequence of the repair to the power cable and as such should be considered part of and not separate from the overall claim. Further, the spoilage of frozen food, you believe was also a consequence of the loss of electricity and you request the $400 benefit be paid under the claim.

My Decision

Firstly, I wish to thank you for your patience whilst I have conducted my review of your claim. I can advise that I have now read and considered all of the information on the claim file.

I confirm that I have discussed the claim with AAMI and after further consideration of the matter regarding your driveway, I am pleased to advise that AAMI have decided to cover the cost to reinstate your driveway, however will limit this to cover only the section that was damaged by the repair of the electric cabling. I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process this aspect of the claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44.

If you have any questions in the interim regarding my decision, please do not hesitate to contact my office by calling 1300 240 437 during business hours.

I understand your food in your freezer was spoiled as a result of this event. The policy provides cover for additional benefits, such as 'Spoiled frozen food'. It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. Your AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy is a defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The 'Spoiled frozen food' benefit only covers spoiled frozen food caused by accidental breakdown of your freezer where your freezer is less than 10 years old, or as a result of failure of public electricity to your home other than because of industrial action.

Whilst I recognise you advised your frozen food spoiled when the power went out, I accept the policy clearly and unambiguously states AAMI will only pay for the spoilage of frozen food caused by either the accidental breakdown of your freezer where your freezer is less than 10 years old, or failure of public electricity to your home. As the power failure was not caused by one of these events, I am satisfied AAMI is not obliged to cover the spoiled frozen food under the additional benefit of 'Spoiled frozen food' on this occasion.

I have considered your history with AAMI and I accept you have been a loyal customer. I thank you for choosing us as your insurer in the past and I hope you will continue to do so. However, AAMI has an obligation to all its stakeholders, including policyholders, to ensure claim decisions are made in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy.

Whilst I empathise with your circumstances, I am satisfied AAMI's decision to not accept your claim for spoiled frozen food is correct and in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy.

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by water up to the tops of the windows.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a hydrology report commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 11 May 2011 advising the claim for flood damage was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and on this basis the matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 11 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

While I acknowledge you do not agree with the findings contained in the reports unfortunately I am guided by the hydrologists view.

Therefore, I accept that the flood was caused by the inundation of flood water escaping and overflowing from the Brisbane River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]

Thank you for the request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your client's claim.

Further to our conversation late last week, I have completed a preliminary review of the claim and have discussed your client's claim with AAMI management. As a result, I believe it is appropriate for the file to be returned to AAMI to arrange a thorough review of your client's concerns. This will enable consideration of the information you have more recently supplied along with the assessment of the property previously carried out. AAMI has confirmed this review will commence immediately and upon completion, a comprehensive decision will be provided.

If you remain dissatisfied with AAMI's decision at such time as this review has been completed, please contact my office on 1300 240 437 to initiate a further review. I can assure you my office will closely monitor AAMI's continued handling of the claim.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Your Reference: [REDACTED]

Clients: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 1 July 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped

or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that their house was completely inundated with water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 14 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 1 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policies, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 14 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 5 February 2011, and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

You have stated your clients were not made aware of the policy exclusion for damage caused by flood and had relied on AAMI to alert them of the inadequacy of the policy for their needs given their circumstances. Further, you state AAMI staff had a duty of utmost good faith to inform your clients of the unsuitability of the insurance cover selected during consultation with them. You assert AAMI has failed in its statutory responsibility to treat your clients with 'utmost good faith' as required by section 13 of The Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (ICA).

I am satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and therefore section 69(2) of the ICA provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days of commencing cover is sufficient. I note that you do not dispute that your clients were provided with a copy of the policy documentation, therefore I accept that your client was issued the policy documents AAMI was required to send.

Your clients' policy is defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your clients, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your clients to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

You have also asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 13.

Accordingly I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the Bremer River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Any such application must be made within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for the request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by storm water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (Hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 31 March 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and state the water that inundated your home originated as storm water and as such, the policy covering your home should respond.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 31 March 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept the flood was caused by rising water from the Brisbane River causing the Oxley Creek and Stable Swamp Creek to overflow resulting in water travelling over ground to your property. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mr. & Mrs. [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that your suburb had experienced continuous rain that had caused the water level to rise. You advised the water had reached the roof line of your home and you had been evacuated.

AAMI appointed an external assessor from Cunningham Lindsay who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also reviewed a report from the Insurance Council of Australia Hydrology Panel to confirm the cause of the water inundation and examined interactive flood maps provided on the Queensland Government website.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 14 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision. You state the assessor from Cunningham Lindsay attributed the water inundation to torrential rain. You argue that without a rainwater occurrence, which the policy does cover, flooding would not occur so you consider this event should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the Cunningham Lindsay assessor and the hydrology panel along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the Building and Contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively. I accept the onus is with the insured to ensure the product they have purchased suits their requirements by reading the documentation provided following inception of the policy. The policy covers loss or damage caused by the insured events set out in the policy booklet, unless defeated by any of the detailed exclusions.

I have reviewed the reports obtained regarding this matter and I am satisfied AAMI's letter of 14 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Woogaroo Creek, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms Kreet,

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 1 July 2011.

I can advise that a review was completed for Mr White on 18 May 2011 which I have enclosed for your reference. However, a further review will take place based on the information you have supplied.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to advise that due to the recent floods his property had been inundated with water and was currently underwater.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due a combination of storm water and flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your clients home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 21 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 1 July 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 21 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision to not accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the whole of the damage was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I note your position that your client was told when taking out the policy with AAMI that he was covered for flood and would not have taken out insurance with AAMI without that reassurance. You allege that as a result of AAMI's misrepresentations Mr White has acted in reliance on that statement to his detriment. That is, your client was given a policy totally inadequate given he expressly stated his location on the bank of the Bremer River was susceptible to flooding. You believe AAMI must pay for the consequences of this misrepresentation.

Whilst telephone calls are monitored from time to time for training purposes, conversations are not recorded so I am unable to verify conversation your client had when speaking to AAMI about the policy when it was taken out. However I have confirmed AAMI Management's directives to staff are to advise customer's basic policy coverage and to ensure each customer reads their Product Disclosure Statement (PDS).

I note that the policy was taken out on the internet and there are no messages on the claim to indicate a conversation took place. Therefore, I am unable to verify that a conversation took place and can confirm AAMI does not have any terms and conditions that stipulate that conversations are to be recorded.

I note there is no dispute your clients received copies of the relevant policy documentation. However, you believe AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion.

Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 2 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Bremer River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However, I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept damage caused by flood is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that you experienced very heavy rain in the area and as a result your home had been inundated with water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a hydrology report commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 20 May 2011 advising the claim for flood damage was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and on this basis the matter has been referred to my office for review. You do not dispute that your policy does not provide cover for flood. Your dispute is in relation to the storm water damage which you state occurred before the arrival of overland floodwaters.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 20 May 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the damage to your ceiling caused by storm water should be accepted as this occurred before the arrival of overland floodwaters. However, I accept AAMI's decision to not cover this damage as it is unable to assess or verify the occurrence or extent of this damage which may have happened due to your building being inundated with floodwaters to a height above your ceiling.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. In this instance, floodwater has inundated your entire building including its ceiling and roof space preventing AAMI from assessing any earlier damage which may have occurred and therefore being able to determine the extent of its liability.

Given the nature of these claims, each must be considered individually and any findings I make are limited to the particular property and the specific circumstances of each claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter. Based on the evidence presently to hand, I am satisfied AAMI have established, on balance, the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept AAMI's decision to not cover your claim.

In regard to your complaint regarding the time taken to review your claim, I can advise that recent weather events across Australia have placed stress on AAMI's resources and they are endeavouring to expedite the claims process for its customers. Additionally, AAMI was awaiting receipt of all the information it believed should be considered before making a decision in regard to claim acceptance. This unfortunately requires time and on behalf of AAMI I thank you for your patience in this matter.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Mr. Holmes,

Re: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 14 June 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy).

Page 12 of the policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 13 of the policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 20 January 2011 to advise their home had been inundated by water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 5 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to their property was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 14 June 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building policy is a defined events policy, which do not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

The policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 5 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your client's claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 9 February 2011, and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

You have stated your client was not made aware of the policy exclusion for damage caused by riverine flood and had relied on AAMI to alert them of the inadequacy of the policy for their needs given their circumstances. Further, you state AAMI staff had a duty of utmost good faith to inform your client of the unsuitability of the insurance cover selected during consultation with them. You assert AAMI has failed in its statutory responsibility to treat our client with 'utmost good faith' as required by section 13 of The Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (ICA).

I am satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and therefore section 69(2) of the ICA provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days of commencing cover is sufficient. I note that you do not dispute that your client was provided with a copy of the policy documentation, therefore I accept that your client was issued the policy documents AAMI was required to send.

Your client's policy is defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets his requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover he has purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

You have also asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 13.

Accordingly I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your client's property was caused by the overflow of Rocky Water Holes Creek, which is located approximately 150 metres to the north east of the property. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Mrs and Mr [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise heavy rains had caused damage to your property.

AAMI appointed an external assessor Cunningham & Lindsey who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

AAMI also commissioned an external hydrologist WRM Water & Environment Pty Ltd (WRM), to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 27 June 2011 advising the claim for flood damage was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision and believe the entire claim should be covered. You understand that you are not covered for flood but you are not claiming for flood, rather stormwater damage.

The matter has been referred to my office for review.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 27 June 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by the inundation of flood water escaping and overflowing from the Bremer River, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your flood damage is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 9 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that water had entered their home.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 1 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 9 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 1 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your clients' claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your clients' property was caused by flood.

I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

I have confirmed that a copy of the policy documentation was posted to your client on 9 July 2011. Section 35 provides that standard cover does not apply if the insurer informed the insured in writing of the relevant policy provisions pursuant to section 69(2). Section 69(2) provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days is sufficient. It is generally considered that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and provided the insurer sends the insured a copy of the policy documentation within 14 days section 35 is complied with. I am satisfied AAMI posted your client the relevant documentation within 14 days of cover commencing. In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy is subject to the exclusions set out in the policy documentation.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your clients' claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 8 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your clients' home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Bremer River, resulting in inundation of your clients' home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. Dear Ms. [REDACTED],

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Clients: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your clients' complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review the complaint in accordance with AAMI's IDR process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under AAMI's Home Building and Contents Insurance Policies.

Page 17 of the Home Building policy relates to repairing or rebuilding your building.

It states:

Repairing or rebuilding your building

If your home building is damaged during the period of cover by an insured event, we will decide if the damage:

can be properly repaired, or is so severe that we reasonably believe your building will need to be rebuilt.

Page 36 of the Contents policy relates to settlement of Contents claims. It states:

Helping us to pay your claim

When you can provide us with information such as documents, booklets and photographs showing and/or valuing your contents, you help us make speedy and accurate decisions regarding your claim and the repair or the replacement of your contents. This information helps establish ownership of property and its value and condition.

This information includes:

receipts, bank and credit card statements, agreements and reports, valuations and photographs (photographs do not have to be specifically of your contents; they may be easily identifiable in photos taken, for example, of personal events).

We may require this type of information. If you are unable to provide information of this type, that establishes ownership and value of the property in question and the value of your claim, then we may reduce or refuse to pay your claim.

The Claim

On 14 January 2011 AAMI was notified your clients needed to claim under both their building and contents policies, reporting their shed as having been inundated with mud and water from the recent severe weather events, and some areas around the house also being damaged.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, to assess the loss. AAMI subsequently accepted the claim for damage to both the home and contents.

However, your clients have engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland, as a dispute has arisen in regard to the settlement of both the home and contents claims.

AAMI has advised upon your clients submitting an itemised list setting out the contents being claimed and estimates of their replacement costs, if the estimated prices are deemed fair and reasonable, those contents will be cash settled.

In regard to the building repairs, AAMI has advised it can either authorise repair of the damage caused by the event, or can cash settle the cost of repairing the damage caused by the event. The settlement amount offered is $65,201, which is based on a quotation submitted by Integra Building Services, prepared from a scope of works compiled by Bovis Lend Lease.

You have advised the Service your clients seek settlement of the contents without having to compile an itemised list setting out the items lost in the event, or their values. You have stated most of the contents were either washed away or were too wet to access.

You have further advised your clients do not accept the building can be repaired yet, if at all, as the soil is waterlogged and the building is moving.

You have confirmed your clients seek the cost of building a new house, once that cost has been determined.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your clients' file including reports from Cunningham Lindsay and Morgan Consulting Engineers (Morgan) and the scope of works the current building settlement offer is based upon.

My decisions are as follows:

Contents settlement

I am mindful AAMI's Contents Insurance policy sets out that if you are unable to provide information and documentation that establishes ownership and value of the property in question and the value of your claim, AAMI may reduce or refuse to pay your claim.

As AAMI has recognised the nature of the loss makes it difficult for your clients to produce the type of evidence that would usually be required of a claimant, it has offered to issue a fair and reasonable settlement upon receipt of an itemised list setting out the contents being claimed and estimates of their replacement costs.

I have noted the initial description of loss provided by your clients and the details contained in the Cunningham Lindsay report relating to the contents, as well as the request made by your client on 2 February 2011 for a shipping container to store contents that were not secure within the home in. Based on this information, it is my understanding there were some contents that were undamaged by the event or were salvageable.

Accordingly, I accept it is reasonable in the circumstances for AAMI to insist upon receipt of an itemised list setting out the contents being claimed and estimates of their replacement costs, prior to issuing a settlement. Presently, AAMI is unaware if the contents loss was less than, equal to or more than the amount covered on the policy of $63,400. I accept details of the specific items being claimed is information AAMI requires in order to ensure the appropriate settlement is issued.

In the event that your clients are unsure of the estimated replacement cost of any of the items they detail on the list, they may leave those fields incomplete and AAMI will endeavour to obtain the information on their behalf in order to assist in establishing the settlement amount.

Building settlement

I note your clients do not accept the building can be repaired yet, if at all, as the soil is waterlogged and the building is moving. You have confirmed your clients seek the cost of building a new house.

I have considered the report compiled and submitted by Morgan Consulting Engineers, who inspected your clients' home to determine any damage to the foundations that occurred as a result of the event claimed.

Morgan's report stated:

'In our opinion, the recent flooding has not diminished the structural integrity of the residence but has reduced the stability of a number of concrete stumps.

We recommend that any repairs be delayed for as long as possible to allow the soil to dry and return to normal moisture levels. Following this period of drying, we recommend the following repairs be carried out:

- Reinstate the A.G. drain and waterproofing behind the retaining wall and fill with gravel
- Fill in the holes eroded out around the concrete stumps with concrete
- Re-level the floors if required'

The above detailed works have been allowed for in the scope of works, with the exception of re-levelling the floors, which may not be required. However if your clients opt to take a cash settlement for the cost of repairs and engage their own builders and during the course of repairs they find the floors do require re-levelling (or that any other works are required), AAMI should be notified immediately so a further assessment can be arranged, to determine any further settlement that needs to be issued to allow for those additional works.

Alternately, if your clients opt to have AAMI undertake the repairs on their behalf, the authorised builder will notify AAMI of any additional works required as a result of the event claimed, including floor re-levelling. Additionally, if your clients proceed with this option, AAMI will provide a Lifetime Repair Guarantee covering the workmanship and materials.

In regard to commencement of the building repairs and Morgan's advice of 29 April 2011 the repairs should be delayed for as long as possible to allow the soil to dry and return to normal moisture levels, the policy provides for the cost of temporary accommodation to assist with situations such as this. Details of the cover and limitations relating to the temporary accommodation benefit are set out on page 20 of the policy booklet.

In the absence of any contradictory expert evidence to hand to refute Morgan's findings, I accept I can rely upon the information before me which confirms the building can be properly repaired for the amount quoted by Integra Building Services. Accordingly, I am satisfied AAMI is not required to pay your clients the cost of building a new house, based on the information to hand.

Whilst I empathise with your clients' situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decisions regarding the settlement of this claim are correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Re: AAMI Claim – [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request I review AAMI's decision regarding your contents claim.

It is my role as a Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

I confirm I have considered the information you have provided and have discussed the matter with Management in the QLD Home Claims department. It has been agreed that a further inspection of the basement where your contents items were stored should undertaken, with a view to determining the specific cause of damage to your contents.

Once the inspection has occurred and the related report received, the Home Claims Manager will make contact with you to advise if the previous decision has been revised. If you are then not satisfied with the decision you receive, you are entitled to seek a further review by my office.

It is my understanding from our telephone discussion today that you are willing to allow a further assessment to occur. Accordingly, I have requested contact be made with you by the Home Claims department later this week in order for a mutually agreeable time to be arranged.

If you have any questions regarding this decision, please do not hesitate to contact my office on [REDACTED].

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number: [REDACTED]

Thank you for your patience whilst I have conducted my review of your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim was lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy.

Each of the Home Building and Home Contents policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood. Both policy booklets set out flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas around the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 31 December 2010 to report that your home had been inundated by floodwaters. AAMI arranged for a home building assessor to attend your residence and report on the damage sustained. At this time, the assessor noted water had inundated your home to a level of approximately 400mm damaging most rooms.

Following their initial inspection, AAMI obtained a hydrology report from WRM Water + Environment (WRM) that detailed the nature of the flood that Emerald as a township had experienced. A short time later, a representative of WRM contacted you to discuss the specific circumstances of the water inundation your property had experienced.

After considering all of the available information, AAMI wrote to you on 23 February 2011 to advise the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI explained the decision had been made on the basis the damage you were claiming was the result of flood and therefore not covered under the terms of the policy.

Australian Associated Motor Insurers Limited ABN 92 004 791 744 AFSL No. 238173

You are not satisfied with AAMI's decision and assert it is your view the water that entered your home had come from drains surrounding the property rather than the Nagoa River directly. You state as the policy covers water escaping from a drain the claim should be accepted. You have now asked that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file and have sought further information and clarification from AAMI. I have also considered a report in relation to the 2008 Emerald flood event. As you are aware, given the nature of these claims, each must be considered individually and any findings I make are limited to the particular property and the specific circumstances of each claim.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in each of the policy booklets on pages 13 and 21 respectively.

The policy also states that flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

I accept the area where your house is located is in a flood prone area and had previously experienced flood events one of which occurred in 2008.

I note WRM made comment in their report dated 18 February 2011 inundation of the house and shed was caused by floodwaters backing up the constructed open channel from the north and east and overflowing from the racecourse.

In my discussions with you, I note your view the water that inundated your property was predominately from a drain to the rear and street gutter from the front. In your statements, you confirm the street gutter at the front of your property feeds the rear stormwater drain by an underground pipe. You also advised in our conversation that other than this drainage system to which you refer, there is no underground or other network of stormwater drainage for your home.

I have reviewed Google maps of your area. I note the stormwater channel for which WRM refer to the rear of your property runs north and water appears to drain into the large stormwater channel to the west of your property and eventually into the Nagoa River. In light of the rainfall patterns, the duration of the inundation and other evidence, I accept that the water which entered your property was backflow water from the Nagoa River. I accept such water escaped from the river, entered stormwater channels and in turn the constructed channel to the rear of your property, rather than travelling across land, outside of channels and drains, from the river or the stormwater channel to the west.

For present purposes, I accept that for your property the concrete channel to which WRM refer to the rear serves as a drain for normal rain water. After careful consideration of the specific circumstances of your property and the loss you suffered, it is my view that it cannot be ruled out that the water which caused the inundation of your home from the drain to the rear of your property, rather than travelling across land from the stormwater channel to the west or the river. As stated above, I accept the watercourse to the rear of your property serves as a drain. Damage caused by water escaping from a drain is covered under the terms of the policy and you are entitled to the interpretation of the policy.

Consequently, I am pleased to confirm AAMI have agreed to accept your claim pursuant to the other terms and conditions of the policy. AAMI will contact you shortly to arrange the further processing of your claim.

Yours faithfully

Dear Mr & Mrs [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 14 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 29 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you are dissatisfied with the outcome and the time taken to reach the decision. You state you are disappointed in AAMI and the service provided throughout the claim process.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor and hydrologist along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policies provide cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the home and contents policy booklets on pages 13 and 19 respectively.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 29 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted. However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of Cubberla Creek and the Brisbane River and caused floodwaters to travel overland and inundate your property on 12 January 2011. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

In regard to your complaint regarding the time taken to review your claim, I can advise that recent weather events across Australia have placed stress on AAMI's resources and they are endeavouring to expedite the claims process for its customers. Additionally, AAMI was awaiting receipt of all the information it believed should be considered before making a decision in regard to claim acceptance. This unfortunately requires time and on behalf of AAMI I thank you for your patience in this matter.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. You must make such an application within two years of the date of this letter to:

Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Client: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 20 May 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or
cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 17 January 2011 to advise that his home had been inundated by floodwater.

AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 27 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 20 May 2011.

It is a general principle of insurance law that it is up to the policyholder to prove that the damage in respect of which a claim is made is covered under the terms of the policy of insurance. The AAMI Home Building and Home Contents policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 27 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your client's claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 16 February 2011 and that the hydrology report formed only part of the evidence relied upon.

I note that you have also raised a concern that your client did not receive a PDS at each renewal, and therefore assert AAMI has not met its burden under section 35 of the Insurance Contracts Act to clearly inform your client of the relevant exclusion. I can confirm that a policy or PDS is not required to be sent on each renewal unless there has been a variation to the policy during the preceding period of cover. Accordingly, I can confirm that the last policy period of 12 months up to 21 July 2011 has not had a change in the PDS, nor the previous period to this of 21 July 2009 to 21 July 2010. That is, the PDS that your client last received is still current.

In the circumstances, I accept that standard cover does not apply and the policy and claim is subject to the exclusions set out in the PDS.

Your client's policies are defined events policies, which do not cover all risks. They only provide cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholder, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in these documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments.

You have also asserted that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract.

However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

Accordingly I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your client's home and contents was caused by the overflow of the flooded Bremer River, resulting in inundation of your client's home. However I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). Dear Ms [REDACTED]

Re: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your claim.

It is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy and an AAMI Home Building Insurance Policy (the policy). In general terms, the policy provides financial protection and peace of mind for loss or damage to your contents, which is caused by an insured event.

Pages 16 to 21 of the contents policy and pages 8 to 13 of the building policy detail the insured events you are covered for resulting in loss to your home and/or contents occurring during the period of cover. The policy booklets explain (in summary) that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood. The policy defines 'flood' (page 19 of the contents policy and page 13 of the building policy) as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 15 January 2011 to advise that your house had been inundated by flood water.

AAMI appointed assessing firm Cunningham Lindsey (CL) to attend your home to assess the cause and extent of the loss. CL completed their assessment and provided a report stating that the damage to your property was due to flood waters from the Oxley Creek. AAMI also obtained a report from an external hydrologist commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of your home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to you on 1 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to your home and contents was caused by flood that is specifically excluded from cover.

You have requested a review of AAMI's decision as you believe that CL's report is flawed and believe your residence has been flooded due to storm water runoff. You advised that some areas along Strickland terrace have longstanding issues with storm water runoff, and believe that it cannot be ruled out that the damage to your property was caused by storm water runoff. As your policy covers loss or damage arising from storm water runoff, you believe that your claim should be accepted. On this basis, you now ask that I review the matter.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including reports from the assessor, Hydrology Area Report and the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website.

The AAMI Home Building and Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they obtained and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 1 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your claim. I have considered your opinion that the claim should be accepted and your belief that the assessor has used incorrect findings in the final report. I further acknowledge your statement that the area has had long standing issues with storm water runoff, and your belief that it cannot be ruled out that storm water runoff caused the damage to your home.

However, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and Hydrology Area Report in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept that the whole of the damage to your property was caused by flood. I accept that I can rely on the expertise of the staff from CL & and on the ICA Hydrology Panel in assessing and am satisfied that they have the necessary experience and qualifications to make such a judgement. Accordingly I am satisfied that I can rely upon the evidence submitted by CL & the ICA Hydrology Panel.

I can confirm the main basis of the decision has been based on the Hydrology Area Report and unfortunately I am bound by this Hydrology Area Report which states your property was inundated by flood waters escaping or overflowing from Oxley Creek.

Accordingly, based on the Hydrology report and assessor's report, the evidence before me indicates the predominant cause of the flood and the damage to your home, was the over flow of the Oxley Creek.

I accept that the flood was caused by overflow of the Oxley Creek or one or more of its tributaries, but I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision to refuse to cover your claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your complaint. If you wish to pursue the complaint further you are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Dear Ms [REDACTED]

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request that my office review AAMI's decision regarding your contents claim.

As previously advised, it is my role as Dispute Resolution Officer to review your complaint in accordance with AAMI's internal dispute resolution process.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

The policy booklet explains that you are covered for loss or damage caused by storm and rainwater, but not damage caused by flood.

Flood is defined in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

escapes or overflows from, or

cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it, the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or stormwater channel.

The Claim

You contacted AAMI on 12 January 2011 to advise that storm water had gone through your house to a height of approximately one foot from the roof. This inundation had damaged your contents.

After considering the reports and information to hand AAMI refused your claim, on the basis the damage to your contents was caused by flood, which is specifically excluded from cover.

Australian Associated Motor Insurers Limited ABN 92 004 791 744. AFSL No. 238173

As you requested a review of the decision, the matter was passed to my office to review.

The outcome of my preliminary review was that a further assessment of the property should be undertaken with a view to obtaining evidence relating to your account of what had occurred that led to the water inundation at the home.

Once the further assessment had occurred and the related report was received, AAMI Management considered it along with any other information it considered relevant and informed you AAMI remained satisfied the loss of your contents was due to flood. AAMI maintained the decline of your claim.

You have provided detailed submissions setting out how you consider the inundation of your home occurred. You have requested the matter be further reviewed.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your file including the external assessor's report, AAMI's in-house assessor's report, the hydrology report available on the Insurance Council of Australia website, the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website, images from the Google maps and Nearmaps websites and your submissions.

The AAMI Home Contents policy provides cover for loss and damage caused by storm and rainwater, but specifically provides that loss or damage caused by flood is not covered. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on pages 19 and 21.

Water escaping from a drain is an event that is covered under AAMI's Home Contents policy. However, in order to claim for water escaping from a drain damaging your contents, I accept the onus is with you to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and drain water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain.

It is my understanding there is no dispute rainfall in your area ceased at approximately 6:00pm on 11 January 2011. I note AAMI's assessor accepted that it was possible blocked drains at the site resulted in rainwater backing up and causing initial damage to the home. I accept the photographs you have provided showing water flowing out of the property may demonstrate water running towards Six Mile Creek during the day as opposed to it coming from the Creek, prior to the home's internal inundation. However when considering all the evidence collectively, I consider waters escaped from the creek which overtopped the roadways intersecting at Old Ipswich Road and Dunlop Street and met with the water filling the land behind your home, prior to this combined water encroaching upon the home and inundating it internally. I do not accept the water discharging from drains at the site alone would have brought the waterline to the house or outbuildings, given the topography of the site, unless it mixed with water escaping from the creek.

Noting the location of the outbuildings on the site, I also believe, on balance of probabilities, the water affecting the contents located within these structures would also have been mixed drain and flood waters.

I therefore confirm I agree with AAMI's decision not to cover the loss of your contents. I believe AAMI is not required to make its claim acceptance decision based solely on the assessor's findings and is entitled to consider all the information it holds collectively. Additionally, whilst certain reports considered during that process may not be specific to the site, I believe they can still be taken into account in order to reach an understanding of the various facts relating to the site's inundation.

I do note AAMI's letter of 15 June 2011 makes reference to figure 8.3 of the General Hydrology Report for the Ipswich area depicting a steep rise in Brisbane River (and Six Mile Creek) water height in your vicinity from 9pm on 11 January. I confirm this was a typographical error and that it should have stated 6pm, which is the time the graph referred to indicates a steep water rise. I apologise on behalf of AAMI's Home Claims department for any confusion this error caused.

I have enclosed copies of the Nearmap images that have been referred to in AAMI's letter of 15 June 2011. Whilst the images depict the receding flood line after the loss of your contents had already occurred, I believe they also equally demonstrate what occurred when the creek water was approaching your home, for example, the direction it approached from and its overtopping of the roadway above the drain pipes situated on either side of Old Ipswich Road. Whilst AAMI's decision in April 2011 did not rely on the Nearmap images, they have been provided to you as it is considered they do confirm AAMI's understanding of the source and height of the floodwater at the time it reached the floor level of your home and outbuildings.

I note your position that on 12 January 2011, an AAMI Claims Assist staff member informed you whilst AAMI's policy does not cover flood, due to the extent of damage and the fact it was being classed as a natural disaster, claims would not be denied. You have advised on 14 January 2011, your Client Manager advised flood claims would not be covered, but all claims would be reviewed with a hydrology report. You state the advice previously extended by the Claims Assist staff member resulted in your expectations being set for acceptance of the claim and that as a result, you outlaid money to try to salvage lost items and purchased other items rather than borrowing them. I also necessarily note you have an internal knowledge of AAMI's processes and Management review of these matters, such that you would be reasonably aware there is no guarantee an out of cover claim, in particular a flood claim, would be paid.

I am unable to verify the contents of the conversation you refer to having had with AAMI's Claims Assist staff member that you state left you with the expectation loss and damage relating to the event claimed for would be accepted. I am not satisfied it has been established by evidence that any information provided by AAMI shortly after claim lodgement resulted in you taking actions other than those you needed to anyway, irrespective of whether or not the losses would be covered under the insurance policy.

Whilst you have advised previous flood claims have been accepted by AAMI on an ex-gratia basis, I note the decision to offer any cover outside the terms of the policy is entirely at the discretion of Management. I accept any previous occurrences are not to be treated as precedents and confirm on this occasion, AAMI Management has not agreed to make an ex-gratia payment. Whilst I appreciate you are disappointed with this, AAMI has an overriding obligation to all its stakeholders, including other policyholders, to ensure that claim decisions are made in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy.

In regard to claiming for damaged items under the Extra Cover for portable valuables policy extension, I note the general exclusion of flood is applicable to all sections of the policy, including Extra Cover for portable valuables. Accordingly, I accept AAMI is not required to settle any aspect of your loss under that policy extension.

Spoiled Frozen Food

Notwithstanding, I understand your food in your freezer was spoiled as a result of this event. The policy provides cover for additional benefits, such as 'Spoiled frozen food'. I accept the policy states that AAMI will pay to a maximum of $400 for spoiled frozen food caused by failure of public electricity to your home other than because of industrial action.

I note AAMI has conducted enquiries into the failure of the electricity supply and was unable to substantiate their claim that flood (as defined in the policy) caused the public supply of electricity to your home to fail, which therefore led to the spoilage of your food. In the circumstances, I am pleased to advise AAMI has agreed to accept your claim for frozen food spoilage and settle you $400 for this loss.

I have therefore returned the file to AAMI's Home Claims Department, who will contact you shortly to further process this aspect of the claim. Alternatively, you may contact AAMI's Home Claims Department during business hours on 13 22 44.

Dear Mr. Holmes,

RE: AAMI Claim Number [REDACTED]
Your Reference: [REDACTED]
Clients: [REDACTED]

I am writing in regard to your request to have your client's complaint reviewed through our Internal Dispute Resolution (IDR) process.

I have been appointed to review the complaint. I confirm receipt of your submission dated 1 August 2011.

The Policy

The claim has been lodged under an AAMI Home Building and Contents Insurance Policy (the policy).

Pages 10 to 12 of the building policy and page 18 of the contents policy explains you are covered for Storm and rainwater including stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface. It further states storm means violent wind (including a cyclone or tornado), thunderstorm or a heavy fall of rain, snow or hail.

Page 11 to 13 of the building policy and page 19 to 21 of the contents policy explains you are not covered for damage or loss caused by flood. Flood means the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which:

- escapes or overflows from, or
- cannot enter, because it is full or has overflowed, or

- is prevented from entering, because other water has already escaped or been released from it,

- the normal confines of any watercourse or lake, including any that may have been modified by human intervention, or reservoir, canal, dam or

stormwater channel.

Flood does not mean stormwater runoff from areas surrounding the site, or water escaping from any water main, drain, pipe, street gutter, guttering or surface.

The Claim

Your client contacted AAMI on 13 January 2011 to report they were in Melbourne, however their friends advised that their house in Brisbane had been flooded.

A claim was lodged and AAMI appointed an external assessor, Cunningham Lindsey, who provided a report stating that the damage to the property was, in their opinion, due to flood. AAMI also considered a report from an external hydrologist panel commissioned by the Insurance Council of Australia to confirm the cause of the water inundation. This Hydrology Area Report (hydrologist) had been jointly issued by three established hydrology firms to investigate the cause and timing of water inundation in the area of the home.

After considering the reports, AAMI wrote to your client on 1 April 2011 advising the claim was not for acceptance. AAMI's decision had been made on the basis the damage to the home and contents was caused by flood which is specifically excluded from cover.

Your client engaged the services of Legal Aid Queensland. You have provided a submission setting out why you believe the claim should be covered.

My Decision

I have read and considered all of the available material on your client's file including reports from the assessor and hydrologists along with the interactive flood map provided on the Queensland Government website. I have also reviewed your submission dated 1 August 2011.

You state that your client was not made aware of the policy exclusion for damage caused by flood and had relied on AAMI to alert them of the inadequacy of the policy for their needs given their proximity to the Brisbane River. Further, you state AAMI staff had a duty of utmost good faith to inform your client of the unsuitability of the insurance cover selected during consultation with them. You assert AAMI has failed in its statutory responsibility to treat your clients with 'utmost good faith' as required by section 13 of The Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (ICA).

I am satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to read the entire policy to a prospective insured over the phone and therefore section 69(2) of the ICA provides that where it is not reasonably practicable for information to be given orally or in writing, giving the information in writing within 14 days of commencing cover is sufficient. I note that you do not dispute that your client was provided with a copy of the policy documentation, therefore I accept that your client was issued the policy documents AAMI was required to send.

Your client's policy is defined events policy, which does not cover all risks. It only provides cover for loss or damage caused by the events specified in the policy, subject to any exclusions. I accept the onus rests with your client, the policyholders, to read the policy documents and ensure the cover provided meets their requirements. In the event that the information set out in the documents is incorrect, or if the cover they have purchased is inadequate, the onus remains with your client to contact AAMI and complete the required amendments or find alternate cover.

I have considered your assertion that the wording contained within the policy is confusing and misleading, and makes it difficult for customers to assess their coverage under the terms of the contract. However, I accept that the policy clearly and unambiguously provides that whilst damage arising from storm and rainwater (including storm water runoff) is covered, damage arising from flood is not.

Flood is defined (in summary) in the policy as the inundation or covering of normally dry land by water which escapes, overflows, cannot enter or is prevented from entering the normal confines of any watercourse or lake. I accept that this is clearly set out in the policy booklet on page 19 (contents) and page 13 (building).

Accordingly, I accept that AAMI's policy clearly sets out the circumstances of when it will provide cover, and clearly defines which situations it deems to be 'flood'. On this basis, I accept that the wording is clear and AAMI is entitled to rely on the policy exclusion.

I have reviewed AAMI's letter and the reports they considered and I am satisfied AAMI's letter dated 1 April 2011 sets out the basis of the decision not to accept your client's claim. I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

I have considered your argument that the damage to your client's property was caused by storm water run-off and / or water escaping from a drain. I accept that in order to claim for damage caused by storm water run-off or water escaping from a drain to the home and contents, the onus is with your client to establish, on balance of probabilities, this occurred prior to flood water, or mixed flood and storm water, damaging them. Under Australian insurance law an insurer is not obligated to accept a claim for water damage when that damage was caused by a mixture of floodwater and water escaping from a drain or storm water. As previously noted, I am guided by the expert qualified opinion of the external assessor and hydrologist in this matter and in the absence of any other evidence from similarly qualified experts to prove the damage or some part of it was caused by an event covered under the policy, I accept the damage to your client's property was caused by flood.

In regard to your comments relating to the Hydrology Area Report AAMI has considered when determining whether your client's claim fell within the scope of cover provided by the policy, I accept that a site specific assessment report was conducted by Cunningham Lindsey on 1 February 2011 and therefore it is my view that the hydrology report can be taken into account when evaluating all the collective evidence relating to the event.

In summary, I accept that the damage to your client's home and contents was caused by floodwater inundation from the overflow of the Brisbane River. I also accept that the policy clearly provides that resultant flooding as defined is not covered.

Whilst I very much empathise with your client's situation, I am obliged to make decisions in accordance with the terms and conditions of the policy. In the circumstances, I accept that AAMI's decision not to accept this claim is correct.

My decision represents AAMI's final decision in relation to your clients' complaint. If your clients wish to pursue the complaint further they are entitled to apply to the Financial Ombudsman Service (the FOS). The FOS is an independent external dispute resolution scheme approved by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). AAMI is a member of this scheme and we agree to be bound by its determination about a dispute. Any such application must be made within two years of the date of this letter to:

ANNEXURE 10

Media Statement

13 January 2011

In response to your query regarding Emerald customer [REDACTED]

"AAMI's home and contents insurance policies include cover for storm and rainwater run-off, but not riverine floods.

"AAMI is a national brand and our three million customers don't always live in areas prone to flooding, so we don't offer flood cover in our policies. This is usually reflected in cheaper premiums paid by policy holders.

"In the case you have referred to, the damage caused in Mackay in February 2008 was determined to have been caused by storms, which is covered under the AAMI policy, hence we did cover that claim.

"AAMI is advising our customers in flood-hit areas of central Queensland that while our policy does not cover riverine flood, we will be assessing claims on an individual, case by case basis in an understanding and compassionate manner.

"We have made no blanket decisions regarding payment of claims."
